Money 20 Per Cent.
Lambs to Slaughter
The H. H. Medicine Ball.
Bombing the Ice.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LITTLE lambs that won't listen when big people tell them to stop speculating must be made to listen.

Yesterday, when the price of call money, with which speculating is done, went to 20 per cent, they listened.

NEW YORK pawn brokers are allowed to charge 12 per cent. When eminently respectable financiers charge 20 per cent, you may be sure somebody is making money. How lovely that a moral lesson should pay a profit.

PLEASANT for those that lend.

Not so pleasant for little lambs. But they ought to know that when high finance starts to get them, discipline them and cure them, it will do all three.

WALL STREET yesterday had the "maddest" but by no means the "merriest" day in all the protracted boom. Boom and the boomers felt like a high-powered car that runs into a stone wall. More than 8,000,000 shares of stock were sold, many selling because they had to.

THE remarkable thing with money costing 20 per cent was that stocks did not drop lower, and that a "rally" should have come at the end. Lots of money in America. But little people may as well make up their minds that they are to be shaken out, if they don't get out.

What the effect will be on general business remains to be seen. That question will interest the President just coming into office. He doesn't want a Hoover panic or Hoover hard times.

AT 7 in the morning, President Hoover "tosses the medicine ball" with friends. That exercise may be gentle or violent, depending on the weight and speed of the ball, the number playing and length of rest between throws.

Even under good conditions, no man past 50 should throw the medicine ball without a doctor's approval. The motion of leaning backward, then suddenly forward with a violent effort is hard on the heart.

TOSSING a ball outward and upward from below the knees, not from above the head, is the safer plan.

WHILE the President tosses his medicine ball, which doesn't cost the country anything, the presidential yacht Mayflower, which cost the people $300,000 a year, is in the Philadelphia Navy Yard, removed from commission. Anybody wanting a comfortable yacht may soon be able to buy the Mayflower at a bargain.

PRESIDENT HOOVER is interested in making airplanes useful. He sends seven Army planes, including three giant bombers, to attack a 19-mile ice jam in the Missouri River, at Bismarck, N. D.

The machines will drop 600 bombs weighing 110,000 pounds, containing 50,000 pounds of TNT. Bombing the ice gorge, if successful, may save extensive sections from flooding by the backed up waters of the Missouri.

WHAT could such a collection of bombs do to one of our big cities, and how easily planes released from carriers off our coast could do to our cities what President Hoover will do to that ice gorge.

The President, you may be sure, has thought about that.

YESTERDAY, March 26, will stand as an important day in the history of flying. At 10:30 a. m. two courageous Spanish fliers, Jiminez and Iglesias, landed at Bahia, Brazil, less than 44 hours after leaving Seville, a journey of 4,000 miles.

THE funeral of Marshal Foch, the lying in state, in his own home, under the Arch of Triumph, and at Notre Dame Cathedral, is ended. The old soldier's body lies in peace under the gilded dome of the Invalides, near the body of Napoleon.

AT SUNRISE yesterday at New York's out-of-date fort, Castle William, 21 guns were fired, to express the nation's grief. Thereafter, at Castle William and all other American Army posts, signal guns were fired every half hour.

Much noise, costing much money, spent with the best of intentions. But it didn't do Marshal Foch much good.

THE Marshal commanded ten million men in the armies of France, Belgium, Great Britain, Italy and the United States, all obeyed his orders.

Where is he now? What does he know? Has he met Napoleon, the great Corsican, or Alexander, who at 32, when he died, had done more than any other conqueror? Did he hear those sympathetic United States guns, making a noise in honor of his funeral? Nobody on earth will ever know.

FRESH laid eggs contain a considerable amount of carbon dioxide gas, which kills you if you inhale enough of it. Each egg needs its small supply to protect it from decay. Cornell University finds a way to preserve eggs by restoring, through the shell, the carbon dioxide that escapes from a shell after the egg is laid.

A fraction of a cent per dozen will preserve eggs with the aid of carbon dioxide and a low temperature.

Farmers will ask, "Alas, must we be chemists, physicists as well as farmers?"

Shaken, Girl Tells Court

MARIE HYER

Miss Hyer, 21-year-old Point Breeze brunet who charged from the stand in Common Pleas Court that Thad W. Byrne, Glenville, W. Va., gave her a $600 diamond ring and then with Brantz Craddock, former Gilmore County (W. Va.) prosecutor, went to her home with a warrant charging larceny. The girl testified he shook her, but Byrne denies it.

RING IN PAWN, SUES GIVER

The $600 diamond ring which Thad W. Byrne, wealthy merchant of Glenville, W. Va., said he gave to Marie Hyer, attractive 21-year-old Point Breeze Brunette, to seal their engagement, has been locked in a pawnshop for more than two years, according to testimony today in Common Pleas Court, where the girl's damage suit against Byrne is being heard.

Bantz Craddock, former county prosecutor of Glenville and a defendant with Byrne, testified that when he tried to pay the $225 due on the ring at a Pittsburgh pawnshop, he was informed that Marie's mother, Mrs. Bertha Hyer, of 6757 Simonton street, who pawned the diamond, had ordered against such a move.

Marie and her mother are suing Byrne and Craddock for damages sustained, Marie testified, when Byrne and Craddock visited the Hyer home and shook the girl to force her to return the ring, after she had refused to marry Byrne.

Clashes were frequent and warm today between Attorney John F. Haggerty, counsel for the plaintiff, and Attorney Charles B. Prichard, representing the defendants. Judge Ambrose B. Reid, tired of the bickering, announced he would grant a 10-minute interval to allow the barristers to "have it out in the hall."

PRIZE FIGHTER NEAR DEATH

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 27.—One hour after a six-round bout with Young Sweeney, of Mingo, here last night, Tony Azzara, Pittsburgh boxer, collapsed in a dressing room at the fight club and was rushed to the Ohio Valley Hospital, where it was said his condition was critical.

Doctors said he was suffering from cerebral hemorrhage, the result of a heavy blow over the left temple as the bout neared the end in the sixth round.

Physicians were considering an operation as a last resort to save the fighter's life, but apparently had little hope.

Ship Aground Asks Cutter Go to Aid

NEW YORK, March 27.—(INS.)—The vessel Eastern Glade today was reported aground off Half Moon Shoals, off Cape Cod.

The Radio Marine Corporation received a message from the radio station at Chatham, Mass., which said the U. S. S. Acushne, revenue cutter, was requested to go to the assistance of the striken vessel.

Bishop Brent Dies While on Trip Abroad

BELIEVE FATAL RAID ILLEGAL

AURORA, Ill., March 27.—(AP.)—Joseph Deking, through counsel, today demanded immediate action be taken against county dry raiders for the slaying of his wife.

His attorney, Robert A. Milroy, called upon State's Attorney Carbary to move promptly to place responsibility for the shooting of Mrs. Deking at her home Monday night. If the authorities fail to prosecute, he said he would petition for a special grand jury and for appointment of a special prosecutor to take the case from Carbary's hands.

Carbary said he would present the facts to the grand jury, but expressed the opinion that the shooting was justified on the grounds of self-defense.

CRUSADE TO CONTINUE

The "death for a gallon" tragedy will not retard the state attorney's campaign to dry up Kane County, Carbary said. In the short time he has been in office he has initiated more than 400 raids.

The legality of the raid on the Deking home is the crux of the entire affair, Deking's counsel said. If the raiders acted without a proper search warrant, the lawyer insisted, then Deking was within his rights in ordering the deputy sheriffs from the house.

CLAIMS SELF-DEFENSE

Smith, suffering from a bullet wound inflicted when Gerald Deking, 12, fired a shot from one of his father's pistols, made a statement yesterday to the state's attorney. He said he fired in self-defense, believing that Mrs. Deking intended to shoot him.

The deputy sheriff said he aimed his sawed-off shotgun at her hand,

Train Kills Sharon Man, Father of Five

SHARON, Pa., March 27.—Peter Waring, 43, father of five, was killed today when hit by an Erie freight train while walking along the tracks. His body was found 30 minutes after the accident by Glenn Shinder, a railroad employe.

7-HOUR DAY IN SCHOOL ASSAILED

Action to end certain conditions in Pittsburgh public schools was forecast today as a crystalization of indignation among school patrons.

The "long seven-hour school day" and the "slavery" of high school pupils were denounced at a meetisg of the Pittsburgh Parents' Association last night in the Frick Training School.

CAN'T GET ACTION

"The school board has taken an arbitrary position and we can't get any action out of it," charged Attorney William Clyde Grubbs, a prominent member of the association.

"We've had meeting after meeting with the board, but the best it does is refer us to some subcommittee that forgets the matter," Grubbs continued.

"CONFINED TOO LONG"

"The students are confined too long, they're not taught the proper subjects, their schedules are poorly arranged; it's impossible to obtain a good college-preparatory course in a Pittsburgh school.

"The 2,300 students at Peabody High School are virtually in slavery. They aren't allowed to leave

END OF STOCK PINCH SEEN

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Wall Street saw signs today that the worst was over in the acute credit pinch, and after a period of uncertainty caused by a call money renewal of 15 per cent, stock prices headed upward along a broad front. The most cheering development was a reduction of ⅛ of one per cent in bankers' acceptance rates, the first decline after several months of successive increases. The high call money renewal rate eventually brought a liberal supply of funds and fears that it would advanced faded.

Terrific losses have been sustained over the last 10 days by both the large and the small-fry traders in Wall Street. Most of these traders did not take the money stringency situation seriously, and, when the bulls marked up prices to the dizziest heights on the current move, they followed blindly, grabbing for profits all the way up. When the speculative snow-storm hit the market, the pools folded their tents and disappeared, leaving the margin traders to protect themselves—if they could. The bankers refused to loan money and the crash was "on."

Further "house-cleaning" of weakly-margined accounts was responsible for the heavy selling of speculative stocks in the second hour today. The ticker trailed the market 16 minutes, and prices on the floor were a point or two below the ticker reports. The oils made the best records in this period, with Atlantic Refining leading a moderate rally. Bonds were irregular and commodity markets steady, with cotton about 4 points lower and grain off less than a cent a bushel.

MYSTERY WOMAN, BEARING CASH, ENTERS FORNEY CASE

A mystery woman has entered the Forney case! In fact, she has entered and departed.

Young and attractive, she strolled into the Clerk of Court's office in the court house yesterday with a check for $2,500 to satisfy the county's claim on John Welsh, of 256½ McKee place, who signed the bond for the missing Alfred Forney.

She was told that $2,500 wasn't enough, that the check should have been $41 greater to include the costs of trying to prosecute the man who was accused of operating a huge slot machine ring.

She departed, promising to return today with sufficient money. Nobody bothered to determine who had signed the check. And late today she hadn't returned.

Unless the claim is met at the last minute today, Welsh's personal effects will be sold by the sheriff April 1 to meet the obligation.

Voting Machine Bill Passed By Senate

HARRISBURG, March 27.—The voting machine enabling act of Senator Frank J. Harris, Crafton, passed the Senate today.

Not a dissenting vote was cast. The vote was 44 to 0.

Although it and the gasoline tax are the most discussed measures before the Legislature, there was not a word of debate on the bill when it was called for action.

As passed it is the Harris bill as amended last week by the sub-committee, and the amendment added yesterday on the floor by Senator Harris to permit the referendum on use of the machines to be submitted to voters at any November election.

ZEPPELIN SAILS FROM LEVANT FOR HOME

LONDON, March 27.—(INS.)—Soaring homeward after having visited the Holy Land, the Graf Zeppelin passed over Athens, Greece, at 8 a. m. today, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from that city.

As the huge airship appeared over the city, its silver-sheened sides glistening in the early morning sunlight, the natives below crowded every available rooftop and window for a good view of it.

The majestic craft traversed the city in a wide circle at a low altitude, its motors purring smoothly, and then headed northwest.

When the Zeppelin passed over Athens she had been in the air about 56 hours and had covered almost 3,000 miles without a landing.

ABOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, OVER ASIA MINOR, March 27.—(Via radio to Berlin.)—The arrival of the Graf Zeppelin over the Holy Land is the symbol of Western progress and closer relations between the East and West, through the bond of fast air transportation between the two worlds.

This corner of Asia saw its first airship today when the big German air liner reached the shores of the Holy Land after 52 hours of non-stop flight from Friedrichshafen. We blazed the path through the air to the Orient for dirigible air liners just as the Graf Zeppe-

Jensen Tries Record Flight With Auto Gas

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., March 27.—(AP.)—Through a "bumpy" sky, Martin Jensen circled away the hours today in his latest attempt to set a new solo endurance flight record with automobile gasoline.

He went up in his single motored monoplane "green flash" at 6:01:34 this morning and this afternoon was still going strong. To set a new record, he would have to stay aloft until dark tomorrow. The present mark, set by the late Royal V. Thomas, is 35 hours and [illegible] minutes.

Woman Races Car Ahead of Train, Saves Life

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP.)—When in doubt as to which train to argue with, choose the slower. Mrs. Oscar C. Helm, of Winnetka, adhered to this fundamental principle yesterday and is still eligible for the census.

Arriving on a crossing just as the gates went down she glanced up and down the tracks. From the south an express train was thundering down. From the north a local was steaming into the station. She selected the southbound track, swerved her car down the right of way and stepped on the gas, while the engineer cooperated by grinding on his brakes. For nearly 100 yards the automobile bumped along the ties, pulled into the station an ace ahead of the local and turned aside to the platform.

Mrs. Helm nonchalantly parked the car, stepped out and boarded the train for town.

NURSE SUES LAWYER'S ESTATE

Whether a 47-year-old widow's hesitant "yes" to the insistent proposal of an 89-year-old widower is legally worth $30,000, is a question which today lies before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

The court's decision will establish a Pennsylvania precedent on whether such an acceptance constitutes a legal consideration.

The principals in the romance were William M. Fairman, 89-year old widower, of Punxsutawney, prominent throughout Pennsylvania as a lawyer and Democratic leader, and Mrs. Olive Campbell, 47, of Butler, practical nurse and widow with three sons, aged 30, 24 and 18.

$30,000 NOTE FOUGHT

The item of contention is a $30,000 note, testified to have been given to the widow by Fairman a few days before his death.

Mrs. Campbell sued to recover on the note, in the Common Pleas Court of Jefferson County.

Mary Jefferson, executrix of the Fairman estate, was named as defendant. Judge William T. Darr gave a negative answer to the question involved. Mrs. Campbell filed an appeal and the question was argued March 19 before the Supreme Court, sitting here.

REJECTED ONCE

Mrs. Campbell alleged that Fairman proposed marriage, and she refused because of his age and because, his expectance of life being

WAGNER QUITS STATE JOB

HARRISBURG, March 27.—John H. "Hans" Wagner, formerly a star shortstop on the Pittsburgh Pirates, has resigned as an assistant sergeant-at-arms in the House of Representatives. Press of business is given as the reason for his quitting.

The old-time baseball player has been succeeded by Gustave A. Ende, of McKees Rocks.

Wagner was named to the job by the House State Committee at the beginning of the session. He has spent little of his time in Harrisburg. "Hans" was on the job when he signed the payroll several weeks ago for a few days.

Bill Seeks Blind, Deaf Schools Quiz

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 27.—Appointment of a commission to examine affairs of the Pennsylvania Institution for Blind, Overbrook; Western Pennsylvania School for Blind, Pittsburgh; and the Western Pennsylvania School for Deaf, at Edgewood, Allegheny county, is provided in a bill of Senator W. D. Mansfield, McKeesport. Although it authorizes the commission to ascertain indebtedness of these institutions as a preliminary to acquisition by the state, if the commission recommends they become state-owned, no provision for payment of the debts is made.

Reconciled

MRS. BERT ACOSTA

Reconciliation of Mrs. Acosta with Bert, the famous flier, has been effected. They separated some time ago and their affairs have been in the courts ever since.

SENATE PASSES FISCAL CODE

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 27.—Gov. Fisher's fiscal code passed the Senate today with five votes in opposition.

The bill creates a Department of Revenue as a central tax collection agency and reorganizes the auditor general's department and the state treasury. House concurrence in Senate amendments is required before the bill reaches the governor for approval. Six supplementary bills passed also, none of them receiving more than one vote in opposition.

The five opponents included Kunkle, of Westmoreland, and Weingartner, of Lawrence. Weingartner had been considered a strong supporter of the administration.

Pilot, Owners Blamed For 14 Plane Deaths

NEWARK, N. J., March 27.—(INS.)—The plane crash in Newark which took 14 lives was caused by the failure of one engine, improper piloting after the engine failure and the failure of the owners of the plane thoroughly to familiarize the pilot with the country surrounding the airport, according to a report made today by Lieut. Richard Aldworth, manager of the Newark airport.

Lou Foote, the pilot and sole survivor, is in a critical condition in the hospital.

BILL SAVING TROLLEY LINES PAVING COSTS DRAWS FIRE

City officials are expected to make a vigorous fight against the bill presented to the State Legislature by Senator Kitts, of Erie, which would relieve street car companies from paying for repaving thoroughfares within the street car areas.

The bill passed the Senate early this week over the protests of Senators Mansfield, Leslie, Brandt and Einstein, of Allegheny County. Mansfield and Leslie branded the Kitts bill as the "most vicious piece of legislation ever presented in Harrisburg." The bill is now pending in the House.

Under the terms of the 10-year agreement effected in 1924 between the city of Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh Railways Company, the company pays the city $200,000 annually toward the street repaving cost.

If the Kitts bill becomes a law, the Pittsburgh Railways Company would not be liable for payment of its share of the paving cost after 1934, according to the opinions of attorneys.

Mayor Charles H. Kline, today, said "the city should not be deprived of the revenue which the Pittsburgh Railways Company obligated itself to pay."

James F. Malone, president of Council, declared he expressed disapproval of the Kitts bill to members of the house while he was attending the hearing Tuesday in Harrisburg on the Metropolitan Charter.

Councilman P. J. McArdle declared that the objective of the Kitts bill should be decided by local municipal authorities and not by the state.

BILL FIXED TO SUIT BOSSES

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 27.—The Pittsburgh Metropolitan District Charter, slashed and changed, was reported from the Senate Juliciary General Committee today.

It cannot be recognized as the charter written and submitted by the Metropolitan District Commission. Hundreds of amendments agreed upon by city and county officials were made before the bill left the committee.

Senator M. G. Leslie, who introduced it, said additional amendments were being considered.

MANY SECTIONS CUT

The amendments eliminate from the original charter the departments of finance, welfare, safety, parks and recreation, planning, public art, personnel, research and information.

The proposal to substitute a municipal court of 30 judges to take the place of the magistrates, alder-

COAL POLICE BILL O.K'D

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 27.—The Musmanno coal and iron police bill was reported favorably today from the House Judiciary General Committee. It is the Fisher administration bill with amendments even more drastically limiting the powers of such officers.

The most important of these amendments restricts the men entirely to the property of the corporation hiring them, the original bill having given them 1,000 feet leeway.

MINERS FAVOR BILL

"I have been informed that the Federation of Labor and the United Mine Workers have expressed complete satisfaction with the bill as amended," said Musmanno today.

A second amendment provides that when an industrial policeman arrests a person, he must take him immediately before a committing magistrate or to a public police station. The killing of John Berkowski, in connection with which three coal and iron police are being held, is alleged to have occurred in the private barracks of the coal and iron police.

MUST BE CITIZENS

"The biggest trouble with the coal and iron police was that in many instances they were unprincipled ruffians imported from other states without regard to their previous history or character," said Musmanno.

He pointed out that this bill requires them to be citizens of the United States who have resided in Pennsylvania for at least one year and that the company employing them must put up a corporate bond of $2,000 for each policeman.

METRO BOARD PLAN IS LOST

men and justices of the peace was taken out of the bill.

The amended bill keeps the government of the consolidated city in the hands of a board of seven commissioners, but each municipality retains practically every power it has at present. The manner of electing commissioners was radically changed. The present board of commissioners will remain in office until the end of their terms. At the municipal election of 1931 the first board of seven is to be elected. All of them will seek election at large, but three must be residents of Pittsburgh and one from each of three districts. One commissioner would be elected at large, the only requirement being that he be a resident of the consolidated city for at least five years.

ELECTED BY BOARD

The president of the board of commissioners, instead of being elected to that office by the people, would be chosen by the other members of the board. The division of the county into districts is the same as in the original charter bill.

While districts in which the candidates for commissioners must reside are defined in the bill, Pittsburgh being number one, the new board of commissioners would have power to change that as soon as the 1930 census is announced. The three districts outside of Pittsburgh, the charter provides, should have as nearly the same population as possible.

The manner of assessing and collecting taxes would remain substantially the same as at present. In general, that is the purpose of all the amendments, to keep as much as possible at its present status. County taxes would be assessed by the present board for the assessment and revision of taxes. Their assessment may be accepted by any municipality in the county, but it is not mandatory.

Pittsburgh is thus permitted to retain its present board of assessors.

In eliminating the department of finance the bill is amended to make the duties of the controller and the treasurer practically the same as at present.

HEALTH PROVISIONS

The metropolitan department of health would handle that work for the entire county. Any city, borough or township that has no health department can look to it for service. Pittsburgh and other municipalities that so desired could retain their own health departments. The metropolitan department could receive authority from the board of commissioners to make general ordinances that would be enforced by the local boards.

The charter provisions creating a metropolitan department of law are not materially changed. The present county solicitor would become the head of that department.

The amended charter provides, after the bill is approved by the people at a special election June 4, Joseph G. Armstrong, the chairman of the present board of commissioners, would become president. William H. Ziefel, chief clerk in the commissioners' office, would become secretary.

All laws and regulations governing the poor district of Allegheny County remain the same as at present.

WELFARE UNCHANGED

The Department of Welfare of the City of Pittsburgh will continue to function in its present manner.

At the committee meeting this morning, Senator William D. Mansfield, McKeesport, according to reports, offered to support a charter bill that would secure for Pittsburgh the large census in 1930, but would keep the government of the county and of the various municipalities the same as at present. This suggestion followed the lines of that made several weeks ago by James F. Malone, president of Pittsburgh council. The committee reported the amended bill.

A number of the changes are corrective ones submitted yesterday by Charles K. Robinson, counsel for the commission. Most of them were prepared by County Solicitor W. Heber Dithrich and City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt.

TAX CLAUSE STAYS

One of the objections to the bill advanced today at the meeting of the committe was that it included a provision that would permit the assessment of non-abutting property to pay for public improvements. A constitutional amendment putting such an assessment plan into effect in Pittsburgh was defeated at the election last November. A clause permitting that method to be used was included in the Metropolitan district amendment and is put into effect in the charter. It remains in the amended bill.

Fairman said he did not depend on earnings from his practice and had sufficient means otherwise to provide for her and told her if she would promise to marry him he would provide her with $30,000 of bonds he had in the bank, according to the record allegations. She agreed to marry him and on February 7, 1925, he executed a testamentary device reading, "When I have passed out of this life, I give and direct that $30,000 worth of my bonds now deposited in the Punxsutawney National Bank to be given to Mrs. Olive Campbell," according to the record.

On May 21, 1925, Fairman was stricken ill. The next day Mrs. Campbell made a fast journey from Butler, and Fairman executed a 60-day note for $30,000, as a substitute for the testimentary paper, about which there might be some question in his view, according to the record allegations. Fairman was taken to a hospital and died May 31, 1925.

It was contended on behalf of the estate that the signature to the note was not that of Fairman. The executrix averred Fairman "was a keen practicing lawyer of statewide and national reputation and practiced more than 50 years. When in sound possession of his faculties he was a shrewd and cautious business man. Affiant believes he never signed the note."

Few cases directly involving the question have been decided in other states, it is apparent from the record. The outstanding cases deciding the question involved on similar facts cited by opposing counsel arose in Kentucky and Washington and are in flat contradiction. The Washington case supported appellant's contention that the promise of marriage was a legal consideration, and the Kentucky case upheld the opposing contention that there was a failure of consideration on death.

3 TRAINMEN DIE IN COLLISION

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., March 27.—(AP.)—Three trainmen were killed and two were injured in a head-on collision late yesterday between two freight trains of the Nickel Plate system near the Edwardsville station. Fire followed the crash and the bodies of the victims were not recovered until firemen had extinguished the flames. Fourteen freight cars were piled up in the crash.

Trainmen attributed the crash to confused orders, but the blame was not fixed.

Greeks-Slavs Sign Pact

BELGRADE, Jugoslavia, March 27.—(AP.) — Representatives of Greece and Jugoslavia today formally signed a pact of friendship which had been under negotiation for some time.

RENTERS BACK TAX SLASH EN MASSE

Apartment house dwellers, residents of entire city blocks and neighborhood groups are joining en masse in the protest against the present system of Federal tax on earned incomes.

Petitions received at the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph show a complete canvass of many apartment houses, while others reveal the activity of volunteer workers in circulating petitions and obtaining signatures in house after house in residence districts. As a result, all the citizens in some sections of the city have been placed on record as unanimously favoring a reduction of the tax on the incomes of professional men and women, salaried people and wage earners.

BUSINESSMEN SIGN

C. H. Van Dyke, of Lowrie-Van Dyke Company, insurance, Commonwealth Building, has sent in a petition which had been circulated among his friends and neighbors in Cohasset street. To these names were added those of many members of firms in the Commonwealth Building. The Van Dyke list is an example of many petitions sent in during the last few days from all parts of the city and suburbs. Bellevue, East Liberty, Squirrel Hill, Dormont, Mt. Lebanon, Mt. Oliver, Oakmont, Aspinwall, Ingomar, Coraopolis, Braddock, McKeesport and Sewickley are the districts represented. Louis Knell, of 511 Lincoln avenue, Bellevue, sent in two large petitions.

Hotel guests from out of town have signed petitions in hotels here and in many instances have filled out the lists by obtaining the signatures of friends and fellow guests and have mailed these to the office of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Grant Armor, an advertising man, of 3021 Arlington avenue, East Orange, N. J., stopping at the William Penn Hotel, mailed his petition with the statement that he worked entirely on commission and favored the downward revision of the tax on earned incomes.

TRAVELERS FOR CUT

C. M. Cox, of Springfield, Mass., a traveling salesman, is authority for the statement that a reduction of the tax on earned incomes is the principal topic among traveling men.

"It indicates," he said, "that the whole country is aroused over the injustice of the present method of levying the tax on professional people and all persons who work for a living. In various parts of the country I have heard of the campaign that the Hearst newspapers are carrying on and, judging by the interest the movement has awakened, it is certain that Congress will be confronted by the nation-wide sentiment in favor of immediate change in the tax system on earned incomes."

Auto Licenses Denied Drug Addicts by Bill

HARRISBURG, March 27. —(AP.)—A bill which would give the new revenue department access to the drug addict records of the Department of Health so that drug addicts may be denied licenses to operate automobiles was passed by the House yesterday and sent to the Governor.

HIKERS OUTDONE HERE

The Rubins have hiked 10,500 miles, but they met a real walker in Pittsburgh. Letter Carrier Zentz figures he's walked 70,000 miles to earn his bread and butter.

MAILMAN'S 70,000 MILES BEATS TWO GLOBE HIKERS

Two ambitious 'round the world hikers—Nathan and Zundel Rubin—are in Pittsburgh after having tramped 10,500 miles from far-away Lithuania, but Pittsburgh is not excited—only mildly interested, as a matter of fact.

Even mild interest would be difficult for George Zentz, veteran mail carrier, who boasts of having pounded sidewalks here to the tune of something like 70,000 miles during the past 23 years. But then hikers must stick together, so to speak, and Mailman Zentz had a bit of advice for Lithuania's bunion champs:

"Stick to it—the first 50,000 miles are the hardest!"

The Rubins are brothers. Nathan is 27 and Zundel, 21. They looked up to Pittsburgh's stalwart letter carrier, head and shoulders above them, in admiration.

They are hiking for a prize of $50,000.

He hikes for a living!

The Touring Club of France has offered $40,000 for the first man, woman or child who hikes around the world in the shortest period of time. Invitations were sent to all the nations of Europe.

Nathan and Zundel Rubin, in the little village of Kovno, appealed to the Lithuanian government to be allowed to represent the republic. Their request was granted and an additional prize of 150,000 lit offered as further incentive to the Rubins.

Lithuania is three months in the lead, according to the Rubins, who declare they will finish their hike by December 22, 1932.

lin showed the way through the trackless ether over the Atlantic to America last fall.

ALL ENTHUSIASTIC

The crew and passengers were no more excited when, after a hard fight with a storm in mid-Atlantic, we saw the shores of Virginia in October, than when Haifa and the Palestine coast line were sighted at four o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Commander Eckener, surrounded by his entire staff of officers, Capt. Lehmann, Flemming, Von Schiller and Pruss; his son, Knut Eckener; Chief Engineers Siegle and Buerle, and by the German government officials on board, crowded the bridge. The other passengers rushed to the windows, some standing on chairs to look over the shoulders of others.

WELCOME AT HAIFA

On the hill above Haifa, the big white letters were laid out, reading "welcome," with the flag of Wurtemburg (the state in which Friedrichshafen is located). Columbus could not have been happier when he discovered America than was the old German air dog, Dr. Eckener, as he brought his silver ship over the old Bible city.

Like a gigantic bird the Graf Zeppelin swept in a graceful circle over the harbor and then dashed southward toward Jaffa along the white surf breaking on the shore line. Just then we were breaking all speed records, traveling at the rate of 90 miles an hour.

At 7:07 last evening we reached Jaffa, and a few moments later, with our motors stopped, we hovered over Televiv, the beautiful city of Zionism.

The boy Gerald gave a similar account. "I grabbed one of the guns my daddy dropped, and I shot with it," he said. "It was the first time I ever shot a gun."

The boy said that the gallon of wine confiscated by the deputies had been obtained for him, "because the doctor said I should drink a glass every night because I have anaemia."

Pittsburgh Leads Way in Charitable Work—A. K. Oliver

WHAT Pittsburgh is doing for the less fortunate fellowman, and a glance forward towards the greater city and its problems is discussed in the following article, another of the series being presented in the Sun-Telegraph by distinguished citizens of Pittsburgh.

By AUGUSTUS K. OLIVER,
Banker and President of Pittsburgh's Welfare Fund and Chairman Pittsburgh Chapter, American Red Cross.

THE Pittsburgh we know is a community of many races and tongues. So markedly so, indeed, that it is hard for the younger generation of today to realize that for almost the first hundred years of its existence Pittsburgh's population was peculiarly homogeneous, with the Scotch-Irish strain predominating, and that the present tremendous diversity of racial origins has been a growth that has taken place only during the last 50 or 60 years.

Every community of every size, regardless of the character of its population, has its social problems. Even without the abnormally large percentage of immigrating families perilously near the border line of poverty and dependence, Pittsburgh still would have had to meet the responsibility for the care of a certain number of its people. "The poor ye have always with you." The coming of the Southern Europeans and Negroes did not create, it merely aggravated our problem and rendered it more complicated.

When the social problem first began to be recognized as a community rather than a personal responsibility, the natural leaders in Pittsburgh were—and indeed to a large extent still are—of that type of Anglo-Saxon stock known as "individualists." Their fathers and mothers had been accustomed to dispense their charity personally, and it was hard for the sons and daughters to realize that in a community of over a million souls the old personal contact could not be maintained.

Organized Generosity

EVENTUALLY, however, the impossibility of discharging a community obligation by independent individual action was recognized—because of physical limitations alone, if for no other reason. Accordingly certain groups among the philanthropically inclined drew together and organized societies or associations through which their charity might be dispensed. Still, however, the heritage handed down from their forebears persisted, and the "individualism" which was so characteristic of the men and women who composed those groups was transferred in a degree to the groups themselves. Each group was inclined to seek its own outlet for its generous impulses, without reference to the program or field being covered by any other group or groups. The social welfare program of the community grew and acquired strength, but its development was far from being well balanced. Aside from the institutional and charitable work supported and managed by the churches which in this, as in almost every other community, took the lead in humanitarian undertakings, the field of what is now generally termed "family welfare" was practically the only one covered, and that almost wholly by the dispensing of relief, with little or no thought given to the permanent rehabilitation of the men and women to whom assistance was extended.

Eventually, however, it became recognized that "relief" alone, unaccompanied by helpful planning for the future, was merely an effort to remove "effects," whereas permanent values could be secured only by determining and eliminating "causes." It gradually became apparent, also, that specialized knowledge was essential for the proper solution of the many complex problems which our rapidly growing city began to present. The moral delinquency of boys and girls, for instance, certainly called for treatment far different from that required to care for a family whose support had been taken away by the illness or death of its breadwinner.

Efforts Concentrated

STUDY and experience, too, soon developed the fact that certain types of cases, such as corrective work, and many—indeed most—of the mental and physical health problems of the community could be handled most effectively by public agencies, while in other forms of welfare work better results, from the standpoint both of the community and of the beneficiaries, could be obtained through private charity, understandingly administered, than through tax-supported, publicly-managed and—at times—politically-controlled bodies.

The field of welfare and philanthrophy in Pittsburgh during this period of its development presents a picture of an army composed of separate, individual units, some strong, some weak, but in the mass possessing vast potentialities. It shows, however, each unit choosing its own objective and proceeding against it in its own way. Sometimes, even, two units may be seen attacking the same objective from opposite sides, each unaware of the other's presence and in ignorance of its ally's strength and plan of campaign. A noble army, indeed, inspired with zeal and devotion and courage, but sadly lacking in that cohesion and mutual understanding which any force, however powerful, must possess if it is not to fall pitiably short of the full measure of its potentialities.

AUGUSTUS K. OLIVER

The first change for the better in this situation may be attributed in large measure to the increasing influence of trained social workers, men and women who devote their lives to the study of causes and cures of social ills and to the practical application of the results of that study. The directing boards of many of the philanthropic agencies now began to see their own work not as an isolated undertaking, but as an integral part of a big community responsibility, to be discharged only in collaboration with other agencies ministering to the needs of the sick, the poor and the underprivileged of the district. Pride in the records of individual agencies, while not wholly abandoned (and we hope it never will be!), was the building even for lunch. The school authorities say that when the students leave the building they smoke cigarets or indulge in some other action that is frowned upon.

TAKEN FROM SCHOOL

"My two children wanted a course that would prepare them for college, so I had to take them from Peabody and enter them in a private school. At Peabody they had to study as late as 11 o'clock at night on some subject that was totally unnecessary," Grubbs concluded.

The protestants adopted a resolution which called upon the State Legislature to pass the Marcus bill which fixes the maximum school day at five and one-half hours.

A spokesman for the association announced after the meeting that the seven-hour school-day had been criticized by Dr. A. H. Colwell, secretary of the Allegheny County Medical Society and Dr. Charles Jennings in signed statements, but both physicians today told The Sun-Telegraph that no such statements had been authorized by them.

Attorney C. Elmer Bown, who presided, announced that the association's executive committee would meet Friday to decide on its next step in support of the Marcus bill.

LAVERY FREED IN SHOOTING

Joseph J. "Bozo" Lavery, city patrolman, was acquitted by a jury in Criminal Court today and the county ordered to pay costs in the shooting of Andrew Brosky, post-office employe in Oakland, November 3.

Lavery was charged with felonious assault and battery.

"You are extremely lucky in getting such a verdict," declared Judge Thomas J. Ford, calling Lavery before him. "This should be a warning to you to be careful hereafter in using firearms."

Lavery testified in his own defense yesterday that he was assigned to search for two men who had robbed a gasoline filling station and shot a policeman. He said that Brosky and a companion, Dewey Rogner, answered the description of the men. Rogner grabbed his arm, causing the gun to go off and wound Brosky.

Brosky and Rogner testified that they had returned to their parked automobile after bowling and Lavery demanded Brosky's license cards and fired his revolver at him after remarking, "You don't think I'll shoot, do you?"

NEW BILL MAY START IN SENATE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—In the most spectacular move ever made in behalf of agriculture, the four richest men in America—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., J. Pierpont Morgan, Andrew W. Mellon and Henry Ford—were asked today to help Congress solve the farm problem.

The names of these four billionaires—probably the four richest men in the world—topped a list of financial, industrial and labor leaders sent telegraphic invitations to participate in the deliberations of the Senate Agriculture Committee over a new farm relief bill. If they accept, the farmers of America will have the nation's financial and industrial "brains" at their disposal in drafting a program of agricultural relief.

OTHER LEADERS CALLED

Beside Rockefeller, Morgan, Mellon and Ford, the committee invited Paul M. Warburg, famous international banker and active head of Kuhn, Loeb and Company; Owen D. Young, head of the General Electric Company and America's reparation expert; Charles M. Schwab, the retired steel capitalist; President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and other leaders in industry and labor. All were urged to confer with the Senate committee at the earliest opportunity.

The invitations were suggested by Senator Thomas (Rep.) of Idaho, and heartily indorsed by other members of the committee. Senator McNary (Rep.), of Oregon, chairman, forwarded the invitations.

If the financial and industrial czars accept, an effort will be made to arrange a single conference, which all might attend.

REPRESENT BILLIONS

If Rockefeller, Morgan, Mellon and Ford sat down at the same table it would bring $4,000,000,000 of wealth, at least, into a single room. If Warburg, Young and Schwab were present, too, their combined wealth probably would exceed $5,000,000,000. They would bring, too, the cream of the nation's financial, economic and industrial ability. If they could agree on a single remedy agriculture undoubtedly would be projected to its economic feet with amazing celerity.

For the last four years, Congress has attempted to enact the McNary-Haugen bill into law with the much discussed equalization fee as its principal feature. On three occassions, it met with Presidential vetoes at the hands of Calvin Coolidge. The fee was virtually abandoned in the last Presidential campaign.

Now with the fee out of the way, President Hoover has told Congress to go ahead and draft a new bill. He has declined to proffer any specific plan of relief. If the economic leaders also decline to make suggestions, farm leaders may feel free to revive the equalization fee.

MAY HAVE THEIR SAY

As one westerner put it:

"We are giving the money kings a chance to have their say. In the past, they've always said 'no' on the equalization fee. Now let them say what they favor. If they remain silent, it won't look so good to the common people of America."

The leaders of national farm organizations meanwhile held a series of conferences, seeking an agreement on one form of relief satisfactory to all. The American Farm Bureau Federation has held out for the McNary-Haugen bill, with its equalization fee. Other groups, fearing another veto and no relief, have favored a less drastic measure. Thus far, the farmers haven't reached an agreement.

The House Agriculture Committee likewise started sessions on drafting a bill. Administration leaders plan to start the farm bill in the Senate, so the Senate hearings assume greater importance.

FEDERALS OPEN BIG DRIVE

International News Service.

Mexican Federal troops are on the offensive today against the rebels over a front that extends into 10 states—Chihuahua, Nayarit, Sinaloa, Jalisco, Coahuila, Aguascalientes, Michoacan, Guanahuato, Zacatecas and Durango.

Nearly 40,000 Federals are on the move against the Mexican rebels.

A campaign of extermination against the insurgents is under way in Jalisco.

The rebel army that tried to capture Mazatlan is in flight northward.

Mexican government officials believe that the complete suppression of the revolution depends only upon the speed with which the Federal troops move to subdue the insurgents.

JUAREZ, Chihuahua, Mexico, March 27.—(AP.)—"The Yankee Doodle Birdmen," a fighting air squadron of American pilots, has come into being as an adjunct of the rebel army.

Capt. R. H. Polk, American aviator at Jimenez, has been appointed flight commander of the Foreign Air Legion, and he revealed last night that he will lead at least three additional pilots from the United States in a war in the air upon the Mexican Federal forces.

RIVER MURDER SUSPECT TAKES STAND IN DEFENSE

HARRISBURG, March 27.—(AP.)—Harry Bowman, accused of robbing and drowning Verna Klink here January 25, took the stand in his own defense this morning five minutes after the commonwealth had rested its case at 11:05 o'clock.

The defense called Coroner J. H. Kreider as its first witness, and after brief questioning he was excused and the 39-year-old perfume salesman-defendant took the stand.

He recounted the story he told police at the time of his arrest, a narrative of a gift of money from Miss Klink, their mutual despondency over business reverses and arrangement of a suicide pact. He said they leaped into the river together after Miss Klink had given him $900, and that, while struggling in the cold water, he changed his mind and clambered ashore after failing to rescue her. He told of going to the apartment of his intimate friend, Mrs. Ethel Miller, to dry his clothes and recounted other events preceding his arrest.

He gave his version of his private conversation with Mrs. Miller at the state police barracks, saying that she told him to "tell the police you pushed Miss Klink into the river and they'll leave you off easy." To this statement he said he replied, "If I'd tell them that they'd send me to the electric chair."

Yesterday Mrs. Miller testified that in this conversation Bowman told her he pushed the girl in the river. When Bowman heard this testimony he leaped to his feet and cried "That's a lie."

The case probably will go to the jury tomorrow.

Others, improvident, are spending all they receive about as fast as they get it. When they are confronted, as sooner or later they surely will be, with a demand for money that they cannot meet from current earnings, they will find themselves in an unenviable position.

Which class are you in? Do you belong among the thrifty, or among the spendthrifts?

To encourage saving, the Sun-Telegraph is rewarding hundreds of saving bank depositors by depositing money to the credit of their bank books. These gifts range from $50 to $5 each. If you have a bank book, you may receive one of these awards.

C. L. Otto, of 7430 Idlewild street, has been rewarded for thrift with a check for $10, deposited to the credit of his bank book, No. 3,216, in the Exchange National Bank. Mr. Otto makes it a point to put money in the bank every month.

'DOPE' QUOTAS FIXED FOR ALL PHYSICIANS

WASHINGTON, March 27.—A vigorous drive against physicians and druggists who, under the guise of their profession, traffic in dope, is being pushed by the federal narcotics division.

The aim is not only to stop unethical practices but to cut down the so-called legitimate consumption of drugs throughout the country.

Under a scheme devised by John Q. Walton, chief of the return division of the narcotic bureau, the country has been placed on a drug quota basis. Walton has set a minimum figure for the prescription sale of dope by doctors and druggists.

COAST FIGHT ADVANCES

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 27.—California has taken another step forward in the battle to crush the narcotic evil.

By unanimous vote the state Senate yesterday passed Senator Sanborn Young's bill, which brings within a complete code the entire body of penal law of the state bearing upon unlawful traffic in narcotic drugs.

The measure is a companion to other bills which provide for concentration and consolidation of state agencies into an independent division under the direction of a chief for enforcement of the state law against illicit dealing in contraband drugs.

The new code specifically notes the organization of the state narcotic division. This organization is being effected under a bill which creates the post of chief of the division with full powers.

Jilted Officer Sues Girl for $25,000

CHICAGO, March 27.—(INS.)—Miss Ethel Erickson, 26, will have to marry Anton M. Mouritsen, 28, former Kansas City policeman, or defend herself against a $25,000 breach of promise suit.

Miss Erickson, according to Attorney Ferdinand J. Karasek, counsel for Mouritsen, proposed to his client in the fall of 1928, then broke the engagement January 1 of this year. The failure of Miss Erickson to marry Mouritsen has broken the latter's health, the bill charged.

5-YEAR TWINS AND SISTER, 3, DIE IN FIRE

EMPORIUM, Pa., March 27.—(AP.)—Three children were burned to death in a fire that destroyed a home here today. The children's father and 14-year-old sister suffered severe burns.

The victims were Thelma and Velma Smith, 5-year-old twins, and Mary Ann Smith, 3. They were asleep when the Smith home caught fire early this morning.

The cause of the blaze was not learned.

A small brother of the children leaped from a window and escaped injury. The mother was not in the house when the fire occurred.

PUBLIC SERVICE PROBE ASKED

HARRISBURG, March 27.—Legislative investigation of the Public Service Commission is proposed in a joint resolution presented today in the House by Representative Memelo, Lackawanna. The commission, with a $25,000 appropriation would consist of five members named by the speaker and five by the president pro tem. of the senate.

The probers would determine whether said commission is affording the protection to the public interest for which it was created; what means are provided by the commission to enable those appearing for the public to present the case of the public without exorbitant cost: what investigation is being made of mergers of public service companies, and of their capitalization.

In a second bill Memelo proposes having the General Assembly instead of the Governor pick public service commissioners.

Mother of College President Succumbs

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., March 27.—Mrs. Isabella R. Wallace, 81, mother of Dr. W. C. Wallace, president of Westminster College, New Wilmington, Pa., and widow of the Rev. J. R. Wallace, at one time president at Westminster, died at her home in Hopewell Township. She was born in Mercer County and graduated from Westminster College in 1867. She was a member of the United Presbyterian Church and one of the organizers of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. J. A. McCallister, of New Sheffield, and Miss Blanche Wallace, at home, and four sons, Dr. Wallace, the Rev. B. M. Wallace, pastor of the Steffin Hill Church, Beaver Falls; John S. Wallace, of New Sheffield, and H. C. Wallace, Coraopolis.

HOOVER GETS DESK PHONE, WIFE NEW FLOOR PLUGS

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(INS.)—President Hoover has decided the White House should be equipped with some of the appliances of modern, efficient business.

For the first time in history a telephone has been placed on the President's desk in the executive offices. Hitherto there has been no phone and when the President wished to talk to someone he has had to leave his desk and go outside his own office to a booth.

Special lines has been laid, too, to the desks of all Cabinet officers, so that the Chief Executive may call any of his advisers from his own desk.

A glass top also has been put on the President's desk.

Mrs. Hoover is carrying out her ideas in the mansion proper, too. Electricians were busy today putting in floor plugs and rearranging lighting wires so that the living quarters will present a more homelike atmosphere.

J. D., JR., MAY AID HOOVER DRY ENFORCEMENT STUDY

By DAVID P. SENTNER.
International News Service.
(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

NEW YORK, March 27.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the world's richest young man, today appeared as a potential candidate for the commission which President Hoover will select for the study of law enforcement.

Rockefeller displayed great interest on his return from abroad when told by International News Service during an interview of President Hoover's plans for a law enforcemen inquiry committee.

"I can't think of anything more important than that," said Rockefeller. "It is admirable."

EVADES JONES LAW QUERY

America's junior croesus did not record himself as to whether he would accept such a post if offered to him.

However, Rockefeller's views on the prohibition enforcement question are well known. Several years ago he was one of the prominent members of a citizens' committee for law enforcement.

"What do you think of the Jones enforcement law with its added penalties for violation of the prohibition act?" He was asked.

The millionaire evaded the question.

"I hardly think I shall have any trouble with the Jones law," he said with a smile.

REGRETS INTEREST BOOST

Asked to comment upon the leap to 20 per cent of call money in the stock market, Rockefeller said, again with a smile.

"After my three months' vacation abroad, I may need to borrow. I'm sorry to hear the interest rate is so high."

"Did you keep in touch with the proxy meeting of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in which Col. Stewart was defeated while you were abroad?" I asked.

"I heard about it," he replied, with almost a chuckle.

He produced a typewriten statement, which read:

COMMENT ON STEWART

When asked what comment he had to make on the recent meeting of the stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and the termination of Col. Stewart's connection with the company, Mr. Rockefeller replied: "The action taken requires no comment. It makes it clear, however, that the thoughtful investor estimates the permanent and underlying value of an investment not alone in terms of dividends, essential as they are, but quite as much in terms of the unquestioned integrity and singleness of purpose of management.

"The action is significant because it emphasizes the conviction that the highest ethical standards are as vital in business as they are in other relations of life."

Infantry, Chemical Army Chiefs Named

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—President Hoover has appointed Harry L. Gilchrist, of the medical corps, to be chief of chemical welfare service, succeeding Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, and Col. Stephen O. Easter Blooms At Capital Assured

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—Despite predictions to the contrary Washington is to have its Japanese cherry blossoms Easter Sunday. The first blooms have appeared on the trees and officials now believe that by Sunday Potomac Park will be garbed by nature in its most brilliant finery of the year.

The capital is accustomed to having its famous cherry trees in bloom Easter, but since the day comes earlier than usual this year it had been forecast that the blossoms would not be seen until April 5. However, the unseasonably warm weather accompanied by showers has caused the earlier emergence.

SENATE HONORS DEAD LEADERS

HARRISBURG, Pa., March 27.—(AP.)—The upper branch of Legislature paused in its legislative deliberations yesterday afternoon to pay tribute to the memory of its former secretary and youngest member.

W. Harry Baker, of Harrisburg, the late secretary of the Senate and one-time chairman of the Republican State Committee, and the late Senator Edward E. Pfischner, of Allegheny County, were eulogized in resolutions and speeches, members of families of both men attending the services, held in the Senate chamber.

A resolution read by Senator Earnest, of Dauphin County, termed Baker, "parliamentarian, mentor, guide and friend."

Senator Max G. Leslie, one of Pfischner's colleagues, from Allegheny County, read the memorial resolution at the other service. Speakers were Senators Brandt, Mansfield and Harris, all of Allegheny, and Weingartner, of Lawrence.

MINE INQUIRY NEARS END

"We are reasonably sure that the Kinloch mine explosion was caused by the breaking of the conveyor," W. J. McGregor, state mine inspector in charge of the investigation into the blast and death of 46 men, declared today. The state expects to complete its inquiry today.

Experts from the United States Bureau of Mines are working with state mine inspectors in their investigation. Upon completion of their work, Westmoreland County's coroner, J. F. Harkins, will hold an inquest.

PENNSYLVANIA'S MAPLE SUGAR CAMPS BUSY

Maple sugar making is still a Western Pennsylvania industry flourishing within 50 miles of Pittsburgh.

In its purity and richness of flavor, maple syrup from the groves of Pennsylvania is declared to be of a superior quality that gave it fame long before the name "Vermont" became synonymous with the concomitant for the hot cakes of the American breakfast.

The song of the robin is the bugle call in the Pennsylvania hills and vales for the beginning of activity in the sugar camps. Just now the season is in full swing. With the temperature reaching the 60's, the sap runs freely and the mild weather of the past week has given a picnic atmosphere for the work in the groves.

FINEST QUALITY

The 1929 vintage of maple syrup has had few rivals, say the farmers, just now engaged in boiling the sap and sealing the product in brown glass and tin containers for an impatient public.

After being abandoned for years, many sugar camps in Washington, Greene, Beaver, Butler and Armstrong counties have been reopened, with good profit to the owners. Some of these trees are now being tapped by the great-grandchildren of the pioneers who cleared the woods and set up the quaint log structures where the sap was boiled.

CAMP 100 YEARS OLD

Among the sugar camps nearest Pittsburgh is that on the farm of L. M. Dille in Washington Township, Greene County, which was opened nearly 100 years ago. This camp is operated by W. H. Murphy. Mrs. Murphy and her daughter, Marguerite, and two sons, Charles and Earl, assist in making syrup and sugar from the product of a grove of 50 trees.

Monty Love to Wed Actress Saturday

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 27.—(INS.)—Montague Love, motion picture actor, and Marjorie Hollis, screen actress, will be married here next Saturday. It was revealed yesterday when the couple filed notice of their intention to wed. The ceremony will be performed in the Little Church Around the Corner, scene of many notable Filmland weddings. The actor and his bride will embark for Honolulu on their honeymoon immediately after the wedding.

Rich Clubwoman, 64, Divorces Mate, 34

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP.)—Mrs. Sarah V. Brown Deynzer, 64, wealthy Evanston clubwoman, yesterday won a divorce from George Deynzer, 34.

Mrs. Deynzer charged her young husband frequently was host to parties attended by gay young women.

MRS. INMAN'S EX-ATTORNEY TO TELL OF WIRE TAPPINGS

RENO, Nev., March 27.—Promising to be the longest and most bitterly fought divorce case ever heard in Reno, the battle of Walter P. Inman and hiswife, Helene Garnet Patton Inman, was scheduled to enter upon its fifth day today.

The wealthy heir to the Duke tobacco fortune, who is seeking to divorce his pretty wife, daughter of a Kokomo (Ind.) minister, faces a counter attack from his wife as soon as testimony in his case is concluded. There was no indication today how soon Inman's case would be concluded. The Carroll divorce case, two years ago, holds the longevity record for Reno divorce actions, running over a month.

Emanuel Cohen, former attorney for Mrs. Inman, who negotiated the $75,000 separation agreement which Mrs. Inman will seek to have set aside, was expected to be further cross-examined today on defense allegations that Mrs. Inman was bothered by detectives, had her telephone wires tapped and was forced to have the locks of her apartment changed.

Cohen declared it was understood at the time the separation agreement was signed that Inman probably would seek a divorce in Reno. He also admitted that Mrs. Inman had complained that the amount of money allowed her was too small. He said when he advised her to stand by her agreement, she obtained another attorney. Mrs. Inman is expected to demand a settlement of $250,000 in her cross complaint action.

submerged in the desire to do a better community job.

Duplication Eliminated

THIS finer spirit, after several abortive attempts at expression, culminated in the formation in January, 1922, of the Pittsburgh Federation of Social Agencies. This is a co-operative organization composed of more than 100 social, philanthropic, educational, character-building and corrective agencies, both public and private. An instance of the possibilities of co-operative effort is seen in its clearing house of information regarding applications for assistance from any of the member organizations, whereby duplication of service is reduced to a minimum. The main function of the Federation, however, is the proper adjustment of the programs of service rendered by its members. Needs formerly unmet have been provided for by the enlargement of the scope of existing agencies or, in rare instances, by the establishment and encouragement of new organizations. On the other hand, the Federation has performed a very valuable community service by discouraging a number of new projects which were not essential and whose objects could be attained as well or better through the medium of agencies already established.

Other important developments in the local field of philanthropy have been the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies and, more recently, the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh. The Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, combining under one control all the social agencies of Pittsburgh managed and supported by and for the benefit of the Jewish people of this community, was founded in Janary, 1911. This Federation was the first to demonstrate in Pittsburgh the benefits to the participating agencies and to the community as a whole of a joint annual campaign for funds, and of the coordination and co-operation that follow as a natural result of the mutual understanding and mutual support which the common interest of a joint financing project engenders.

Blazing the Trail

SIMILAR to the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, but on a broader community basis with no racial or religious limitations, is The Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh. This came into being in the spring of 1928, following several years' discussion and intensive study of the methods followed and the results obtained in other cities by co-operative financing of social agencies.

The organization of The Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh was the first "community" movement embracing principles successfully demonstrated in other cities and designed to cope with the tremendous task of stimulating, in a vast population, interest for support of a necessarily intricate program of helpfulness. During its first year The Welfare Fund numbered 25 participating members which, though only a portion of the total number in Allegheny County eligible for membership, blazed a trail for others to follow. In November, 1928, the first annual campaign of The Welfare Fund met with such almost universal approval that the goal of approximately $1,000,000 was more than reached. Probably the present year will see other agencies enlisting under The Welfare Fund banner, with possible additions from year to year, until Pittsburgh will present to her sister cities a social structure with a solid background of popular support and able to meet successfully the perplexing social needs of a great metropolis.

Business Adopts Idea

ONE important effect of these co-operative movements is that their very size enable them to capture attention and to impress upon the consciousness of the community a new concept of the importance of philanthropic enterprises and, also, a realization that the support of charity, in its broadest sense, is the privilege as well as the duty not of the wealthy alone, but of every right-thinking citizen. Because, too, of the size and larger relative importance of these federated bodies, "business" is recognizing the vital character of social service. Social service needs the lessons of business; business needs and benefits by the results of social service. The existence of this mutuality of interest, long claimed by the social service agencies, is now admitted by business concerns generally. The establishment of welfare departments in many of the larger corporations is striking evidence of this new attitude.

The recent agitation for the proposed Metropolitan District, while it may not—as many had hoped and expected—result in an immediate merging of the present City and County welfare departments, has had the effect of emphasizing forcibly the fact that Allegheny County is, after all, a single community. The interrelationship of all the municipalities in the county is very intimate, especially so where social service is concerned. The problem of one is frequently the problem of others or of all; the service rendered in one should be available to all.

Looking Ahead

With the Metropolitan District a reality we may reasonably expect, in due time, a unification of all the public welfare activities of the consolidated city. And in the case of the welfare organizations now operating under private auspices, the widening of the field and the increase of demand for service will render imperative what up to the present has been considered by some, at least, to be merely desirable—a closer cooperation and co-ordination of effort.

From the standpoint of community social welfare, Pittsburgh—the new Pittsburgh—will have a difficult and vitally important problem to solve. That that problem will be intelligently attacked and more than adequately solved seems to be assured by the demonstration which our social service agencies have given within recent years of a desire and an ability to work together for a common end.

"In union there is strength."

TEACHERS URGE FLAG CONTEST AS SCHOOL AID

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Two state branches of the National Education Association have indorsed the annual flag project of the United States Flag Association as one that should be included in their school programs next year, Col. James A. Moss, president general of the association, announces. This action was taken at the recent meetings of the state education associations in Raleign, N. C., and Columbia, S. C.

The project also will be considered at meetings of many other state associations this year. Those in North and South Carolina are the only ones to which it thus far has been presented.

While complete details of next year's program have not been worked out, it probably will follow closely this year's plan, being sponsored by the Hearst newspapers. The two boys and two girls whose answers to questions about the flag, and whose essays on "Old Glory's Greatest Glory" are nearest perfect, will receive a free trip around the world, together with complete wardrobes and spending money. Others will receive free trips to patriotic shrines in the East, scholarships and other educational allowances, while medals will be distributed to thousands.

A quarter of a million boys and girls throughout the country now are competing for these awards in this great patriotic and educational movement.

Old Gold wins second place at Harvard

Breaking its string of victories, this 2-year old brand runs second to the cigarette established at HARVARD more than 14 years

Two years against fourteen. A comparatively new cigarette against three veteran brands. Youth against age and habit.

Yet OLD GOLD, the youngster, almost won! It defeated two out of three of its veteran contenders . . . and nearly defeated the third!

This is the story of the Public Cigarette Test conducted recently at Harvard, under the supervision of Edward T. Batchelder of the Harvard Crimson Editorial Board.

Time after time, in these comparative taste-tests of the four leading cigarette brands, OLD GOLD has won . . . and won decisively. In fact, with the single exception of the test at Harvard, OLD GOLD has scored an unbroken string of victories.

At Harvard, where pipe smoking is a tradition and the taste is for heavy tobaccos, smooth and mellow OLD GOLD faced its hardest contest. 148 undergraduates were asked to smoke and compare the four leading cigarettes. The brand names were concealed, but the cigarettes were numbered. Only one question was asked: "Which cigarette do you like best?" Answers were given by number, not by brand name.

Yet in the final score, OLD GOLD stood second in its total of "first choices" and barely missed defeating the brand established at Harvard more than fourteen years!

Man o'War, the greatest horse of his time, lost one race. And in its first and only defeat, OLD GOLD, the two-year old, felicitates the fourteen year old victor.

Children Now Gain Sun Vitamin a new way

Ultra-Violet Ray "irradiation" of famous hot breakfast food a new health development

SUNSHINE builds strong, sturdy bodies! That's the health news of the day. Just what the secret of the sun's rays is, scientists have recently discovered. And now a leader among them has found a way to pass it on to you . . . in the famous hot breakfast food—Quaker Farina.

Vitamin "D" is the way science explains the newly-found health secret of sunshine. This vitamin enables the body to build hard teeth, sound bones. Children who get plenty of this vitamin are more apt to be well-developed physically. They have good appetites. Growth is speeded.

When Vitamin "D" is lacking, bones fail to develop properly. Appetite lags. The child is "always having colds." So hard is it to get sufficient sunshine that 90% of city children, authorities say, show signs of "sunshine starvation." For this reason, physicians have long sought a simple, easy way to make more "sun vitamin" available every day.

Now a way has been found. It is by "irradiating" Quaker Farina with Ultra-Violet Light under the Steenbock Process. Quaker Farina is made of the creamy white heart of the wheat. Full of energy . . . it is an ideal hot breakfast for the whole family. Taste and appearance are unchanged. And now it offers a health plus which no other hot cereal can claim! The price is the same as before. NOTE: All Quaker Farina is irradiated although some packages are not so marked.

Sunshine for health! That's the modern rule

German Terms Still Short of Sum Asked

PARIS, March 27.—(AP.)—The experts' committee on reparations semed destined today to continue the informal talk system of arriving at a settlement of size and duration of reparations annuities. Thus far little progress has been made toward an agreement. It was understood today that new German proposals were some better, but still are far short of the minimum acceptable to the Allies.

SCALES GIVES HIMSELF UP IN RUM CASE

Albert H. Scales, Monessen dry agent, indicted by a federal grand jury in the alleged inter-state liquor conspiracy, gave himself up here yesterday to federal authorities who were reported to have been seeking him in three states.

Scales furnished bond for trial and explained that he had been attempting to find Archie Negleman, another enforcement agent and Scales' co-defendant. Scales said his search had been futile.

Bench warrants for the arrest of 20 persons in the alleged conspiracy were issued yesterday. This, it was explained, followed failure of the defendants to renew their bonds for court trial after their indictment. Sheriff Arno S. McClellan, of Greene County, is among the defendants.

Landing Field Need Stressed in Address

Pittsburgh's stressing need in the promotion of aviation is landing fields, Col. H. C. Frey, Jr., informed the Exchange Club members at their luncheon yesterday. Allegheny County lacks proper terrain for forced landing and fields within every 10 miles are necessary, he said. The Pittsburgh to Washington air mail loop, now being considered and backed by the Exchange Club, was cited as an important link in furthering local air service.

Sign This Petition and Help to Cut Taxes

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

To the Congress of the United States:

We, the undersigned, respectfully urge that the Congress of the United States give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all income taxes on all earned incomes such as salaries or fees, or commissions for personal services. We urge this because of the many instances where wage or fee or commission earners sometimes have just a few years of good incomes and prior to and after that period have substantially less incomes. Their period of better earnings which might give the average wage earner a chance to accumulate some capital is heavily taxed and they seldom have a new opportunity for the accumulation of savings which might tend to make more useful citizens of them.

Labor in general, lawyers, doctors, architects, clerical workers, salesmen, dentists, engineers, journalists, accountants, actors, motion picture actors, singers, musicians, and all the other professional people are in the same plight in the matter of earned income as distinguished from earnings on capital, and since they represent a great percentage of the citizenry of the country, we beg the gravest consideration of this proposition. Each signer below hereby enrolls as a member of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph League for the Downward Revision of Taxes on earned incomes and will work with that newspaper toward the end stated.

Permission is hereby granted the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph to list the signer in the proper Labor, Clerical or Professional Division of the said League for presentation of our signatures to the United States Congress for the stated purpose.

The signer is not obliged to make any kind of contribution or to do anything except to give his moral support to this movement.

ECKER, ONCE $4 CLERK, TO HEAD INSURANCE CO.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Frederick H. Ecker, first vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, yesterday was elected president to succeed the late Haley Fiske.

Robert Lynn Cox, second vice president of the company, and president of the New Jersey State Board of Education, was made vice president to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Ecker's elevation.

Mr. Ecker's election was the climax of a 46-year association with the Metropolitan which began in a $4-a-week clerkship.

BEGAN AT 15

As a 15-year-old office boy for a law firm having offices in the building with the insurance company, Mr. Ecker coveted a job with the Metropolitan and determined to become affiliated with it. Repeated applications eventually got him a place as a mail boy.

When he was 25 Mr. Ecker was placed at the head of the bond and mortgage division of the organization.

Mr. Ecker became chief financial officer of the company after a quarter-century of service. In 1919 he became vice president.

OF MILITARY ANCESTRY

Mr. Ecker is a director of the Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Western Railway, Western Pacific Railway, Wheeling and Lake Erie Railway, American Express Company, United and Foreign Securities Corporation, Finance Company of Great Britain and America, Ltd., and the New York Casualty Company, and trustee and vice president of the Union Dime Savings Bank.

He was born in Phoenicia, N. Y., August 30, 1867, the descendant of one of Napoleon's generals and the son of a Civil War veteran.

Lenten Sermonette

By the REV. DR. LYMAN EDWIN DAVIS,
Editor of the Methodist Recorder.

THE closing events of our Savior's life, including His Gethsemane and His Calvary, are but different chapters of the same story with His triumphant resurrection. The midnight of our Lord's death on the cross seems but a brief and fleeting hour from the noonday of His prophetic triumph over the grave. And herein is symbolized and embodied the whole drama of human existence. The cross is always interwoven with the crown. The sorrows of life are found in the same chalice with life's brightest joys. But, thanks be to God, the joy and the triumph of the Christian faith finally displace the sorrow and the pain; and in the very midst of our Gethsemane, just when the world's woe seems more than we can bear, lo, the Easter lilies! And when once the vision comes, when once the lilies bloom in the gardens of the heart, life has forever a new and eternal meaning. It is not for one little day of triumph that Jesus lives again. He is alive forever more! "And because He lives, we shall live also!"

Campaign Pressed By Lloyd George

LONDON, March 27. — (AP.) — David Lloyd George last night continued the liberal campaign while announcement was made that Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin would not make known the election program of the Conservatives until after Winston Churchill delivers his budget statement on April 15. The conservative tactics have created a suspicion that the government may be depending upon some amelioration of the present heavy taxation to provide it with campaign ammunition.

HIS 'POWER WITH WOMEN' LED TO SLAYING, WIFE TELLS

HARTFORD, Conn., March 27.—(INS.)—Accepting her imprisonment with the same calm indifference which featured her telling of the slaying of her husband, Harry Adams, Mrs. Olive Adams sat in her prison cell here today and told of the events leading up to the death.

There was nothing of emotion as she told of placing a chloroform-soaked handkerchief over her husbands face as he lay in bed beside her and of watching him until he became still and cold.

"It had to come some time, why not then," she said, "I feel free, free for the first time since I married Harry 12 years ago.

"He was unfaithful to me and beat me but the cruelest torture was when he would bring his women into the house and force me to cook for them and then send me out to the movies with my son, telling me the hour at which I could return," she said.

She explained that Harry had a strange power over women and was a close student of Buddhism and Schopenhauer. Selections from "The Bhavavadgito," a sacred Buddhsist book, were read at Adams funeral yesterday.

Mrs. Nellie B. Adams, mother of the slain man, injected a different angle into the case today when she described alleged motor trips with different men she says her daughter-in-law made.

"These trips sometimes lasted a full day and half the night," Mrs. Adams said. "I saw things of which I did not approve, but I didn't breathe a word of it, even to my son.

"Even now, I feel more sorry for Olive than for Harry, as he is at peace and she must bear the stigma," Mrs. Adams said.

The families of the couple are close friends in Stoneham and the murdered man's mother and the imprisoned woman's father are caring for the small son of the couple.

Weather Conditions.

A ridge of high pressure extends from the Middle Pacific coast eastward over the central plains to the Middle Atlantic states, while lows are centered over Minnesota and northward in Western Ontario, and south of Texas. This distribution of pressure is producing considerable cloudiness over the southern half of the country, with showers in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

It is slightly colder than yesterday over the Atlantic Coast states and the Gulf states, and warmer elsewhere. The temperatures east of the Rocky Mountains are generally normal or above.

River Conditions.

The Allegheny River is now stationary at Warren, but at other gauging points, Warren to Pittsburgh, it is still rising slowly. The Monongahela River is about stationary. Stage at Franklin is 9.1 feet; Lock No. 7, 11.8; Pittsburgh, 16.1; Dam No. 2, 7.9; Dam No. 6, 16.1; Dam No. 9, 15.8, and Dam No. 12, 14.3. The Ohio River will continue to rise slowly. About 17.5-foot stage may be expected at Pittsburgh Thursday morning.

ACTION ON LONG IMPEACHMENT DELAYED

BATON ROUGE, La., March 27.—(AP.)—Action by the Louisiana house of representatives on the impeachment resolution against Gov. Huey P. Long was deferred until tomorrow to permit preparation of a set of rules to guide the procedure.

Supporters of the impeachment resolution were held back by the raising of a point that the resolution was out of order as it was not included in the governor's call for the special session.

The senate met and adjourned after a brief session to await action by the house.

The most sensational charge against the Governor is backed up by an affidavit from Harry A. Bozeman, ex-prize fighter and former friend of Gov. Long, who swore that the Governor had approached him and asked him to kill State Representative J. Y. Sanders, Jr., who is unfriendly to the Governor's administration.

The Governor is also charged with attempted bribery and with misuse of public funds. It is charged that he let contracts illegally and that he removed school officials and teachers when their politics did not coincide with his own.

It was also charged that he backed the militia in looting private property and attempted to force official bodies to follow his dictation as the price of carrying through legislation which they desired.

Further it was charged that the Governor attended parties where liquor was consumed "thus holding the state up to shame in that he flouted the Federal and State Constitutions."

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP.)—The grave of Mrs. Emily Kiely's husband in the Lutheran Cemetery of Niles Center, always has been kept fresh with blooms.

The Widow Kiely, despite her 72 years and enfeebled health, has trudged the many blocks to the cemetery, carrying her tribute of flowers.

Yesterday she went as usual to the burial place. Several hours later she had not returned, and a niece, Mrs. Fred Lumpp, went to hunt for her.

Mrs. Kiely's body was found in the pool of an abandoned gravel pit.

STIMSON VIEWS STATE ISSUES AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—Henry L. Stimson lost little time after his arrival here yesterday from New York in beginning the task of acquainting himself with the questions with which he must deal as secretary of state.

Within less than half an hour after he stepped from the train at the Union Station he was in conference with President Hoover and then spent the remainder of the afternoon at the State Department conferring with Secretary Kellogg and Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, head of the American delegation to the preliminary arms conference to open next month at Geneva.

Mexican affairs and the arms conference were the first subjects to which Mr. Stimson gave attention as they are the most important of the current problems.

GUEST OF HOOVER

Mr. Stimson, who will take the oath of office late Thursday, is to be a guest of President Hoover at the White House during the remainder of the week and so will have ample opportunity for discussions with the chief executive on many subjects.

Arriving here at 2:15 p. m., Mr. Stimson was met at the train by Secretary Kellogg. From the station the incoming Secretary was accompanied to the White House and then went to the executive offices where he was welcomed by the President.

A subject outside of the jurisdiction of the State Department on which President Hoover will consult his new Secretary of State is that of a successor as governor general of the Philippines.

Home Ordered Padlocked One Year

NORFOLK, Va., March 27.—(AP.)—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Waterfield was ordered padlocked for a year in Federal Court yesterday by Judge D. Lawrence Groner, under authority of the prohibition act.

Three days were allowed for Waterfield and his wife to remove furniture, fixtures and other effects from their home. After that period a United States marshal will close the residence and a garage at the same address for a year.

The Waterfields were arrested in a raid by Federal prohibition agents and local police two weeks ago, along with five others alleged to have been employed by them in selling whisky.

YOU CAN'T DYE with Good Intentions

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye; but to do work you are proud of takes real anilines. That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market! Cost more to make? Surely. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look; of streaking or spotting. See that they take none of the life out of the cloth. Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. Remember this when you buy. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

WONDERS OF OLD WORLD VIEWED FROM ZEPPELIN

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY,

Special Correspondent Aboard the Graf Zeppelin.

(Copyright, 1929, in United States, Canada, Great Britain and Continental Europe, except Germany, Cuba, Mexico and South America by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Copyright in Germany by Scherl Verlag and Verlag Ullstein. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

ABOARD GRAF ZEPPELIN, March 27.—Like impressions flashing shuttle-wise through a richly-colored tapestry, yesterday's experiences gleam brilliantly through a gray haze, lending to the Mediterranean the pastel beauties of the opal in contrast to its usual vivid turquoise gold of the southern skies, the sea and the flaming sun.

Lady Hay

Dawn for us broke over Crete, Homer's "Island of a hundred cities," and the birthplace of Zesus, God of the Gods.

Crete's snow-clad mountains broke through the blurred horizon as the passengers used their morning chiefly in the occupation of addressing postcards.

But even the most enthusiastic could not hope to compete with the passenger who brought 1,000 postcards aboard, each bearing a half-dollar stamp.

CRUISE OVER ASIA

Cyprus, against whose restless shores Venus was tossed to the world on the foaming crest of a wave, heralded the arrival over Asia.

Zeppelin pleasure cruises to the world's playgrounds are now only a matter of organizing a working fleet of zeppelins. There is an entire absence of strain, nervousness and discomfort, emphasized by an air of general relaxation and jollity as the passengers chatted, wrote, played chess and cards, and even danced to the music of the fine gramophone.

That's making history—dancing in mid-air.

LUXURIOUS LUNCH

Dr. Eckener presided over a luxurious lunch, which began with caviar and pate de foie gras, and finished with an elaborate sweet dish of fruits.

Spirits were on the crescendo as we neared Palestine. Haifa went mad with excitement at the sight of the graceful silver streak looming large and hanging low in the sky over massed groups of peasants. Beneath us, they were clustering around their little sun-baked mud houses as we swept over village after village.

The moon of Asia mantles in scintillating magic Jerusalem, the cornerstone of three faiths, whose monuments are rent with agony; whose streets were watered with sweat and blood; whose wounds and sores are healed by the sweet balm of hope and trust.

BELOW SEA LEVEL

Rising to the skyline Elijah of old, and skimming the Holy Sepulchre and David's tower, the zeppelin pierced the darkness toward the Dead Sea, which is some 1,200 feet below sea level.

Flying at a height of about 900 feet, we were actually 300 feet below sea level in the giant airship. To fete this epoch-making, fantastic achievement — the lighter-than-air craft navigated below sea level as if it were a submarine.

Accordingly, after accomplishing such a feat, we toasted Dr. Eckener, drinking to his health and in acclamation of the Graf Zeppelin.

By the light of Heaven's own lantern, the airship is racing South toward Egypt. To the regret of all on board and also the the Egyptians, we will be unable to see the pyramids and sphinx and in turn be seen gliding phantom-like in the pale moonlight.

Coal Land Owners Seek Lower Taxes

MASONTOWN, Pa., March 27.—Taxes in some parts of Fayette County will be reduced if coal operators are successful in their efforts to secure a reduced valuation of coal acreage. In petitioning for a smaller assessed valuation, it is stressed that coal today is not worth so much as it was at the time some of the valuations were made.

Nuts for Ship's Fuel

THE French steamship Belgrano, Marseilles-bound from Beirut, used up every ounce of coal fighting a fierce sea. The cargo of nuts was utilized as fuel and proved to be a very good substitute. The ship reached port safely.

Husbands—Before and After Taking

DINING in public with your divorced husband is the latest fad in London. Well—why not? Just because you are tired of eating breakfast opposite a man every morning, is no reason why you should not enjoy eating dinner with him, occasionally.

A girl who wants to be popular should take her "line" from a good French waiter. That subtle way of making a man feel superior, and that you are just hanging on his next word is 50 per cent of the game!

* * *

The only authentic Scotch joke is the one your husband brings home in a bottle, with a gilt "pre-war" label and a turpentine taste.

Many a woman never knows what a splendid English vocabulary her husband possesses until she drags him out to a dinner party and hears him chatting brilliantly with a lot of other women.

A popular bachelor is usually a man with every sort of complex except the inferiority kind.

A certain group of male university students have frankly announced that they intend to marry for money. Who wants to buy a nice, fresh boy? Ladies! Ladies! Here is your chance to doll up your parlor with the cheapest decoration on sale!

* * *

After marriage, most women seem to think that if they eat enough spinach and cut out potatoes, they will never need to worry about their sex appeal.

"Henpecked husbands live longer than other men," says a London physician. Of course, they do! Every man needs a back-seat driver to make him keep his eye on the road, his hand on the wheel, his foot on the brake, and his mind off the other women.

Girls take such awful chances in matrimony! But, dear me, that's the only kind they get, these days!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The New Baby

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it considered good form to send one's friends birth announcements announcing the birth of a child? If you approve of this practice, will you kindly suggest what kind of an announcement is considered the most correct?

READER.

YES, this announcement is in good form, though not very much done. The best form for doing it is the form of greatest dignity as far away as possible from the "stunt" announcement that carry no dignity.

The only really good form is the use of the engraved "Mr. and Mrs." card, of generous size, with the white (all-white) small card attached with the narrowest of white ribbons. The best form dictates, too, that neither card should have any color on it—pink or blue or any other color. The baby card may be engraved (it usually is), or it may be written. On it is the name of the baby, usually, but, if the child has not been named, the words "A daughter," or "A son," may be written on it. Often the formal title of the newcomer—"MISS" or "MASTER"—is engraved before the name. Usually too, the date of birth is engraved or written in the lower left corner. This is all the information that it is good taste to write. It is not good form—no matter what kind of cards you send—to write the weight of the baby, or where it was born.

Informal Notes

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married shortly, and the religious ceremony will only be witnessed by my mother and father and my intended husband's mother and father. After the ceremony there will be a supper at my home for about thirty-five people, consisting mostly of the immediate families. What form of invitation shall I use to invite these people for supper?

W. C. D.

FOR an invitation of this kind the informal note would be the best form. Something like this, written by your mother, as hostess:

Dear Mary:

Margaret and Bob are to be married on Wednesday, the first of June, in the chapel of the —— Church, and only Bob's mother and father and Margaret's father and I are to be at the ceremony. But I do want to plan for an informal supper, after the ceremony, at our home, so that their close friends may come and offer their good wishes. We all want very much to have you and Tom come—will you? It is to be at our home, at 8 o'clock on "the" first. Do say that you will both come.

Dearest wishes from us all to both you dear friends.

Cordially yours,
ALICE BROWN UNDERWOOD.

Giving Away the Bride

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In the event that a bride's father is not living, would it be proper for her maid of honor to give her in marriage, or would it be better form for an uncle or some other near relative of the bride to do this?

DOT.

IT would be better for the bride's brother, if she has one, to give her in marriage, or her uncle or some other male relative of the bride. It is not good form for the maid of honor to give the bride in marriage.

Horoscope

Thursday, March 28

THE sidereal operations for this day, both by mutual and lunar aspect, must be read as portentous. There is augury of many phases of calamity and disturbance, physical as well as concerning business interests. These menacing conditions may be mitigated by prudence and wariness. It will be a particularly lively day, with much ado about contracts and arrangement of affairs, and there is prospect of an unforeseen change; but these should not be engineered with undue haste, impetuosity or precipitancy. Discretion, calmness and control may save the day.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year calling for the utmost calmness, good management and wise counsel in order to keep affairs from calamitous conditions, which menace the physical well-being as well as other interests. Affairs will be lively and interesting, with some opportunities for change and new contracts or agreements; but these hold possibility for disaster, unless calmness and control be exerted.

A child born on this day may have a tendency to rash and impulsive actions, but will be versatile and clever.

No accidents are so unlucky but that the prudent may draw some advantage from them.—Proverb.

Spring Cleaning -:- -:- By Truda Dahl

WHAT visions of upsetedness the words "spring cleaning" bring before us! Everything topsy-turvy, sketchy meals, can't find anything! How we dread it all! All except those to whom Spring cleaning means but the polishing up of a few loved possessions that are going to make the Spring and Summer the happiest time of the year.

For instance, take Mr. Man and his canoe! He can hardly wait for the frost to leave the air before he drags out the canoe and goes carefully over it to see that it doesn't leak and give it a coat of paint that will make it look brand new. How he loves every second which he spends in it! More thought and care are put into the tending of the canoe than most anything else, for as he fixes it up for the season he sees before him the faces of those whom he will ask to share it with him. One by one they float in dreamy beauty before him and they but add to the joy of the task. For one of them is going to be THE one of all the world, and as he works he wonders which it will be!

A canoe is certainly one of Cupid's chief aids to Love and Romance. So when you see the "Spring cleaning" taking place you may be sure that before long another romance will begin and two hearts will sing their love song as the old canoe floats dreamily down the moonlit waters—"forgetting the world, by the world forgot."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Vacations Too Often Tax Physical Health.

DR. COPELAND

IN a magazine the other day I saw this joke. Somebody asked the overworked doctor why he didn't take a vacation. "I can't just now," he said, "my patients need me—they are beginning to come back from their vacations."

This is funny, but the story has a real point. Too many persons abuse their bodies and impair their health by the excesses of a vacation. It is too bad, but it's true.

A fine gentleman was in my office yesterday. He told me an interesting thing about the National Grange. I do not belong to that organization, but if the ritual is as sensible all along as in its closing, I'm for it.

The meeting is said to end with this admonition from the master of the grange: "Be temperate in all things—in eating and drinking and speaking, also in work and recreation."

That is fine. I am sure every sensible person will applaud the sentiment.

We have come in these days of discussion over prohibition to think of "temperance" as having to do merely with drinking of alcoholic liquors. No one can doubt that the abuse of alcohol has caused a shocking amount of misery and human suffering. But that is not the only form of intemperance that has caused individual distress and shortened many a life.

Intemperance in eating and in working is responsible for ruined lives. It has made a wreck of many a splendid man and spoiled the career of many a woman.

No matter what it is that you do; if you are not temperate about it there is trouble ahead. The grange knows this. Everybody should know it and be governed accordingly.

We hear more or less about these types of intemperances. But how often does somebody warn you to be temperate in your recreations?

To be frank about it, I am much concerned about the abuses of recreation. Many a business man thinks he is treating his body well when he spends every week-end in the country.

He chases to the station to catch an express train to some delightful spot. He hustles into his sport clothes like a fireman on call to a three-alarm fire. He rushes to the courts with his heart all a-flutter and indulges in a fast and furious game of tennis.

Next morning he plays golf till noon, takes a horseback ride later, plays cards or dances half the night, as he did the night before. By the time he gets back to town Monday morning he is a wreck, requiring all the days till the next Friday afternoon to get back into something approaching normal condition.

A vacation is too often a composite of such pictures. No wonder the doctors can't take their vacations till late in the season.

Let's think it over. You need no more than the suggestion. Can't we do better this year?

Always Safe

When your Children Cry for It

Here's relief and comfort for crying, fretful, feverish babies or children that you don't need to urge or command them to take. They love the delicious taste of Fletcher's Castoria. Your doctor will tell you it's absolutely safe, so you can give it as freely and as often as needed to keep your children happy and well. A few drops is all it takes to quiet fretful, feverish, colicky babies; relieve their biliousness, gas on stomach, constipation, etc.; soothe them to sleep in a jiffy. For like disorders in older children, you simply use a little larger dose of the same reliable Fletcher's Castoria. Don't use grown-folks' medicine with babies or children, specialists say. Ninety per cent of them recommend Fletcher's Castoria; and thirty years of steadily increasing popularity proves they're right. To protect you from imitations, the Fletcher signature is on every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Marion's Plans for Motor Trip to School Are Threatened.

I WATCHED Lillian narrowly as she tore open the yellow envelope which I was sure contained the expected telegram from Samuel Brixton. But to my great relief, there was no trace in her face or manner of the nervousness, amounting almost to hysteria with which she had received the first message sent her by the former business associate of Marion's father. She was distinctly herself again, poised, ready for any untoward happening, as she passed the message to me after reading it.

"He's running true to form," she commented with a wry little smile. "He always was absolutely reckless about telegraph and telephone tolls. Just read this, sent at regular day rates, no night or day letter here."

"Will be in your vicinity about the eighteenth," it read. "Helen and I are delighted to accept your and Mrs. Graham's kind invitation, though with five in our party, feel it will be imposition. We can stay but one night, however, as we must be at Carolyn's school before the twenty-second. Helen sends her fondest love.

"SAMUEL BRIXTOON."

"If he were only paid by the word, instead of being charged for it, he'd soon amass a fortune," I commented inanely. But my mind was racing forward to the domestic problems involved in the entertainment of five guests, no one of whom I had ever seen before. I had made light of it when Lillian had protested my invitation, but I had a very lively sense of the difficulties before me, nevertheless.

"Exactly," Lillian said. "May I look at that thing again? When did he say they were coming? He's buried the date under such a mass of verbiage that I'm not sure it's there."

"It's the eighteenth," I said.

"The eighteenth," Lillian agreed, reading the verbose message again, then she looked quickly up at me.

"But we have to start for Marion's school early on the twentieth," she said. "The opening day for seniors is the twenty-first. They have to be on hand to greet the new girls who arrive the twenty-second. We are planning to motor down leisurely on the twentieth, and stay all night at a charming country hotel near the school, so that Marion will be fresh and rested for the morning of the twenty-first. If they come the eighteenth, leave the nineteenth and we start the morning of the twentieth, I can see where you'll spend the rest of the week—in the nearest sanitarium."

"You must think very little of my housewifery," I scoffed. "For my part I'm glad he isn't coming until the last minute. It will give you and Marion a chance to take that little trip you were planning before Harry came home."

Into her eyes flashed a look of delight, quickly shadowed by doubt.

"I'm not used enough to driving, or to that car," she said.

"It's time you got used to it," I returned. "It's the only blot on an otherwise perfect ensemble, your dislike of driving."

"Your idea of a perfect day may be driving through New York traffic in a thunderstorm," she said dryly, referring to a memorable experience of mine, "but it isn't mine."

"Who's mentioning New York traffic?" I asked hotly.

She looked at me sharply, then laughed.

"Evidently you have some scheme for me," she said, "which cuts out New York City entirely. All right, go ahead and outline it. I'm in a most tractable mood."

Light furs which get discolored and greasy by contact with the neck can be cleaned with benzine in the ordinary way, the only thing to note being that the piece of flannel applying the spirit must be gently rubbed, always the right way of the fur.

THREE NOTABLE MUSICAL ORGANIZATIONS ON RADIO

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

THREE musical organizations of outstanding prominence in radio broadcasting will entertain listeners tonight.

Back in the days when we first learned how to tune in KDKA with a "honeycomb coil" receiving set we had the pleasure of hearing several times the Westinghouse Employes' Band. P. A. Boyd, publicity engineer of KDKA, says it is the "pioneer band of radio" and we believe he's right. The band will make its first appearance in a series of summer concerts over KDKA at 10:30 o'clock.

Two famous singing organizations will face the microphone. From WJAS at 10 o'clock the Northwestern University Glee Club of 50 voices will be heard in "Song of the Marching Men" and appropriate Easter music. The Georgia Tech Chorus will be featured from WSB at 11:45 p. m.

Of the attractions at WCAE we like best Gertrude Mohr's special Easter program at 6:45 and the Palmolive Hour at 9:30 p. m., featuring the Revelers in "The Blue Room" and "The Owl and the Pussy Cat."

Like No. 3 Engine Company dashing out of its hangar on Webster avenue, the United States Navy Band, WJAS, took us by complete surprise last night with Paul's "Midnight Fire Alarm." It wasn't scheduled. Screaming sirens, the frequent blowing of a traffic cop's whistle, the clang of the fire trucks as they dashed madly along paved streets, portrayed vividly what actually happens when companies are called to a downtown fire.

EAT YEAST IN THIS MODERN FORM

IF YOU ARE RUN DOWN, FAGGED OUT, AND CONSTIPATED

Here's yeast, pure yeast, in a form you'll like. Little tablets with a rich nut-like taste, so delightfully different from the ordinary baking yeast. Swallow the tablets whole or, as most people prefer, chew them like candy.

Take Yeast Foam Tablets for constipation, indigestion, skin disorders, and run-down conditions. There is nothing like them.

Special Notice

For years this yeast has been used and recognized as the standard for vitamin studies by the leading universities of the nation and by the U. S. Government. Its potency is uniform, controlled and guaranteed. This yeast does not ferment or cause gas. Hence it is safe for the children.

Get Yeast Foam Tablets from your druggist. Six tablets in glassine envelope for 5c or the 10-day bottle for 50c. Northwestern Yeast Co., 1750 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago.

NEURITIS

Strike at the Source of Your Suffering with Electro-Magnetism

If you are suffering from neuritis—or from rheumatism—investigate electro-magnetism, the remarkable healing force which has brought quick relief in hundreds and hundreds of cases, many of them here in Pittsburgh.

Mr. W. J. Wymard
6944 Mt. Vernon Street,
Homewood, Pittsburgh, Pa.,
writes as follows:

"I am a railroad engineer—have been for 38 years—but during the last year and a half there have been many weeks I could not work because of neuritis and rheumatism. My knees and shoulders stiffened up so and the pain was so intense that even when I did work I could hardly climb into my engine.

"Now, just a month after getting my Theronoid, my neuritis and rheumatism are things of the past. The pain has long since disappeared and my muscles and joints are no longer stiff and sore. In fact, I am feeling better now in every way."

The Theronoid, which is used right in your own home, brings you electro-magnetism in both of its forms best adapted to restoring health. You simply attach this simple, inexpensive appliance to the light socket and place it about your body for five or ten minutes two or three times daily. Without shock or discomfort of any kind it applies electro-magnetism to help your system remove those poisons that are causing your suffering.

However, we do not want you to spend a cent unless you prove to yourself, beyond doubt, that the Theronoid will do as much for you as it has done for so many others. Visit our offices—anytime between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m.—and use the Theronoid once or several times. Then judge it entirely upon actual results produced in your own case. If you cannot come in, phone for a home demonstration.

Either of these trials is absolutely free and without the slightest obligation on your part.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

THE OVERENDS GO SKATING

CLARENCE OVEREND MRS. OVEREND "BUDDY" OVEREND

The Overends, Meade street, all members of the Pittsburgh Figure Skating Club, as they try a family number on the ice at Duquesne Garden, where the club members meet each Wednesday. Mr. Overend is athletic graduate manager at Carnegie Tech.

Another Bud Names Day For Bow

WOULDN'T you like to shout "I told you so" at all those glum folks who've been acting, all during this trying Lenten season, as though a new amendment had prohibited all social events until next winter? From now until folks leave for their summer homes every day will not offer, of course, so many social diversions that spectators will become dizzy trying to see everything. But we are going to have some social activity at last right here in Pittsburgh.

The most sanguine could not expect much entertaining until Holy Week ends on Sunday with Easter. To be exact, Lent does end at noon on Holy Saturday; and young folks home for Easter will be sure to profit by their release from the Lenten ban on social assemblages.

And there are actually social affairs scheduled for the first week in April, and the first week in April, do you realize, is no farther off than next week?

What's more, the prospect of public sanction of society events has had a most magical effect on many folks; they are planning for spring wedding dates and debuts and all sorts of fascinating things.

Many fathers and mothers of prospective debutantes are naming definite debut dates, now that they are not so concerned with social affairs in their favorite southern resorts.

One date I've just heard of is that for the "coming out" of Martha Edmondson, daughter of the F. W. Edmondsons, of South Negley avenue. Her parents will present her society on Tuesday, November 5.

Martha will be home from the Spence School, by the way, tomorrow morning to spend the holidays with her father and mother.

ONE of the sons of the Norman S. Wooldridges, of South Linden avenue, will be married this spring. His fiancee, Berenice Stengel, daughter of Mrs. John A. Stengel and the late Mr. Stengel, of Newark, N. J., has named Monday, May 13, as the date for her marriage to William Potter Wooldridge, who happens to be the son I'm referring to this time. The wedding will take place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon in the Third Presbyterian Church, of East Orange, N. J. A reception in the Suburban Hotel at East Orange will follow.

EVERY day one sees more members of the school set home for the welcome Easter vacation. Among those I noticed today is Dorothy Jarvis, daughter of the Frank W. Jarvises, of Sewickley, who's a Dobbs Ferry girl. Dorothy will make her bow to society with the buds of 1929.

Another Dobbs Ferry girl home for Easter is Katherine Frazer, daughter of the John G. Frazers, and still another's Lucretia Billings, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Billings. Other Dobbs Ferry girls who'll celebrate Easter at home are Ellinor Reed, daughter of the Samuel Clarke Reeds, and Mathilda Reed, daughter of the William McKennan Reeds. All these girls will make their bows in a few years, I believe.

THE John D. Reillys are home from Miami Beach, did you know? Their daughter, Margaret Mary, who is a Finch School girl, and their son, John D. Reilly, Jr., who is a student at Georgetown University, are home for the Easter holidays.

OF course some folks are making visits in New York just before Easter. Mr. J. Frank Drake, I happen to know, is now in Gotham.

SOME golf lovers are still down in Aiken attending the Southern Cross Cup tournament, which opened Monday. Among the entrants are Eben M. Byers, who won the Aiken Cup last year, and J. Frederic Byers.

THERE are to be several alumni affairs during the Easter vacation, it seems. I told you yesterday about the Spence School dinner and now I hear that the Dobbs Ferry graduates are going to give a luncheon on Monday in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. The guest of honor will be Miss Jane Cushing, who is assistant headmistress of the school. Marjorie Kimball is president of the local alumnae.

* * *

THE annual spring flower garden show, sponsored by the East Liberty Chamber of Commerce, will be held April 12 and 13 in the main lobby of the East Liberty Y. M. C. A., Whitfield street. The Morningside Parent-Teacher Association will take part, and Mrs. P. V. Kline has named a committee including Walter W. Haller, chairman; Mrs. Mary E. Anderson and Victor Rubert, Pennsylvania State College, will send Prof. J. R. Bracken, of the agriculture extension division, and Prof. Emil Kant, extension landscape artist, to give lectures on both days.

MISS BETTY KEARNS, of Hill avenue, Wilkinsburg, entertained with a crystal shower Saturday in her home in honor of Miss Betty Elkin, of Wilkinsburg, whose marriage to Douglass H. Newlands will be solemnized tomorrow. There were 16 guests.

* * *

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE H. ALBERTSON, of Stanton avenue, who have been spending the winter in Florida, are expected home about April 1.

* * *

AMONG the Pittsburghers in Philadelphia are Mr. and Mrs. stopping at the Hotel Pennsylvania. John F. Casey, Jr., and Mr. and Mr.s William F. Marion. They are

* * *

DR. AND MRS. EDWARD W. ZUR HORST will lead the grand march at the annual ball to be given Tuesday night, April 9, by the Mercy Hospital Nurses' Alumnae. Miss Olive C. McNelis is general chairman, assisted by Miss Marian Horner, Miss Hilda McAtee, Miss Grace Yoder, Miss Marjorie Garber, Miss Rebecca Kenny, Miss Helen Bradley and Miss Elizabeth Meehan.

Outlook Alliance To Observe Birthday

THE twenty-second birthday anniversary of the Outlook Alliance will be celebrated with a literary luncheon in the Congress of Clubs on Thursday, April 4. The new members will be welcomed into the club informally. Austin Lee George will speak on investment trusts and the conservation of estates. He will illustrate his talks with a motion picture entitled "Vanishing Fortunes." At 2:30 election of president, first vice-president, corresponding secretary and three directors as well as delegates to the State Federation and the Congress will take place. Mrs. John Colclough and Mrs. E. B. Heyser are chairmen in charge for the day.

AT their meeting in the Congress clubhouse tomorrow, the Housekeepers will view a meat cutting demonstration by Albert Pilgram. Mrs. Ella McCarty is leader and Mrs. Louis Kemler chairman for the day. The club will have its spring card party in Oppenheim-Collins' the afternoon of April 4 with Mrs. A. N. Stallings as chairman and Mrs. William Finlay in charge of the candy sale.

THE crowning of a queen and a mimic bull fight will feature the Fiesta Espanola which Mrs. G. Roy Johnson will give in Syria Mosque the night of April 2 as a benefit for the East End Eastern Star Temple.

MUCH interest centers in the coming junior conference which Mrs. Richard B. Perry, district chairman of juniors in the State Federation, has called for Saturday, April 20, in the Congress of Clubs. The meeting will open at 1 o'clock with a senior discussion of junior problems as the outstanding feature, the juniors to begin their part of the proceedings at 2:30 o'clock. Dinner at 6 will precede a talk by Mrs. Maurice Snyder, of Philadelphia, state chairman of juniors.

EVERETT WARNER, of the fine arts department, Carnegie Institute, spoke on "Fashions in Art" at today's meeting of the fine arts department, Congress of Clubs. Miss Estelle Robertson, a native of Scotland, who has been on the faculty of the American College in Cairo, Egypt, gave a talk on the folk music of her native land, illustrating it with piano selections.

SLIGHTED VETS SEE FOCH BIER

PARIS, March 27.—(AP.)—War veterans of France today had the exclusive privilege of visiting Les Invalides and viewing the bier of Marshal Foch, placed there yesterday in the French republic's sixth national funeral.

This was allowed them by Premier Poincare by way of compensation for his having stopped the march yesterday in front of the bier as it reposed in front of Les Invalides before the war veterans had passed before it.

The veterans, disgruntled at what they considered a slight to their war services and feeling for the dead commander, gathered in front of the Chamber of Deputies and shouted, "down with parliament—drive these slackers out of here."

The Premier explained it was necessary to curtail the march past Les Invalides because the ceremony had already lasted two hours longer than planned, and it was impossible to subject the family, foreign princes and diplomats, and the war crippled to further fatigue.

The government today entered a bill in the chamber of deputies providing an annual pension of 100,000 francs (about $4,000) for Madame Foch, widow of the Marshal. The bill provides that after her death it would be divided among the grandchildren until they attain their majorities.

MENINGITIS ON INCREASE IN U. S.; DEATH RATE GROWS

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—Public health officials said today that cerebrospinal meningitis was prevalent throughout the country, the last reports from state health officers showing 329 cases during the week ending March 16. The average weekly prevalence last year was about 120 cases, and for the year before 30 to 40 cases.

Reassuring against public alarm, officials distinguished between the prevalence shown by reports and an epidemic. They said the disease, which is highly fatal and seems to attack young men particularly, appeared to be wide-spread throughout the world, with large numbers of cases in China, Japan and the Philippine Islands.

The general death rate for the country, it was said, was higher this year. Public health officials believed, however, that this was due largely to the influenza epidemic. The mortality for the week ending January 12 of this year was 20.6 per 100,000 population, the Census Bureau estimated, while the highest weekly death rate of 1928 was 18.1.

The influenza situation, it was said, was now virtually back to normal, only 3,300 cases have been reported last week. The total of reported cases since the epidemic started last fall was 1,800,000, from which it was estimated at least 9,000,000 cases actually existed.

No reason could be given for the increasing prevalence of cerebrospinal meningitis, but public health officials believed it possible that some effect has resulted from ships bringing infected persons from the Orient.

The rosy-cheeked Scots lassie with shining brown eyes, wearing a brown coat and skirt and no hat, was introduced by the Labor leaders, Robert Smillie and James Maxton. She received a warm welcome, the Labor members giving a prolonged demonstration of cheering.

MARY PICKFORD IN DRAMATIC AND TALKING ROLE IN "COQUETTE"

By DOROTHY HERZOG.

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—

"COQUETT," starring Mary Pickford, enjoyed an auspicious newspaper preview several days ago at the United Artists' studio. Fifty or so nomadic paragraphers viewed Mary in her first dramatic role and paid tribute with surprise, superlatives, and applause. It is to be expected that "Coquette," an all-talkie, will establish Miss Pickford foremost among the dramatic artists of the silver sheet. She dared much in this drama of love and tragedy. She'll gain even more.

MARY PICKFORD.

Stepin Fetchit is woeful. Jim Ryan over at Fox called the chocalate screen ace into his sanctum and laid the law down. With the result Stepin can't drive any of his three Cadillacs again. "You're too reckless," Jim stated. "Lawd, Mr. Ryan," drawled Fetchit, "Ah ain't reckless. Ah slows down to 60 miles at everah crossin'." Mr. Ryan listened to no such reasoning. So Fetchit now drives to the studio with a Filipino chauffeur at the wheel.

Lois Hopes For Opera Career

AT last!

It seems that Lois Moran has little interest in the male species. Society demands too heavy a cheerful, entertaining toll to please Lois, whose heart is set on an operatic career when she finishes in pictures and years of study in Europe. Which attitude caused her mother to sigh: "Lois I hope some day you'll meet a man who will give you a thrill."

LOIS MORAN.

Because Lois has been working overtime in two Fox flickers she neglected going to the dentist. She had a day off recently, however, and promptly hied herself to the specialist of grind. She returned home to remark to her mother: "You'll be glad to know I've met a man who gives me a thrill." Mrs. Moran was all ears. Lois resumed: "Yes, when the dentist poked a nine-inch instrument down my tooth and hit a nerve—he gave me a thrill!"

Nancy Welford Has Film Role

Six years ago, Ann Pennington starred in George White's scandals. She has starred in them since, to be sure, but the aforementioned time concerns this paragraph. She had an understudy, of course. The understudy was Nancy Welford. Miss Welford looked—and looks—enough like "Penny" to be her sister. Today, Nancy Welford has been given the leading role of Jerry, in "The Gold Diggers." "Penny" was imported from Broadway to portray a part especially written in for her—that of the prima donna. In the picture, Miss Welford is called upon to understudy Miss Pennington, which may be meat for a philosophical conclusion, or mebbe not. Lilyan Tashman, also featured in "The Gold Diggers," figured she would have a littel spare time ere beginning work, so together with Eddie Lowe off to Agua Caliente she skipped on her initial visit to the spot of American suppressed desires no longer suppressed. Meaning tall glasses, the call of the croupier, the musik (?) of the dice. And could she linger a bit? Nuh, Nuh. She had to beat it back to Hollywood to make technicolor tests for "The Gold Diggers," which will be filmed entirely in colors.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

"Two Bottles of Konjola Gave Me Amazing Relief"

Former Sufferer Had About Abandoned Hope—New Remedy Came to Rescue After All Else Had Failed.

The Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Company (formerly McCulloch's), Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, does not spend all his time telling about the amazing accomplishments of this new and different medicine, Konjola. It is his happy experience to hear the joyous, voluntary indorsements of men and women who have benefited greatly through the use of this amazing medicine, Konjola. Not a day goes by but that he is besieged by those who either wish to know more about Konjola, or who wish to tell others of its wonderful merits. When you think of the proven, verified merits of Konjola, it is not surprising to know that this medicine succeeds in the most obstinate and chronic cases that have defied and resisted all medicines and treatments tried. Naturally Konjola does not base its success on promises, sweeping claims or theories, but on a bed-rock foundation of accomplishments and results. All who suffer and who would find new and glorious health, will be given a world of hope and cheer in the experience of Mr. John Moyta, 1259 Superior Avenue, Pittsburgh. Mr. Moyta made the following statement to the Konjola Man a few days ago:

"Two bottles of Konjola gave me amazing relief—I had about abandoned hope, for all medicines and treatments failed to help me. I had about made up my mind that my case was beyond human aid. I had a severe case of kidney and liver trouble—serious to the extent that I tried everything recommended. Most of the medicines magnified those ailments rather than reducing them. The source of my trouble, I imagine, was indigestion. At times my back pained so dreadfully that I almost went mad. I was always listless; lacked ambition and energy. A day of work found me a physical wreck. So many failures took my faith in medicines and so when Konjola was recommended I did not pay much attention to it.

"I continued to suffer—I was really in a pitiable condition. Steadily I grew worse—any day I expected a complete breakdown. Then I began paying attention to the many local and sincere indorsements of Konjola that were in the papers. I wondered, could Konjola possibly benefit me? As a last chance I determined to find out for myself. Lucky day! Soon this medicine proved to me that it was exactly what I always needed—that I was at last on the road to health and traveling fast. My kidneys became stronger and the pains less severe. A feeling of new strength, energy and ambition surged through my system. With the regulating of my liver, all my troubles vanished and once again I enjoyed glorious health. So you see, Konjola conquered when all else failed. That is why I publicly indorse it."

Just the same old story—success—just another proof, if added proof were necessary, of the exceptional merits of this master medicine. Do not give up hope, but take new courage for Konjola is at hand with a matchless record of triumphs.

binations for such an effect—black and white.

Her three-piece costume will include a black jacket and skirt of rep, cut on simple lines, and tailored blouse of heavy white silk, handmade. Her Cuban-heeled pumps—worn with sheer, dark hose—and monogramed purse, are of black reptile skin, and her helmet-shaped hat of black Bankok straw. Her pointed fox fur will be adorned with fresh white gardenias and her gloves will be white.

Mary Pickford has chosen to be very gay and festive in a lovely ensemble of tomato colored crepe, its flaming hue set og by hat, shoes and gloves in the new biscuit shade, an attractive variety of the yellow beige hues. Spring winds, catching the lower edges of the coat, may allow a glimpse of its biscuit colored lining.

ESTHER'S NEW OUTFIT

The effective combination of blue and white will be worn by Esther Ralston when she attends the Christian Science Church. The jacket suit is of navy rep, with the jacket bound in white. The printed blouse is white on a black background. With this, Miss Ralston will wear a blue felt hat of the new "off the face" variety and dark blue kid shoes.

Miss Vilma Banky's blonde beauty will find harmony in a sun tan Paquin ensemble. The frock is adorned with a scalloped flounce running up the side of the skirt to the hip, and the coat with its summer ermine collar is lined with white satin, which also provides trimming for the entire costume. Hat and shoes in corresponding sun tan shades complete the effect. Miss Banky plans to attend the Church of the Good Shepherd, where she and her husband, Rod La Rocque, were married.

JANET SELECTS BLUE

Janet Gaynor has selected to enhance her charming petiteness a navy blue crepe romaine costume. It is an ensemble featuring a sleeveless coat, outlined with bands of ermine which also appear on the belled sleeves and bodice of the frock. The whole of the circular skirt is hand tucked. With this ensemble, a navy blue balibunti hat and blue kid shoes and gloves to match will be worn.

Wood violet shades have been chosen by Anita Page for an ensemble including a piece-quilt coat with blocks of the different colored silks heavily embroidered, worn over a plain blouse and skirt reflecting the diamond block design. Miss Page's hat will be a youthful orchid straw model, and her slippers beige.

Billie Dove has gone in for more severity in her choice of costume, and plans to wear a black velvet cape ensemble with circular skirted dress and velvet tam-o'shanter. Georgeous double fox furs in platinum will provide a striking contrast to the somber black.

FUN, TRAGEDY, STOCK IN BILLS

The attraction in the Alvin for gala Easter Week will be the latest musical comedy to be produced by the Shuberts, "Boom Boom," which has had a long run in the Casino, New York. The large cast features Frank McIntyre, rolly-poly comedian; and includes Jeanette MacDonald, Nell Kelly, Alexander Callam, Archie Leach and others. The seat sale opens Thursday.

The Nixon, closed this week, keeps open the box office for the seat sale for the engagement of George C. Tyler's "Macbeth," with Florence Reed, Lyn Harding and William Farnum, and a company of 100. It opens Monday night, April 1.

Kenneth Daigneau and Pauline MacLean will appear in the leading roles of "This Thing Called Love," the initial attraction of the George Sharp Players third summer season in the Pitt, opening Easter Monday night. Both have appeared in New York successes and have headed prominent repertoire companies throughout the country.

Will Mahoney asks "Why Be Serious?" in his comedy skit by that name, in the Davis, opening Monday. He is to feature the vaudeville bill coming to that theater.

India Leader Fined For Cloth Bonfire

CALCUTTA, India, March 27.—(AP.)—Mahatma Gandhi, Indian Nationalist leader, was convicted today in court here of defying police orders against destroying foreign cloth and was fined one rupee (about 36 cents). The police charged that the crowd which he addressed started a bonfire into which it threw the English made product.

'MAD' INDIAN FIGHTER, U. S. PRISONER 34 YEARS, FREE

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP.)—An inmate for 34 years in the government hospital for the insane, William J. O'Brien, white-haired veteran of the Indian wars and the Geronimo campaign, is free today to begin a search for a wife and two children he has not seen for more than a quarter of a century.

The 65-year-old veteran was released yesterday by a jury in Circuit Court under habeas corpus proceedings after he had told coherently of his years of detention, many of which, he said, were spent in the "madhouse."

While a young man, O'Brien was serving in the Third Artillery at Key West, Fla., and became involved in a dispute with a lieutenant—now a brigadier general in the Army. He challenged the officer to take off his shoulder straps and have his face slapped and for this breach was sent to a hospital instead of facing a court-martial.

In 1904, after 11 years of detention, O'Brien was permitted to visit the war department to see about some back pay he thought was due him, and while there he engaged in another altercation and threatened a shooting. Again he was committed to the asylum and was detained continuously until the jury released him.

Today, with only the quest for his wife and children around which to mould his remaining years, he is seeking entrance to another government institution — The Soldier's Home.

Boy Wins Parole By Joining Army

John Driscoll, 17, enlisted in the United States Army within a hour after being paroled for three years in Federal Court, after pleading guilty to transporting a stolen automobile from East Canton, O., to Oakmont. The court was in a quandary as to what disposition to make of the case and the boy solved the question himself by suggesting to Probation Officer George O'Brien that he enter the Army. This met with the approval of the parole officer, who accompanied Driscoll to the recruiting station. Driscoll, an orphan, told the court he had taken the machine to return to his home in New York.

Skin Troubles—

pimples, boils, eczema and sallow complexion are usually but symptoms of a deeper, a more dangerous trouble—a lack of the normal count of red-cells in the blood.

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of these outside blemishes, you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

No one can afford pimples

A clear, smooth, lovely skin speaks of rich, red blood within. It is Nature's outward reflection of internal healthfulness.

HAPPY is the woman who has a clear, smooth, flawless skin! Both men and women admire such captivating loveliness.

First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

The way to the Skin is through the Blood

Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin. S.S.S. promotes constructive metabolism (healthy body building). It increases the number of red-blood-cells.

S.S.S.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

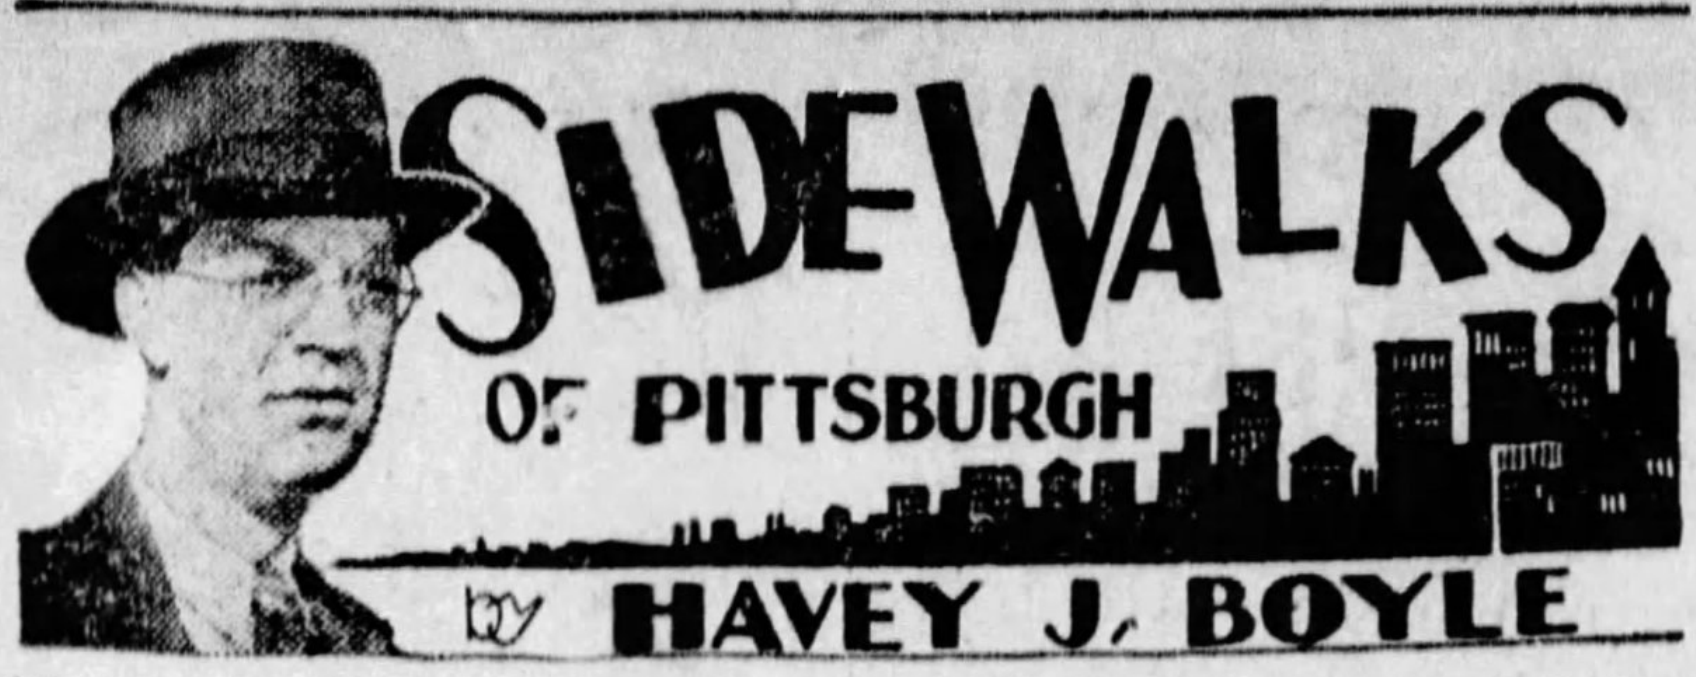
METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

THE reservoir in Highland Park, or rather the path around it, is a favorite training and conditioning grounds for laymen anxious to get in shape or athletes training for a coming event. The distance around the reservoir is approximately a mile.

Any morning around this time of the year you are likely to see a man or a boy jogging around the water supply, removing weight, improving his wind. The custom was started by the late Harry Greb, prize-fighter, who, in those moments when he thought a little training would help him, would go to Highland Park and run a few miles.

Amateur and professional boxers followed the style.

It was entirely fitting that the other morning a gentleman who is to become an umpire in Organized Baseball was seen running around the huge tank. He wants his legs and wind to be in shape, for there is no telling at what moment during the coming season an infuriated mob may decide to chase him out of town. Apparently, he is going to be ready for any such test.

There was a time around town when the sports of the day attended dog-fights. Blooded canines with fighting hearts were stacked against each other and many a dollar exchanged ownership over the result of the fight. Public sentiment and a few arrests did away with the custom, helped along by a reform among the men who, as they used to say, "fought dogs."

When the alert eye of the Humane Society is closed, "cock fights" are staged in the vicinity. There is great secrecy about these events, as there is a law against them, and the men who attend them are subject to arrest and a fine.

In planning those intrigues against the late czar, the Russian Reds were no more secretive than are the boys who plan to attend a "main."

INTO the pit are tossed two "cocks" accoutred with sharp spurs. The battles are short-lived. One or two plunges sees a dead loser, and a game winner. In some of these affairs as much as $10,000 changes hands. A chicken that shows the "white feather" might as well have shown courage in dying, for he always is killed at the hands of his trainer. The "white feather" bird gets his neck wrung. off.

Contrary to the scenes when boxing was illegal and when contestants fought in out-of-the-way barns or on barges and attracted the worst element among the citizenry, "cock fights" attract a well-dressed assemblage, with plenty of money to wager on the result.

I HARDLY KNOW MYSELF !

Persistent raids by watchful guardians of the law have cut down the chicken battles to a low point. Arrests are frequent. One gentleman attends with black goggles and a false beard to avoid identification in the event gendarmes pop in.

* * *

The trade of doorman is booming around the town. The department stores were among the first to make the doorman an institution. He helps the trade in and out of their autos and spots places that are free from the baneful eye of the tagging policeman. Clubs and hotels engaged this form of reception committee and now the bigger apartment houses are going in for an elegant doorman. It must be a good job, for the same faces under the doorman's visor are seen year after year at the same old stand. The man in front of the William Penn Hotel has a distinct air about him. The man in front of the Duquesne Club is one of the best-looking in town. Banks engage the doormen to see that the presidents and the cashiers always have a space in which to drive so they won't have to exert themselves by a long walk of a block or so.

TYPICAL GIRL QUEST NEARS ITS GOAL

The Quest is nearing its goal!

Somewhere in the pile of letters and photographs which will be on the Quest Editor's desk April 1, there will be found the Typical Pittsburgh Girl. Many feel that she will also be the Typical American Girl.

Shortly after April 1, the judges will meet to decide just who she is. They will peruse every nomination and scan every photograph. Probably they will ask several of the nominees to come before them, in order that judges and candidates may become acquainted. THE GIRL THE JUDGES PICK WILL THEN GO TO NEW YORK, at our expense, to compete with girls from the 16 other regions throughout the country where the Typical American Girl Contest is being held.

WEEK IN NEW YORK

In New York, these 17 young ladies will be given a full week of the most attractive recreation money can buy for them—at the expense of the Smart Set Magazine and Hearst papers. At the end of this week, the national judges, nationally known artists, actors, exhibitors, will pick the Typical American Girl.

The judges are: Rosamond Pinchot Gaston, niece of ex-Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania; society woman, actress, intimately acquainted with the American girl of today; Jesse L. Lasky, noted motion picture producer; Vina Delmar, 22, author of the best seller, "Bad Girl," and many short stories; John Golden, producer of such well known plays as "Lightnin'," "Seventh Heaven;" painter of pretty girls, illustrator; Margaret Sangster, an editor of Smart Set; and a seventh member to be selected soon.

These judges will pick the girl who will have the honor and title of the Typical American Girl—and the $5,000 prize!

TIME GROWS SHORT

Send her name, photograph, and a description of her characteristics and appearance to the Quest Editor at once. If you don't want her name and picture published unless she's a winner, mark them "not to be published unless winning," and the Quest Editor will be glad to withhold them.

All appointments for pictures and interviews which it may be necessary to make will be made in the offices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and we can only be responsible for them.

Get your nomination in at once! Hurry! Hurry! Hurry!

Rules of the Quest

1. This is a selective search, not a motion picture popularity or beauty contest. It is an honest and sincere effort to find the Typical American Girl.

2. A National Committee of Judges appointed by Smart Set will make the final decision and make the $5,000 award in New York, at a date set by the publisher of Smart Set Magazine. This committee is composed of Rosamond Pinchot Gaston, Vina Delmar, Jesse L. Lasky, John Golden, Guy Hopp, and Margaret Sangster, Editor of Smart Set, and a seventh member to be selected.

3. A local committee of judges appointed by each co-operating newspaper will select the regional winner.

4. A candidate cannot propose herself. She must be proposed by some individual or organization. This proposal must be sent to the Quest Editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

5. Each candidate's proposal must be accompanied by her photograph, biographical sketch, listing age, weight, height, coloring, education and her social, business and athletic activities. Her qualifications will be considered by the committee of judges appointed by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

6. The minimum age is 17.

MANSION BOUGHT FOR POST HOME

PIONEER SHOW PLACE TO BE REMODELED

The North Boroughs Post, 116, American Legion, has purchased the J. C. Heckman home, 327 South Home avenue, Avalon, an old-time mansion of 22 rooms, for a post home.

It is the intention of the members to remodel the interior somewhat as well as build an auditorium in the rear, with the object of making it a community center.

The Heckman home was a show place of the community in former years. Of frame construction, it sits back from the sidewalk and is in the center of a one-acre plot. The Heckmans have occupied it for 36 years. The purchase price is reported to have been $23,000. The post plans to occupy it next June.

To help raise funds for the purchase of the home, the post will hold the third of a series of "jamborees" April 5 in Avalon Borough Hall. Eric Logan, chairman of the entertainment committee, has arranged for seven boxing bouts. The 50-piece drum and bugle corps of Observatory Post No. 81 will be present. The Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Quartet will provide the music.

ASKS SPOUSE BE RESTRAINED

An injunction to prevent his wife, who is suing him for divorce, from selling or mortgaging the property they had bought for a home, is being sought in Common Pleas Court through a bill in equity brought by Charles F. Bowman, 1814 Brownsville road, against Mrs. Nell H. Bowman, 338 Jucunda street.

The couple were married March 17, 1915, and some time later Bowman purchased the Brownsville property for $8,300, but the deed was made in Mrs. Bowman's name, it being understood that she would hold it for him, he avers. The couple separated December 24, 1927, and on January 18, 1928, Mrs. Bowman filed her divorce suit. Since then, the husband says, she had repeatedly refused to convey the property over to him.

Receiver Named for East End Company

H. M. Oliver has been appointed temporary receiver by Judge James H. Gray, in Common Pleas Court, of the Rosner Company, household furnishings dealers at 5921-3 Penn avenue, in the suit of the L. H. Smith Wooden Ware Company, a creditor.

It is charged in the bill that the Rosner Company has assets of over $25,000, but its credit has become impaired through it being unable to pay interest on current indebtedness. It is stated the assets are in excess of the liabilities and if the company's affairs are properly administered it will be possible to pay off the debt and leave a substantial residue for the stockholders.

Want Council to Pave Felicia Way

The grading, paving and curbing of Felicia way from Oakwood street to Neuman way is authorized in an ordinance to be considered by Council in the Public Works Committee.

Construction of a sewer on Western avenue, between Bidwell and Fulton streets at an estimated cost of $5,000 has been received by Council.

BOY BURNED, GETS $5,000

A verdict of $5,000 has been awarded Paul Warren Zerr, 14, of Crafton, by a jury in Common Pleas Court, in his suit against the Duquesne Light Company for injuries received when he came in contact with a live wire. His father, George A. Zerr, was awarded $3,000 by the jury. The boy was 12 when the accident occurred on June 15, 1926. The wire hung over a tree from a pole in Lincoln avenue, Crafton, the free end being near the sidewalk. The boy's right hand was burned so that the little finger had to be amputated. His right leg was also burned. The plaintiffs had sued for $45,000.

Visitation Drive Dinner Arranged

The third visitation-evangelism dinner for this month will be held by the Mt. Lebanon Baptist Church, of Dormont, tonight. The dinner will be served in the dining room of the church, Alabama avenue, by the Philathea Class. After a short devotional service, the workers will make personal calls to the homes of members in the constituency. A large attendance is expected.

Today's Flagism

It was on March 27, 1513, that Ponce de Leon, the intrepid Spanish explorer, discovered Florida. Lured to that wild region—of the unexplored southeast seaboard by reports that "the fountain of youth" was to be found there, de Leon found not the fabled fountain but merely a charming region which eventually was annexed to the new American republic—and represented by a star in Old Glory.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, March 27.

Hoover gets rid of something useless every day. Wait till he sees the Senate and Congress.

He sunk the Mayflower without warning, took the White House stables and made a garage for fishing poles out of it, sent six horses to a museum that had never been able to be ridden since Taft got through with them, traded the mechanical horse for a medicine ball and makes everybody catch it before they can get any breakfast.

That's to discourage Senators eating there. Imagine Heflin and Blease throwing that thing at Moses and Reed of Pennsylvania.

Yours, WILL.

P. S.—Federal Reserve sunk the stock market after two weeks of warning and brought the sucker crew in destitute and manacled.

Policewoman Nellie McDonald testified Wisniewski had been arrested 13 times on charges brought by various women. He was held for further investigation by Magistrate A. D. Brandon.

SENATE ADOPTS MOTHERS' AID

HARRISBURG, March 27.—The Senate today passed the Harris bill, which now goes to the House, to appropriate $3,497,522 for the Mothers' Assistance Fund. This legislation, sponsored by the Mothers' Pension League of Allegheny County, would provide funds to care for nearly 2,000 widowed mothers and 6,000 children in Pennsylvania who have been on the waiting lists for five months to two years. In Allegheny County 350 families are on the waiting list.

The bill, introduced by Senator Frank J. Harris, was drawn up by the State Department of Welfare and would change the method of allocating the funds among the various counties according to their need, rather than on a basis of population as heretofore.

This plan is said to be favored by Gov. John S. Fisher, W. L. Mellon and other leaders.

FALL AND DOHENY CHAT AS OLD PALS AT RODEO

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 27.—(AP.)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, said yesterday that he and E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, had discussed "horses, books, dude cowboys and Mr. Doheny's experiences as a prospector in Arizona 50 years ago and nothing more" in a meeting here.

Doheny was taking the five children of his son, E. L. Doheny, Jr., who was murdered in Los Angeles recently, to a rodeo and invited Fall to accompany them, the former cabinet officer said.

Fall, with his wife and daughter, Mrs. C. C. Chase, of El Paso, came here Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Doheny, their son's widow and their five children, came here Saturday.

"We are old friends," Fall said. "When Mrs. Fall attended the funeral of Doheny, Jr., in Los Angeles, Mrs. Doheny told her she would try to get Mr. Doheny away from the scene of the tragic murder, but we did not know they had come to Phoenix."

The BROADWAY MELODY by Jack LAIT

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Eddie Kerns, song plugger, has written the music for "The Broadway Melody," a big revue to be produced by the famous Zanfield. For two years Eddie has been engaged to "Hank" Mahoney and now he sees his way clear to marry her. She and her younger sister, Queene, are playing in vaudeville and Eddie summons them to New York and tells them he has managed to place them in the revue. They are overjoyed, but Eddie suddenly discovers that he's lost his heart to Queenie who has developed into a startling beauty in the two years since he saw her last. He keeps his secret from "Hank" and the girls turn down a long vaudeville contract for a chance to make good in the revue. Zannie, after seeing the "Mahoney Sisters" perform, decides that he could only use Queenie. She, however, appeals to him to also give her sister a chance in the show.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III.

HANK MAHONEY, still puffing from her furious hair-pulling encounter with the sarcastic blonde chorine who had ruined her tryout before the great Zannie by spilling the contents of her handbag into the wires of the accompanist's piano, was tugging on her dress over her practice clothes. Her features were contorted into a picture of rage, chagrin and resentment. Eddie, bursting with the big news that Zannie had consented to relent—because he wanted Queenie's gorgeous figure in his outfit—slid toward her, smart-Alec triumph blazing in his eyes, to be the first to tell her and thus steal the glory of the victory.

"I wouldn't be in his bum show . . . come on, Queenie, let's get out of this shootin' gallery."

Queenie answered crisply: "Mr. Zannie wants to talk to you."

The change was electric. Hank bristled up, shook back the strings of hair, and took full charge immediately, as became the business manager of the Mahoney Sisters.

"Stay back there—I can handle him better alone," she commanded.

With a little pat in passing, so as to reassure Queenie that no sting was meant, she squirmed through the assembling girls in the direction of Zannie.

"Don't you ever tell Hank, Eddie. Get me?" whispered Queenie.

"Gee, I could kiss you for that," he exclaimed.

His lips trembled. He looked at the lovely girl he had so long regarded only as a younger sister and future sister-in-law. And gooseflesh crept over him, realizing without analyzing, that his reaction was becoming so very different.

"Well—why don't you?" she inquired, without any telltale intonation to lend the line emotional importance.

Eddie never knew why. But, impulsively, he did. And there was ardor in the meeting of their lips. They both drew back, startled. Something had run through them both like a charged current.

Queenie giggled nervously, as though to pass it off. But Eddie's eyes burned with intensity as he stared at the girl, for what he saw and what he felt were combining to give him the sensation of something that was making his pulses pound and his heart hammer. At this moment Hank came running up, breathless—

"We're in. I fixed it," she hoarsed.

She flung her arms about Queenie and hugged her and kissed her. Queenie, somehow, couldn't come back enthusiastically. Her mind was fixed on other things—they seemed more important just then. But she pulled herself together, and answered:

"Marvelous. You're a wonderful fixer, Hank . . . gosh, Eddie, isn't this the berries?"

Eddie was looking into her eyes, past Hank's form, with its back toward him.

"Everything is," he breathed. "Everything — Queenie."

The dance director wrecked the reverie. Through the stage space bellowed his call—

"Kerns! Will you get in here, or is that small-time sister team more important than Mr. Zanfield's 'Broadway Melody?'"

Eddie tore his eyes from Queenie and slowly, lackadaisically, fell into his place before the girls whom he must imbue with the tempo and spirit of his smash song.

As the pianist struck it up he snapped out of his mood and into the swing and verve of the syncopated split-beats, after all, he was the song-plugger, and here was his own number to plug . . . and she would be in it—she—SHE—

And through his mind ran the question: "Why she? Why now was Queenie SHE? He was engaged to Hank. Surely he wouldn't, he couldn't—ah, here came the catchline music, where the soles must hit the floor—one, two, three — one-two-three-four—one, two, three—one-two-three-four-five and bang — one - two - three-four- five, bang-bang . . . Queenie was a peach—not only the most beautiful thing he had ever seen — beautiful enough to make Zannie, the last word as a picker, change a decision and take a flop—

A flop—Hank a flop—Hank, the efficient, being carried by Queenie, let in on sufferance because Queenie was in demand—his Queenie . . . No, not his Queenie . . . he couldn't do that, and neither of course, could she . . .she SHE——

Through all his years to be he was to remember that two-and-a-half minutes. We have all experienced associations of memorable impressions with certain melodies.

And his own melody, jazzing up the jumbled love-song in his heart, intoxicated him.

Eddie Kerns was a hick. The ballads that he wrote and "sold" were technical to him. Never in his life had he sung or put down a sincere line or note. He put the same mushy quaver into a Southern mammy-ballad, though he had never been south of a tryout in Wilmington, as he did in a broken-hearted "squawk" song, though he had never been disappointed in love.

But now his "Broadway Melody" took on a meaning. True, it wasn't romantic. But it was Broadway—his street—her street, now, too—and it did ring with sentiment—maybe not the vine-covered cottage stuff, that he had sung but never seen; maybe not the lonesome or longing or lost-you lyrics that made stenographers cry and tenors famous—but the "Broadway Melody," the song that did things, that brought people together, that——

One-two-three-four-five and bang! One-two-three-four-five bang-bang!

It was over.

"That'll be all for today—mediums at costumer's three-thirty, showgirls, 4 o'clock, ponies four-thirty . . . report here 10 tomorrow morning, and get some sleep tonight—half of you look like you were in a hangover today," barked the director.

Queenie and Hank were in their rooms at the Princeton by then.

Hank was in a delirium of delight; Queenie, strangely, was in a daze of doubt.

"I guess we're bad, huh?" smirked Hank. "Those tramps thought Zannie cut us off without hearing the finish of our act because it wasn't worth listening out. They'll swallow their chewin' gum when they get the lowdown—that he didn't need to see any more . . . we were in and over before we were even through—let 'em laugh that off! Well, this is a day we won't soon forget, eh, kiddo?"

"I'll never forget it," sighed Queenie, her eyes turned out the window, over the murky skies, already streaked with the facets from electric lights in this strange city where the sun is never enough.

Each time the scrape of the elevator door across the corridor without rasped its monotonous message, Queennie's heart jumped, her head swung toward the door, and as the seconds passed and no one came, she turned back again and looked out once more. But at last the sharp ring of the bell startled her, for this time she had not even heard the warning. And, as Hank opened, there stood Eddie.

Hank threw herself on him.

"We're made," she cried, as she danced up and down. "Eddie, my boy, the Mahoney Sisters put it across. Wait till Variety gets across the country and a flock of those hams on the Pantages time and the Finkelstein and Rubin circuit read the hot news—and some o' them house managers that sent in raps in their reports—and a few o' them backers for split-week nickelodeons that couldn't see us for a hundred an' six-bits double—hotsy wowow, it'll knock show business for a nipup."

Eddie disentangled himself. Queenie was looking out again.

"And how does it all hit you, babe?" he called to her.

Queenie didn't turn. He crossed to her, put his hands on her shoulders, and turned her around. She was covering her eyes. He drew down her hands. She was crying.

"Wh-what's wrong?" he asked, speaking with profound emphasis.

"Holy mack'rel—the biggest day o' her young life, an' she's got the weeps," exclaimed Hank.

"Oh, I'm all right," sobbed Queenie, turning on a strained smile. "I'm—s-so h-h-happ-ppy!"

"Attababes," said Eddie, in palpable relief.

"Happy is right," chimed in Hank. "We'll panic 'em in this show, I tell you. We'll get two seasons out of it, anyway. After that we can write our own ticket. By that time Eddie and I'll be married and have a bankroll saved. And, Queenie, you can always live with us—can't she, Eddie?"

Queenie struggled gamely, but again she had to turn her back. Eddie started toward her, but Hank placed a restraining hand on his arm.

"Let her get it out of her system," she cautioned. It'll do her the world of good. I know her. She always cries when she's happy . . . not like me . . . I cry when I'm blue . . . and if you don't slip Hank a li'l kiss right now, I'll show you."

He slipped her the li'l kiss.

But he noticed out of the corner of his eye that Queenie's shoulders were shaking. Maybe she was growing happier!

Bob's Luck By BERTHA R. McDONALD Daily Short Story

DURING her lifetime, Aunt Rachel Carfax lavished so much of her fortune upon her adored nephew, Bob, that she had only $35,000 to leave him, via her last will and testament. This would have seemed princely to most young men, but to Bob Carfax it was, to say the least, disappointing.

Although he never had known the exact amount of his aunt's fortune, he had sensed thoroughly that she had possessed enough to keep him in idleness and luxury all his life. Aunt Rachel was all the mother Bob had ever known.

The young man was particularly disturbed because he realized that to nurture the expensive, luxury-labeled darling to whom he had recently become engaged, as she was accustomed to being nurtured, he would need considerably more than the amount his aunt had left him.

However, Bob was not only optimistic, he was pleasantly enterprising where no manual labor was concerned. Not that he was lazy—he had the best tennis record of any fellow in his club. He was also its long distance champion for swimming, but Bob's notion of enterprise was to finance somebody who had ideas, the brain and the brawn, while he blithely established himself as president of the company, whatever it might be, and gave the concern its prestige.

That is exactly what he proceeded to do until the day his blithness was buried beneath crucial hours of hectic bickering, a stormy crash of disillusionment, when he discovered that his partner was on the high seas, having disappeared with practically the last of Bob's thirty-five thousand in his inside pocket.

The next unpleasantness that confronted him was the necessity of carrying the news to Montpelier, the summer home of the Earleys. He wasn't worrying about how his story would affect Denise but it meant that he must delay telling that hard-boiled old business buccaneer, Bevan Earley, how things stood between one Bob Carfax and the pride of the Earley estates.

Bevan Earley was one of those men who possess the Midas touch. Bob refused to admit, even to himself, that it was business acumen. Be that as it may, Earley succeeded like success and certainly his efforts were not confined to any one line.

At this particular time Earley had taken over the Montezuma, a defunct resort hotel at Montpelier, and actually was making it pay.

All the way out to Montpelier Bob kept feeling mentally the support of Denise's sympathetic understanding. She would inherit millions herself some day so how could the loss of her lover's paltry thirty-five thousand mean anything to her?

The look Denise registered when he told her, however, struck into Bob like a knife. "Of course I release you from your engagement," he told her rather hopelessly.

"Of course that would be rather understood," she returned coldly, dashing his hopes to bits.

"Denise!" he cried brokenly, extending his hands to her openly. "You can't mean that just because my money's gone you—"

"It isn't that," protested the girl. "It never was your money because it didn't cost you any effort. Life always has come too easy to you, Bob Carfax. A man who could lose money as easily as you did that thirty-five thousand would lose other things—faith, character, love. I refuse to be a party to the transaction."

For a moment Bob Carfax saw himself for what he was—a rather worthless piece of humanity. Only Denise Early could have accomplished the feat, but with that instant rebound peculiar to youth, he refused to consider his case hopeless.

"I guess I have lost your faith in me, Denise," he stammered humbly, "but I'll get it back—I've got to get it back. I'm going to work—hard work. I'll be the man you want me to be. I'll earn money. I'll—"

"Oh, can the heroics!" bellowed a deep voice from the doorway. "You wouldn't work in a million years unless you could find some soft snap—some white collar job that would let you keep on with tennis tournaments and swimming meets and golf or what have you. If you really mean business, young man, come on down to my hotel and do kitchen police for a while!"

Bob, in the full tide of the fine new sets of emotions that had begun to possess him, was quite taken back. For an instant the room was filled with a silence pregnant with agony—for an instant only.

"I—I'll come, Mr. Earley," Bob assented, in a voice he scarcely recognized as his own. "When do I start?"

Denise said nothing, but her face mirrored her thoughts perfectly. She was disgusted with Bob—thoroughly disgusted with him for acceding to her father's demand to prove himself through such menial service, when there were so many more elevating things a man could do. She failed utterly to get the fine point of her lover's sacrifice to pride, a sacrifice made solely because the man who exacted it was her father.

The very next day found Bob at work in the kitchen of the Montezuma peeling potatoes, scrubbing floors and making himself otherwise useful. He had been at his duties a week when he discovered that Bevan Earley was very fond of ocean bathing. As for Denise, he had neither seen nor heard from her during that time.

One afternoon between the noon and the evening meal, Bob decided to do a turn in the surf himself. There had been no stipulations against it and certainly he felt the need of it after such dirty work.

As he ran toward the sea he noted that his employer was in ahead of him but he kept a safe distance away, determined not to subject himself to any unnecessary chafing. Testing his endurance, he swam far out into the rolling sea and was on his way back when he saw a man floundering helplessly, some distance to the right, finally going under.

In an incredibly short time young Carfax had covered the distance between him and the spot where the man went down. He reached it just as the man was coming up and without waiting to see whom he was rescuing, started to tow his charge to shore. It was only when he reached wading depth that he discovered it was his employer.

Gaining the beach, he called for help and began to apply first aid. A crowd of bathers gathered. Some one ran up to the hotel to telephone Miss Earley. By the time Denise arrived her father was sitting up, supported by the strong young arm of her erstwhile lover.

"Bob!" she cried, eyes ashine with a new, tender look. "Was it you who saved him?"

Before Bob could make reply, Bevan Earley, whose face was still dour and mask-like, replied hesitatingly, "Y-e-s, he can swim all right."

They took Earley home, and after the crowd had gone, he shook a warning finger at Bob Carfax.

"Young man," he growled, "don't you ever let me see you peeling another spud or monkeying with a scrub pail. I could offer you the job of professional life saver for the Montezuma, but I won't. I'd like to trim you proper for jumping at the kitchen police job so readily, but I won't do that either. I'll give the darn hotel to you and Denise for a wedding present. You can run it while I take a trip to Europe. I've not been blind to what's been going on. My men are aboard the boat your late partner took. They'll arrest him before he lands and recover what's left of your money. Now run along and tell your chief you won't be back to help with supper."

BUC TEAM DELIGHTS SAM DREYFUSS

Sam Dreyfuss

THE action of Manager Donie Bush yesterday in sending Pie Tryanor back to third base in the Pirate lineup may not mean anything like what it appeared to mean on paper, according to the official camp news brought back to Pittsburgh by Treasurer Sam Dreyfuss, who has returned home after spending more than four weeks with the Bucs in training on the Pacific coast. The fans naturally concluded that Bush had given up all thought of trying to make a shortstop of Traynor and was sending him back to third base to stay, but this doesn't follow at all, in the opinion of Treasurer Dreyfuss.

Sam believes that the shift was not made as a permanent one, but for two other reasons—firstly to give Traynor a workout without subjecting his injured hip to as much of a strain as it would be under if he were playing shortstop, and secondly because Manager Bush is merely beginning a series of final experiments to determine the best combination that he can put on the infield at second base, third base and shortstop.

FAR from accepting this as conclusive evidence that Traynor is being put back on third for keeps, the Pirate treasurer thinks it may prove only temporary. That Traynor will start the season at shortstop, if his physical condition permits; and that Jim Stroner is not yet out of the running for a regular position but still has a chance to win the berth at third base, is part of the news that the club official brought with him.

Another high spot in his information is the fact that George Grantham, who is certain to start the season somewhere in the lineup, will be found at third base, if he isn't used at second base or in the outfield. No one has ever given Grantham a tumble as a third-base possibility, but that's where he's going to play if he doesn't go to second base or hold down a place in the outfield. And another outfielder whom that you can mark down right now as an almost certain regular is Adam Comorosky. The Polish boy has found himself at last, from all accounts, and has just about clinched a regular job on the picket line.

TREASURER DREYFUSS is the youngest official in the major leagues, but there is none more observing or better posted on the fine points of the game. Like his father, he knows a great deal more than the average club official about the playing end of the sport.

So it will be encouraging to the fans to learn that Sam is optimistic about the team to the point of actual enthusiasm. He can't see a cloud in the Pirate sky, provided Traynor's injury mends.

George Grantham

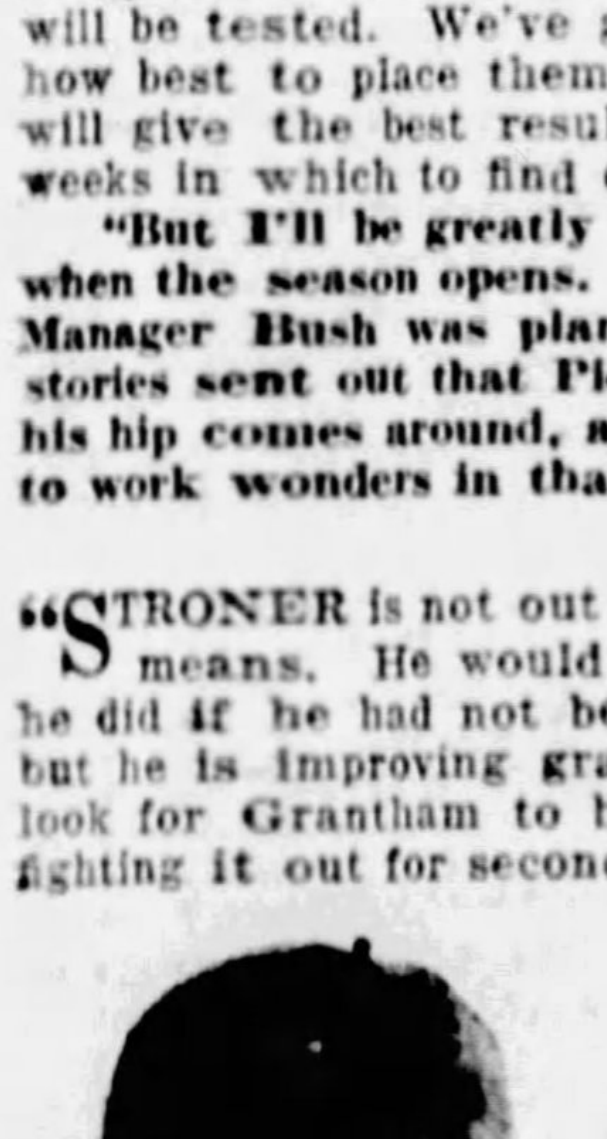
"IF Captain Traynor's ailing hip responds to treatment, we'll be all set to start out with as bright an outlook as any other club in the race," said Treasurer Dreyfuss in a resume of the camp activities after his return to Pittsburgh yesterday. "You don't have to watch the Pirates in action very long before you get the feeling that they are a real ball club that will not easily be prevented from getting somewhere. They've got more good pitchers than at any previous time in my memory, they've got the punch, they've got the speed, they've got all the fielding strength necessary, they've got some vastly improved players, they're immeasurable stronger at first base, also behind the bat, and no club could look better from the spring viewpoint of physical fitness, hustling spirit and general morale. In a word, the team looks better than I have ever soon it look in the spring.

"I DOUBT if the sending of Traynor back to third base for the game with Detroit in Phoenix meant anything more than a plan to give Pie a lighter workout than he could get at shortstop, to rest up Jim Stroner for a brief spell, at the same time, or to start a series of tryouts in which various combinations for second, third and short will be tested. We've got plenty of infielders; the only question is how best to place them, how to put together the combination that will give the best results. Manager Bush has got almost three weeks in which to find out.

"But I'll be greatly surprised if Traynor isn't back at shortstop when the season opens. He looks great there, and when I left camp Manager Bush was planning to start him at shortstop, despite the stories sent out that Pie was to return to third. He'll play short if his hip comes around, and a few games in the hot Texas sun ought to work wonders in that direction.

"STRONER is not out of the running for the third-base job by any means. He would have looked much better at the start than he did if he had not been weakened by his appendicitis operation, but he is improving gradually now. If he doesn't come through I look for Grantham to be placed at third, with Adams and Bartell fighting it out for second.

"One encouraging feature of Stroner's case is that his poorest showing has been in batting. That is the department in which his minor league record held out the greatest promise, so there is a chance that he has been held back only by his operation, is not yet swinging properly, and will look a great deal better when he gets into his stride.



Earl Sheely

"ONE of the positions about which there need be no worry is first base. The Pirates are going to be so much stronger there that it will be hard to recognize them as the same old team. There is not, cannot be, any better first baseman than Earl Sheely at handling thrown balls. He is a wizard who surpasses in that respect any other first-sacker we have ever had. No kind of throw is too difficult for Sheely. He gets them everywhere—out of the clouds, out of dust, or to either side after a mile stretch. He has a powerful arm, can hit, too, being particularly good at the hit-and-run play, and we have had slower runners on the Pittsburgh club during the last few years.

"GRANTHAM looks so good that he just can't be kept out, that's all. He is hitting in even better spring form than usual. (Sam's statement was borne out later by Grantham's home run and double that helped Grimes, Kremer and the other Pirates defeat Detroit 7 to 4 in their first game of the spring against major league opposition).

"George will be in there somewhere when the bell rings, that's certain. If he's not in the outfield he'll be in the infield, and in the latter department second base isn't the only place open to him. If Paul Waner reports, Comorosky will play the extra outfield post and Grantham will be used at either second base or third.

"GRANTHAM must not be overlooked as a third base possibility. He has been doing considerable practicing at the position, and is better there than at second. Until Paul Waner reports, Grantham and Comorosky will remain in the outfield with Lloyd Waner, George and Adam exchanging positions when right field is a sun garden.

"If the outfield finally is made up of the two Waners and Comorosky, with Grantham in the infield, Manager Bush will shift Lloyd Waner and Comorosky when left field is sunny. That would mean that at Forbes Field Lloyd would play left and Comorosky center. Comorosky is performing brilliantly. He seems to have found him-

CHAMPIONS SET FOR TITLE BOUT

CHICAGO, March 27. — (AP.) — Tommy Loughran and Mickey Walker, two world ring champions, wound up training for their light heavyweight title match, opening Paddy Harmon's $7,000,000 Chicago stadium tomorrow night.

Neither will pull on the gloves again until they square off with the six-ounce fighting gloves before a crowd that may reach 25,000 in the world's largest indoor sports arena. Walker will do absolutely nothing from now on until gong time except a few short walks, limbering up calisthenics and weigh in with Loughran tomorrow afternoon.

The New Jersey bulldog is ready and Manager Jack Kearns will take no chance of having him go stale. Kearns announced after the workout that Mickey was slightly under 166 pounds and might enter the ring in wonderful fighting shape as low as 165.

GOES EIGHT ROUNDS

The middleweight champion worked the equivalent of eight rounds before laying up the gloves. He stepped four rounds with Tom Kirby, Boston light heavyweight. Mickey kept trying his right hand and landed often. Once in the third round he crowded Kirby into a corner and jarred him to his heels with a wicked left hook. It was with smashing rights and those rasping left hooks that Walker hopes to win the third world boxing championship of his career.

In addition to his boxing, Walker swatted the light bag for three rounds, finishing up with a round of shadow boxing. They turned a hot jazz tune on the phonograph in the gymnasium while the Jersey Bulldog was shadow boxing and he gave an exhibition of Charleston dancing that would have made any professional performer green with envy.

TO DO LIGHT WORK

The light heavyweight titleholder appeared to be real sharp in his boxing. His judgment of distance was good, his timing excellent and his punching had considerable force with the big training gloves. Besides boxing, he worked a round on the light bag and did two rounds of rope skipping. He finished breathing easily, perspiring freely, the perfect picture of a well-conditioned fighter.

Loughran will report in the gymnasium today and do some light work, but no boxing. He wants to be close to the scales in the gymnasium so he can keep an accurate line on his weight. While he is having no trouble getting down to 175 pounds, he has more worry than a 165-pounder like Walker. That is because he does not want to get under 175, except for an ounce or so. He wants all the weight the law allows to meet a fighter like the rushing tearing-in Walker.

The setting of the main floor seats is practically finished.

SOCCER HEADS ORDER REPLAY

By TOM BIRKS.

The much-discussed Heidelberg Eagles-Curry battle of the Chartiers Valley League, which failed to see a finish, and which game was awarded to the Curry club by the protest board of the league, will be replayed. This decision was reached by the West Penn Football Association in session last evening, and in reversing the decision of the league, the governing body also suggested that the game be played upon neutral grounds. The game, which was played at Curry, finished in a small-sized riot, and the Chartiers Valley League upheld the referee's decision in awarding the game to Curry, when Heidelberg left the field.

The Corinthian-Heidelberg western semi-final national amateur cup game will be played at Curry on Saturday, according to Manager McKay of the Corinthians. Kick-off probably will be at 3:30 p. m.

The Clan Douglas applied for and received permission to meet an Akron team in an exhibition game in Ohio in April.

A resolution was passed at the meeting to send the family of the late John Watson a letter of condolence.

George Kelly Signs Reds Contract

CINCINNATI, March 27.—(AP.)—George Kelly, first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, considered a holdout for more money, but who has been practicing with the team at Orlando, Fla., for several weeks, has signed his 1929 contract, it was learned here.

Val Picinich, first string catcher, and Jersey Joe Stripps, hard hitting third baseman, now are the only players who have not come to terms with the club officials.

RUDY MATCHED TO BATTLE RANDALL

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, has been signed by Promoter Francis Flynn to oppose Tiger Joe Randall, Negro welterweight, of Elizabeth, Pa., in the 10-round main bout at the Moose Temple Friday night of next week.

Francis Flynn

The bout will be the first for Randall since he upset the dope by defeating Dominick Proflo, the Italian knockout ace, in the same ring week before last. Rudy was one of Proflo's recent knockout victims and he eagerly accepted the battle with Dominick's conqueror as a means of atoning for that setback. He hopes to beat Randall and force Proflo into another meeting with him.

TOUGH FIGHT TO PICK

Seldom has a tougher bout in which to pick the winner been scheduled here than the one between Andy Martin, of Boston, and Midget Mike O'Dowd, of Columbus, at Motor Square Garden next Monday night. The local fans have seen each man in action only once, and each was highly impressive in that single start. Martin, in beating Johnny Datto, the Filipino, appeared to be the headiest boxer and coolest ringman to appear here in many moons, while O'Dowd, in winning over Jackie Rodgers, showed virtually the same qualities plus a punch. Both are corking ring generals and the bout looms up as a rare one. It may turn out to be one of those Jimmy McLarnin-Ray Miller duds, but, on paper, it has all the earmarks of a real treat.

DUNDEE STILL CHAMPION

Jackie Fields is the new welterweight champion of the world, according to the National Boxing Association, which has tossed Joe Dundee, the official titleholder, into the discard, and Fields is being generally recognized as the titleholder by the fans, who have been disgusted with the dillydallying tactics of Dundee. Nevertheless, if Dundee is defeated by Al Mello in their bout in Boston shortly, just watch everybody do a flipflop and hail Mello as the real champion and leave Fields standing out in the cold. 'Twas ever thus. Commission-made champions never are able to hold their places against ring-made standard-bearers.

FLOOR SERIES OPENS

The world series of basketball sets under way in Cleveland tonight, with Cleveland and Fort Wayne contending for the title on a four-out-of-seven games basis. Cleveland won the first half of the season race in the American Professional League, and was the favorite to annex the second half also, but suffered injuries and other bad breaks that killed off its prospects for a clean sweep. The followers of the floor sport are keenly interested in the big series, in which the greater experience of the Rosenblums will be pitted against the superior speed of the Fort Wayne outfit.

Among the Pittsburghers who will witness the first two battles in Cleveland tonight and tomorrow night are Chick Davies, the Duquesne University coach; Bill Campbell,

Schmeling to Fight For Mrs. Hearst's Milk Fund

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Max Schmeling is under contract exclusively with Madison Square Garden and will appear under its auspices against Paulino Uzcudun in an outdoor bout here June 26, Joe Jacobs said on his arrival here from Germany.

"On behalf of Max Schmeling," said Jacobs' statement, "I wish to state that he is contracted to box for Madison Square Garden. They have exclusive right to his services for the good reason that the corporation brought him here and what is most important gave him his first chance to display his fistic wares in America.

"It may surprise all to learn that Schmeling made a promise, before he went back home to his folks in Germany that he cannot, in all fairness, turn down, and that was to box for Mrs. William R. Hearst's Milk Fund under auspices of Madison Square Garden sometime in June. He is duty bound to the fund and is going to go through with it by all means."

A. M. A. TOURNEY FINAL ROUNDS TONIGHT

ADAMS HURT SLIDING TO HOME PLATE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

EL PASO, Tex., March 27.—The danger of failing to slide on a doubtful play was exemplified in a striking manner as Sparky Adams injured his leg at the home plate in the first inning. Sparky apparently thought he could sprint over the rubber ahead of the ball, but the relayed rocket came into Shea's glove an instant ahead of the little infielder. At the last second, Adams tried to go into a slide and he became tangled with Shea's big mitt.

LLOYD UNCHANGED

Lloyd Waner's success has not changed his nature. You can generally find the little star in the company of the recruits. Unfortunately, some boys after rising to diamond fame, lose their natural poise. Lloyd probably recalls that two short years ago he wasn't sure that he would stay long enough to get his name on a big league hotel register.

"We have a dandy ball club," said Rogers Hornsby, as he discussed the flag race on the way over from Los Angeles. "We have the best outfield and best catching staff in the league, our pitching staff is in fine shape and we have a good hitting club. And, don't overlook our pitchers when you mention batting. Blake, Root, Carlson, Nehf and Malone can all hit well."

The illustrious Hap O'Connor of various points on the Pacific Coast was at the station to bid the athletes of both clubs bon voyage. Hap and Lefty Grimm were paired off in the depot, same pair being quite an act on any man's circuit. O'Connor was anxious to convey his best regards to Havey Boyle, who once was in O'Connor's tender care on a big trip through the famed spots of Hollywood and other places.

YDE DEVELOPS CURVE

Emil Yde seems to be sitting well with the Tigers. The Durable Dane has developed a curve, according to Manager Bucky Harris, who appears to like the former Pirate.

"Yde had those Cubs all puzzled the other day, but he lost his control," said Harris. "The Bruins trimmed the Tigers five games in a row, but they did the same thing to the Pirates one year ago. The McCarthy clan gets into top condition quickly."

The Cubs were a jovial troop as they headed East, but everybody on the train appeared to be in good humor. The rival athletes mingled extensively in the dining car.

Philip Page, tall southpaw who worked against the Pirates in the late innings of the Phoenix game, is a Penn State boy. Page played baseball under Hugo Bezdek. He had a big year for Springfield of the Eastern League and now is regarded highly by the Tiger bosses.

GRAHAM BOUT OFF

NEW YORK, March 27.—(INS.)—The proposed bout here between Bushy Graham, of Utica, N. Y., and Kid Chocolate, Cuban bantamweight, has been laid on the shelf as the result of Graham's suspension by the New York Boxing Commission. Graham was banned at the request of the Pennsylvania Commission. Other boxers suspended are Joey Kaufman and Nando Tasal.

PIRATES PLAY TOMORROW AT SAN ANTONIO

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

EL PASO, Tex., March 27.—The touring Pirates reached this Mexican border town this morning. En route to San Antonio, where tomorrow they open a two-game series with the celebrated Giants who are in training at the site of Alamo.

The Buccos didn't have much time to linger in El Paso, not sufficient for a dash into old Mexico, but our boys were not anxious to go on the other side of the international boundary line in view of the activities of the rebels and federals in that troubled land.

ARRIVE TOMORROW

The Buccos are in the midst of the longest jump they will experience on their way back to the East. The team left Phoenix about 10 o'clock last night and the arrival in San Antonio is not scheduled until the wee hours of tomorrow. That means two nights and a day on the train.

The Bushwhackers figure they spent a most profitable day at the home town of George Grantham. Donie led his team to a 7-to-4 success over his old club, the contest being staged under ideal weather conditions. The heat was intense, it being by far the hottest day the Buccos have encountered.

And to add to the joys of the home fans, George Grantham cracked out a homer over the right field fence that played a big part in the victory.

BOOTS THRILLS HOME FOLKS

George had a remarkable day, with his mother and others of the home folks looking on. His homer was worth two tallies and he smeared a fiery double in the first to start the Pirate scoring. On two occasions he walked and on another he smacked one out of the lot that swerved foul just as it was leaving the ball park.

The contest was marred at the outset by what looked like a rather serious accident to Sparky Adams. In scoring from first on Grantham's double in the opening frame, Sparky became tangled with Catcher Shea. Adams fell away from the Tiger catcher in pain, but after receiving first aid he was able to walk to the bench.

JONES IN STAR ROLE

He vacated in favor of Coburn Jones, but Sparky thinks he will be O. K. to play against the Giants tomorrow. Young Jonesey didn't do a thing, but star throughout the contest. The fielding and hitting of the little Welshman was beautiful to behold.

Another nice angle to the contest was the presence in the battle of Capt. Traynor, who returned to his old hot-corner post. Traynor acted quite natural after suffering from a bad hip. It is likely he will continue in the remaining games.

Burleigh Grimes and Remy Kremer divided the pitching assignment, the spit-ball pitcher retiring after the fourth round. Grimes and Kremer each were solved for two runs. The two tallies of Frenchy being homers produced by Shea and Schuble.

The two games with the Giants should be humdingers, the Pirates being eager for the fray. Pilot Donie has most of his men close to good condition.

Thompson's Pilot To Protest Decision

CHICAGO, March 27.—(INS.)—Ray Alvis, manager of Young Jack Thompson, Negro welterweight, announced today that he would protest the "world title" decision awarded Jackie Fields over his fighter at the Coliseum here Monday night.

Alvis says he will base his claim before the Illinois Athletic Commission on the fact that the bout, a championship affair, was stopped for five minutes in the eighth round when fans rioted and started a panic. He said his warrior was the principal sufferer of that event.

Gig Rooney, manager of Fields, when he learned of Alvis' attitude, said he would gladly give Thompson another "shot" at Jackie, but that Fields must be recognized as the champion and be allowed the champion's end of the purse.

TORONTO, March 27.—(AP.)—The New York Rangers, world hockey champions in 1928, advanced to the final round of this year's Stanley Cup playoff by defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs, 2-to-1, in an overtime game.

Frank Boucher, clever Ranger center, scored early in the overtime period to break the tie that had carried through from the first five minutes of the game. Two Leafs were off the ice on penalties when the break came. The Toronto remnant, with Lorne Chabot doing great work in the goal, put up a valiant struggle, but the cool work of Boucher was a bit too good. After Chabot had stopped one speedy shot, he raced in, snared his own rebound and lifted it into the net.

Andy Blair, tall Toronto center, put the Leafs ahead in the first period, scoring alone in 1:57, but less than two minutes later Bun Cook, Ranger left winger, came back to even the score.

The Ranger victory made it certain that the Stanley Cup will go to the United States for the second time in its long history, and brought about the first all-American final. The victory of the New Yorkers last year sent it across the border line for the first time. The lineup:

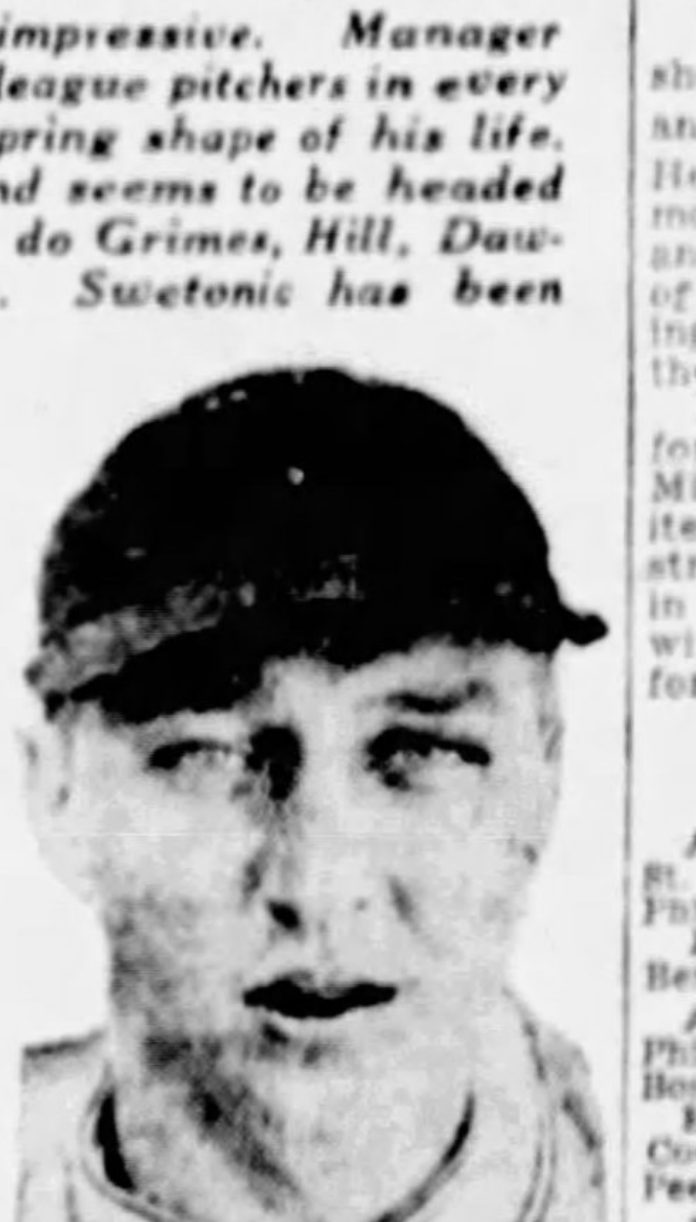
self this spring, is hitting all kinds of pitching, running like a greyhound and in general acting like a real big leaguer in every respect.

"BUT it is in the pitching department, the most important of all, that the club looks particularly impressive. Manager Bush has no fewer than 11 men who are big league pitchers in every sense of the word. Kremer is in the best spring shape of his life. He is 12 pounds lighter than a year ago and seems to be headed for a big season. Petty looks great, and so do Grimes, Hill, Dawson, Tauscher, Fussell, Brame and others. Swetonic has been held back by illness but has shown enough to convince every one that he is a real pitcher. French has the goods, beyond a doubt, Dawson is better than at any time since he joined us, and Tauscher is one of the most improved pitchers in the country. Meadows probably will be fit for work when needed.



Adam Comorosky

"AND while on the subject of pitchers, it might be remarked that we've got some great material for the future, too. Leon Chagnon, for one, stands out impressively. He has everything except experience, has the right build, temperament and everything else, and in general shapes up as a great prospect, needing only another year or so in the minors. Spencer also is coming along, for the future, and Erickson, too, is promising, and will have a good chance to come back next year.

"Even behind the bat, the Pirates are much better than in 1928. Aside from Hemsley's advance, Linton is a remarkably improved backstop and carries a batting punch in addition. We shall not want for anything there. And there will be plenty of reserve strength, too. Carl Frey, the local boy, has shown himself to be a fine ball player in the outfield, along with Brickell, and there is plenty of good timber for the other departments. All around the team looks better than it has ever looked before in any spring within my memory."

ODIE CLEGHORN TO BE GRANTED RELEASE

By CARL W. SHATTO.

Indications that Odie Cleghorn, who resigned as manager of the Pittsburgh club of the National Hockey League on Monday, will not be used in a player or cash transaction but will be granted his release were seen in a statement by Charley Leonard, club secretary, that "Cleghorn's resignation will be accepted with an expression of thanks."

Cleghorn's contract with the Ice Pirates was a player contract, and local officials of the club had intimated that his resignation might be ignored and that he might be used as trading material.

Answering Cleghorn's statement that he resigned because recent Pirate player exchanges had not met his approval, Leonard pointed out that the Wogters-for-Miller deal was put through before Cleghorn had signed a 1928-29 contract, that the Frederickson-McKay and Lowrey-Cotton exchanges both strengthened the Bucs and that White was loaned to the New York Americans only after the locals had been distanced in the race.

VOIGT LEADS IN OPEN

PINEHURST, N. C., March 27.—(AP.)—George Voigt, Washington, D. C., amateur, took the lead in the North and South open golf tournament here by negotiating 36 holes on the rugged Pinehurst Country Club course in 139.

Five strokes behind came Tommy Armour, of Detroit, last year's runner up, and Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., flash, who crossed the halfway mark in 144 to start today's play in second place.

MEHLHORN SHOOTS 145

Trailing the leaders in order were Wild Bill Mehlhorn, of New York, who made a game bid for the lead in the afternoon but turned in a 145 for the day; Billie Burke, of Westport, N. Y., defending champion, with a 146, and Jack Forrester, Oradell, N. J., pro, who polled a 146.

Most of the favorites fared poorly. Johnny Farrell, United States open champion, tied for sixteenth place with two others at 151. Walter Hagen, British open champion, had a 149 to tie with Emmett French, of Youngstown, for tenth place.

Leo Diegel, of Tia Juana, Mexico, Canadian open and P. G. A. champion, took 150 to tie with three others for twelfth place and Ross Somerville, Canadian amateur champion, is on even terms with Joe Turnesa, of Elmsford, N. Y., and Al Houghton, of Washington, for seventh place. They had 148's.

HAS 69 IN MORNING

To finish the day in front, Voigt shot the best round of the morning and the second best for the afternoon. He gathered in seven birdies in the morning for his 69 and one birdie and an eagle to round out his card of 70 in the afternoon. The Washington star dropped a 15-foot put on the home green.

Horton Smith, whose brilliant performance in the La Gorce open at Miami last week, made him a favorite to win at Pinehurst, needed 74 strokes on his morning round, but in the afternoon came back strong with 11 consecutive fours and a 70 for the 18 holes.

Canadian Playoff Contested Four Extra Periods

DETROIT, March 27.—(AP.)—Detroit Olympic moved into the final of the Canadian Hockey League championship playoffs, but only after going four overtime periods to defeat the Toronto Millionaires, 6 to 5.

Each team scored once in the first period, then Toronto counted twice in the second session, only to have the Olympics tie it up before the period ended. Each scored once in the third regular period, Olympics took the lead in the first overtime, but the Millionaires evened it up again. Neither could break through in the second extra session and Toronto again grabbed the lead early in the third overtime.

The Olympics knotted the count just before the period closed and Fillmore broke through in the middle of the fourth period for the deciding goal.

MEN WHO SMOKE AND GUARD THEIR HEALTH, SMOKE CIGARS

A CIGAR AIDS DIGESTION ... is the opinion of DOCTOR DELAUNAY
Former President of the Paris Society of Surgeons

Doctor Delaunay, former President, Society of Internes and Society of Surgeons of Paris, is a member of the Society of Medicine of Paris, a Commander of the Legion of Honor, and Chief Surgeon of the Hospital Peay

"A good cigar is a perfect conclusion to a meal. It induces natural relaxation which contributes to a good digestion.

"To smoke a cigar is then not only a very great pleasure, but also it is of distinct benefit to those who really enjoy a perfect meal perfectly served.

"In the words of the old Latin adage—'Everyone arrives at the point in life when they mix the useful with the agreeable'."

Dr. Delaunay

THE cigar soothes, quiets, calms and so has a tendency to allay any irritation of the nerves. And a period of nerve rest after a meal helps digestion. Slowly, leisurely, the smoker extracts from each puff the rich flavor, the fragrant bouquet that are the cigar's alone. It is free from artificial substances such as glycerine, sugar, licorice, saltpeter and other adulterants with which certain forms of tobacco are flavored to make them smokeable.

It is these adulterants which, when combined with other forms of tobacco, produce Furfural and Acrolein. And, it is Furfural and Acrolein that, especially when inhaled into the lungs, cause most of the ills attributed to smoking. Since the cigar does not embody any artificial substances, both Furfural and Acrolein are absent from its smoke. So the cigar smoker can even inhale (although few do) and still not pay a penalty.

Then, too, cigar smoke is cool. In consequence the smoker rarely suffers from the throat troubles prevalent amongst smokers of other forms of tobaccos, whose delicate mucous membrane is scorched and withered due to the burning, drying effect of hot smoke upon this tender tissue.

Aid your digestion, improve your nerves, increase your vitality, free yourself from coughs and throat irritations by making this test—smoke cigars exclusively for one week.

Do it, with justice to yourself and to cigars, by smoking La Palinas. You can smoke them, confident that they will please you, for they are America's largest selling high grade cigar—over a million a day.

The sensational success of the La Palina Cigar is the result of an exclusive and secret blend which combines for the first time in one cigar, an extreme mildness with a rare richness of both taste and fragrance.

BOARD'S TEETH IMPRINTS SEEN IN STOCK SQUEEZE

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

AFTER growling for over a month the Federal Reserve Board has used its teeth. The panicky call money market of yesterday appears to have been attributable to definite action towards putting the screws on banks which have not taken the warnings with sufficient seriousness.

The principal scene of action has been Chicago. The co-operation of the banks in that city was secured and the brokers were compelled to reduce their loans. In an effort to meet the situation many of the corporations whose shares are listed on the Chicago exchange withdrew their surplus funds from New York and made them available to brokers in their own city. The formation of an organized money pool has been denied but there is little doubt that many private arrangements of this nature have been made.

WHILE ordinarily the New York banks would have relieved the situation caused by the withdrawal of funds, they failed to come to the front this time. This was due to the Federal Reserve stand and the fact that their loans had showed a very substantial increase the week before.

The jump in the last brokers' loan statement is generally attributed to the payment of income taxes. All of the brokerage houses had exceptionally good profits in 1928. This meant that a very substantial portion of their funds had to be available on March 15. The borrowings jumped accordingly.

IT IS difficult to estimate how much new money will be attracted to Wall Street by the phenomenal rates of the last few days. It is quite certain that some new reservoirs will be tapped and that the demand will be lessened by the shaking out of weak accounts. If the squeeze in money is at all prolonged, additional money may be attracted from abroad. Foreign lendings have contributed in a large way to the recent market financing.

The outstanding feature of yesterday's market was the pronounced support given stocks just at the time when conditions seemed the blackest and when the break was approaching panic proportions. As a result of this last-hour buying, many of the stocks closed at prices which gave them less of a net decline than was shown after the slump on Monday afternoon.

THE market still showed much of the selectivity that has characterized its recent actions. Many traders apparently still felt that stocks of real intrinsic merit were bargains. Both American Can and Continental Can showed gains. General Electric and Westinghouse Electric closed higher than after Monday's break. General Motors recorded only a fractional loss.

Not so many months ago Radio was being held up as the horrible example of public overconfidence. The opinion was general that when the big wind was to come, Radio would suffer the greatest deflation. But, strange to say, this wonder stock kept on climbing on Monday and Tuesday without regard for the earthquake around it. The last annual report of the Radio Corporation indicated that the future of this company may not have been overestimated. Most certainly strong faith has been shown.

THE question, "What will these newcomers do when they face their first big break?" has often been asked during the past year. yesterday they showed that they were hard to scare. The fact that margin requirements have been so greatly increased over the past year has undoubtedly made the present market harder to unsettle than protracted bull markets of other years.

IRON ORE PRICE ADVANCED

NEW YORK, March 27.—The Iron Age says: A 25 cents a ton advance in iron ore, a further stiffening of Northern pig iron prices, and added forward commitments in finished steel are fresh evidences of the buoyant situation in the iron and steel industry.

The advance in Lake Superior ore, established in sales estimated at 1,000,000 tons, is the first change in price since 1925, and the first increase since 1923.

Unfilled orders of independent sheet mills show a gain of more than 50,000 tons in February, and on March 1 were equal to nearly two and one-half months' production.

Steel production remains at practical capacity in the Chicago district, at 95 per cent in the Greater Pittsburgh area, and at high rates elsewhere. The average operations of Steel Corporation subsidiaries are estimated at 97 per cent.

The Iron Age composite price for pig iron has advanced 9 cents to $18.38 a gross ton, the level of two weeks ago. Finished steel remains at 2.391 cents a pound.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Oils Lead Strong Rally.

The National City Bank, of New York, stepped into the stock market with a barrel of money today and turned the list upward after a forenoon reaction had created fear that today's session might prove a duplicate of yesterday's debacle. The bank was offering huge amounts of money in the call market at the 15 per cent level, and served notice that there was $5,000,000 more available for each 1 per cent rise in the rate should another advance take place. The announcement buoyed every section of the stock market. Oils were the principal bull vehicle as traders took them on in large volume as a result of the American Petroleum Institute meeting in New York today at which a world curtailment plan is expected to be agreed upon. The best oils led the movement, and gains ranged from 2 to over 5 points. Traders could hardly believe their eyes as the long neglected oils rolled across the tape. It was whispered that the "Big Ten" were turning their attention to the oil group, and traders hastened to get aboard for a ride with this apparently invisible market clique. Other stocks rallied in sensational style, with Steel, Anaconda, Can and other stocks known to have strong banking connections in the vanguard of the movement.

National City's Credit Policy.

Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, New York, says that so far as his "institution is concerned we feel that we have an obligation which is paramount to any Federal Reserve warning or anything else—to avert, so far as lies within our power, any dangerous crisis in the market. While we are adverse to resorting to re-discounting for the purposes of making a profit in the call market, we certainly would not stand by and see a situation arise where money became impossible to secure at any price."

Later in the day Mr. Mitchell said the bank was offering an additional $25,000,000 to be loaned as follows: $5,000,00 each at 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 per cent. There was no concerted action among banks to supply the money market with funds, nor was this action prompted by any intimations from the Federal Reserve Bank. The "City" Bank was taking the initiative in this regard in expectation that other banks will follow suit to prevent any undue stringency in the market.

National City Bank directors contemplate distribution of National City Company's stock among the bank's stockholders, according to reports in financial circles. This step is understood to be preliminary to an important merger operation with certain New York institutions, now said to be practically agreed upon.

Reserve Watching Market.

Only a stock market recession over a considerable period, attended by a material drop in brokers' loans, will bring about an easing off of the Federal Reserve Board's tight-money policy. Tendencies toward a break, exhibited within the last few days, and yesterday's crack, followed by the subsequent rally at the close, were under scrutiny by the reserve board. There is every reason to believe that if the market recedes, resulting in a reduction in the volume of bank credit going into speculation, the board will act to ease money for the benefit of spring expansions in commerce, industry and agriculture. The "easing up" move would take the form of reduction in rediscount rates, heavy purchase of government securities in the open market, or a combination of both. No easy money policy will be adopted, however, until market tendencies are carefully studied, and until brokers' loans are far under the record set up last Thursday with $5,793,000,000. If the board is able to drive bank credit out of the market by a campaign of psychology and appeal for co-operation by the member banks, started with the public statement February 7, it will have instilled a wholesome fear into the hearts of speculators and can hold this weapon over what is considered excessive speculation.

A. P. I. Oil Figures.

The daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 30,450 barrels for the week ended March 23, totaling 2,655,600 barrels, according to the weekly summary of the American Petroleum Institute. The daily average production east of California was 1,881,700 barrels, an increase of 46,150 barrels.

American Petroleum Institute directors meet in New York today to act on recommendations of the general committee on world production and consumption of petroleum and its products limiting output of crude oil to the 1928 daily average, which were adopted at the Touston (Tex.), conference on March 16.

Sir Henri Deterding, managing director of Royal Dutch-Shell group, said regarding the main problem of overproduction: "Oil conservation is without question the big issue confronting petroleum companies today. It is necessary for all producing companies to agree to some logical method f conservation fair to all so that the industry might progress on a more profitable basis. Petroleum is the only industry in which the cost of production and price to consumer has not kept pace with post war conditions. Proper conservation will bring about material economies and vast savings all along the line and again place the petroleum industry on a firm and profitable footing. Of course, whatever agreement is entered into must be shared by all producers, both here and abroad."

Illinois May Bar Mixed Matches After Riot

CHICAGO, March 27.—As a result of the riot Monday night in the Coliseum during the Fields-Thompson fight the Illinois Boxing Commission may bar matches between white and colored battlers. Legally the board cannot refuse to grant permits to colored boxers, but there are ways and means of "discouraging" mixed battles. It is feared that the eventual outcome of these matches would be race riots.

Nine thousand spectators were in the Coliseum when a fight started in one of the balconies. There were yells of "kill the nigger!" and presently Herman Landfield and Alonzo Strou, were hurled from the balcony upon the heads of the people packed tightly below. Landfield died yesterday of injuries. Meanwhile general fighting was in progress in the balcony and it spread to the main floor.

WASH-JEFF STAR "HARD LUCK" CHAMP

By JESS CARVER.

Ol' Jap Douds, the champion hard luck guy of college football, who has been kicked and shot at, trampled, massacred and mayhemed, who has had casts on his face, splints on his arms, boils on his neck and hay-wire around his teeth, is in town to put on another act on a hospital cot.

Moe. Rubenstein.

Jappy, captain-elect at W. & J., was operated on yesterday in the Allegheny General Hospital, having a cartilage cut out of his right knee. The operation was a success, the operating physician, in a moment of levity, reporting that "we didn't even tip his knee cap."

Jap injured a knee in 1927. The injury was aggravated last season when Jap took beatings a'plenty as he fought to keep Wash-Jeff's light team up among 'em where Wash-Jeff teams, light or heavy, have been wont to rest in years past.

On Fourth of July, last year, while walking along the main stem of Washington, Pa., Jap was struck in the face by a sky rocket which some clown had laid in a car track and set off. It broke his jaw and nose, knocked out a flock of teeth and put him in the hospital for about six weeks.

He reported for football last fall wearing a special mask and looking like an accident going somewhere to happen. The first day of signal drill he collided with a teammate and laid open an eye. You can laugh that off. Jap did.

HAS TRICK KNEE

It is hoped that this operation on his trick knee will put that portion of his anatomy back in shape again, making the battered Rochester boy at least 89 9-10 efficient. He will then be primed to get himself nudged by a coal truck the moment he steps out of the hospital.

FREEBLE, RUBENSTEIN ADVANCE

A reorganization of the athletic system at Ambridge High School took place last week, with the result that C. R. Freeble, who had been serving as head coach of football, basketball and track, was elevated to the post of director of athletics, and Moe Rubenstein, former Geneva athlete, was named head coach of football and basketball. Freeble will still have charge of track. As I understand it, both gentlemen received corresponding increases in pay, or will receive said boosts when the next school year rolls around.

Coach Rubenstein developed a very good court team at Ambridge this year, his first season in charge of the squad, and rendered valuable assistance to Coach Freeble during the 1928 gridiron campaign. Rubenstein will inaugurate spring football drills next week, calling the candidates out immediately after the close of the Easter vacation.

FROTH

MARKET CRISIS OVER, STOCKS REBOUND

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—The credit crisis, which precipitated one of the heaviest liquidating movements in stock market history this week, appeared to have passed its peak today, and prices rallied briskly after a temporary period of heaviness which followed the posting of a 15 per cent renewal rate for call money.

Call money held firm at the renewal rate although New York bankers were reported to be standing by to prevent a repetition of yesterday's run-up to the 20 per cent level. Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, which supplied funds freely late yesterday when it looked as though the rate would be pushed up above 20 per cent, stated that the bank was offering $25,000,000 additional to be loaned as follows: $5,000,000 each at 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20 per cent. Similar action was contemplated by other bankers.

ACCEPTANCES LOWER

One of the most encouraging credit developments of the day was a decline of ⅛ of 1 per cent in bankers' acceptances, the first recession in months. Time money held firm at 8¾ to 8½ per cent with the market extremely dull.

Trading showed a marked reduction in volume today. This was construed as an indication that the bulk of forced liquidation had been completed, and that speculators and investors were not inclined materially to extend their commitments at this time.

NEWS FAVORABLE

Business news continued favorable. Iron Age reported that "a 25 cents a ton advance in iron ore, a further stiffening of northern pig iron prices and added forward commitments in finished steel are fresh evidence of the buoyant situation in the iron and steel industry."

Opening of the oil curtailment conference here today stimulated the demand for the oil shares. Houston Oil, which sold as low as 83 yesterday, jumped 10 points to 100. Standard Oil of New Jersey climbed 5½ points, Atlantic Refining 4⅜ and Barnsdall A, Standard of California and Pan-American B sold 3½ to 4 points higher.

International Telephone, which has been showing independent strength in the face of reactionary tendencies all week, soared 15 points to a new high record at 256½. The stock will shortly be split up on 3-for-1 basis. Case Threshing Machine also soared 15 points, Baldwin Locomotive 12, A. M. Byers 11, Advance Rumely preferred 9, Burroughs Adding Machine 8 and Industrial Rayon, Simmons Co., Commercial Solvents, Electric Auto Lite, General Electric, Lambert, Greene Cananea and American and Foreign Power sold 5 to 7 points higher.

MOVE HIGHER

Packard Motors, Anaconda Copper, Radio and National Cash Register made up their early losses of 3½ to 5 points, and moved above last night's final quotations. In the railroad group, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Delaware and Hudson sold 3 to nearly 5 points higher.

Subsiding fears of a late money squeeze, caused a scramble to buy the recognized leaders in the final hour. Radio and Chrysler shot up above 100. General Electric gained 7 points and Commercial Solvents 11. United States Steel was in demand above 180, and General Motors at above 85. The markets closed strong. Total sales approximated 5,500,000 shares.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, March 27. — Wheat trading was moderately active today, and for the most part the market ranged upward, contrasting sharply with yesterday's selling stampede and breaks in prices. Besides, export demand for North American wheat was in evidence today, and European takings included some wheat from the United States. On the other hand, today's domestic crop advices indicated prospects for winter wheat were good, and that abandonment was below average, but that the area was 4,000,000 acres less than last year.

Steel Backlogs Strong.

Never has so much pig iron and finished steel been made as in the quarter now ending, yet, far from exhausting the country's requirements, backlogs generally are longer and deliveries are more deferred than when the quarter opened, says the Iron Trade Review. Since January 1 the daily rate of pig iron output has risen from 110,300 tons to about 116,500 tons, and of steel ingots from 166,000 tons to about 185,000 tons. Approximately 10,300,000 tons of pig iron and 13,600,000 tons of ingots—a quarterly record—was produced. With stocks, both of producers and consumers, lower than on January 1, it is assumed that this record-breaking volume of iron and steel has passed directly into consumption. Speculative buying appears negligible. Producers generally are confident that April activity will approximate that of March. Chicago district steelmakers in fact, see every ton of ingots to be made to July 1 definitely earmarked. The past week's contracting for second quarter steel has been out of balance with current production, but this is ascribed to the turn of the quarter, advancing prices and the tight delivery situation. On sheets, strip, bars and plates, five to twelve weeks' delivery is being promised and consumers continue solicitous of places on mill books, to which their specifications attest. Slight shifts among major outlets for steel seem scarcely to have affected the general level of business. Automotive output is more spotty; some makers have accumulated adequate stocks of cars for spring campaigns and are easing off, while others are stepping up rates. Freight car buying is lighter, while more locomotives have been bought. Wire products are moving to rural districts in greater volume.

Urges Cotton Mills Combine.

Important consolidations of large buying power among chain stores, department stores and converters render mergers of cotton mills and selling agencies desirable, according to a report on consolidations which Walker D. Hines, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, Inc., has just placed in the hands of the cotton mills of the United States. "It is reasonable to assume," the report states, "that consolidation of the country's buying power in the matter of cotton textiles will continue. The mills will be standing in their own light if they do not take advantage of every reasonable and promising opportunity to consolidate the manufacturing end to a much greater extent than is true at present. There is no desire to urge mills to rush into improvident or immature consolidations. But it is desirable for them to be alive not only to the advantages of consolidations but to the disadvantages to which they will be increasingly subjected in the absence of consolidations, and that they should be alert to explore and take advantage of sound consolidation prospects when and as they can be brought to light. The trend is strongly toward consolidation among our buyers. The trend is toward consolidation even among the mills; and it should be helped along whenever economically sound."

International Nickel.

International Nickel established a peace-time earnings record with net income of $12,399,317, about $1,100,000 under the 1917 war record. This compares with $6,064,544 earned by its predecessor company, International Nickel Company of New Jersey, in 1927. Net profits in the December quarter last year alone were $4,094,546. Earnings were equivalent to $1.05 a share on 11,258,208 common shares, against $3.30 a share on 1,673,384 shares in 1927.

"Conditions" Normal In 4th Reserve Dist.

CLEVELAND, O., March 27.—(AP.)—Despite the unusual credit situation now prevailing in Wall Street, there is "no particular evidence" of tight money conditions in the Fourth Federal Reserve District, according to J. B. Anderson, of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland.

There is a slight increase in bank loans made by the Cleveland Reserve Bank, but Mr. Anderson called these "seasonal," and not due to any influence from the stock markets.

Taking all things into consideration, Mr. Anderson described the money situation in this reserve district as "quite normal."

P. R. R. Denies Order To Sell Holdings

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—It was stated at the office of the Pennsylvania Railroad today that no notification either formally or informally has been received from the Interstate Commerce Commission ordering the road to dispose of its holdings in the Lehigh Valley and Wabash roads.

The only knowledge that Pennsylvania officials claim to have of the situation was said to have been derived from reports appearing in the morning newspapers.

The board held its regular semi-monthly meeting today but only routine business was transacted.

St. Louis Has Ambitions to Become Center of Aviation

—By B. C. FORBES—

ST. LOUIS, March 26.—This old established, solid city, generously supplied with wealthy families and usually regarded as conservative, is, I find, thoroughly modern in outlook and, indeed, youthfully forward-looking. It is on its toes. It means to forge ahead—it is forging ahead. It is especially keen to shine as a flying and flying-ship manufacturing center. It is alive to its advantages as an inland river port and plans important expansion.

Watch St. Louis. The leading citizens of St. Louis are not much given to indulging in flowery superlatives. They measure their words. Hence the following expressions are particularly worthy of notice as a correct picture of conditions in this vital section of the country:

John G. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce and slated to be elected next president of the exteremely influential American Bankers Association, said:

"St. Louis and the Eighth Federal Reserve District, of which it is the capital, have experienced favorable business progress in the opening months of this year. Trade and industry generally have maintained high levels, with freight traffic through the St. Louis gateway greatly exceeding that of last year.

"The cold weather of January served to stimulate sales of seasonable goods, including wearing apparel, fuel, drugs and chemicals. In St. Louis and other centers of population the market season, which opened late in January, saw a large number of visiting merchants, whose orders, although generally small, presented a formidable showing.

"Specifications for immediate shipment were larger than usual, indicating low stocks. Although building operations have declined as compared with 1928, considerable construction continues and likely will be greatly augmented with the arrival of open weather.

"An indication that business is looking to the future with continued confidence is seen in the plans for greater service being laid through mergers. Three bank consolidations have been announced in St. Louis since the start of the year, and other mergers have included various industries.

"Commercial credit demand has been augmented by production activity. With money rates remaining high, in many quarters, high money rates are now looked upon as one of the developments of changing business conditions and not as the fore-runner of less prosperous times."

EUGENE D. NIMS, president of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, which operates in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas, and a small part of Illinois, sizes things up thus:

"Business conditions generally are satisfactory. Despite the adverse effect of rather severe weather upon retail trade, construction, agricultural activities, general business so far this year compares very favorably with a year ago. Agriculture experienced a favorable year in 1928, and farm buying is at the highest level in several years. Farm loans have been heavily liquidated and farmers are in a stronger financial position than for some time. The supply of credit seems ample, but interest rates are firm. Construction operations in 1928 were the largest ever recorded for our territory, and although a slackening has been apparent during the last few months, this industry is expected to enjoy revived activity.

"The lead and zinc ore industry in our territory has recently shown a substantial recovery. But, due to over-production, the oil industry has shown poor financial returns. Factories in this territory are active and manufacturers view prospects with a fair amount of optimism, although a note of conservatism is evident. The southwestern railroads are in a very strong position compared with those in other sections.

"The employment situation is satisfactory for this season and somewhat ahead of a year ago."

PRESIDENT J. M. KURN, of the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway, said:

"Business in January and February was about the same as last year, but, in our opinion, was retarded by extremely bad weather. Conditions throughout the territory are very good, and we are looking forward to good business all through the year—in fact, better than in 1928. Conditions later in the year will, of course, depend largely on crops, which, so far, are favorable."

ALL of which is reasonably encouraging, is it not?

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—The curb market experienced a strong rally today, after some unsettlement during the forenoon resulting from the renewal of liquidation on the stock exchange when a call money renewal rate of 15 per cent was posted.

Fears that call money might again mount toward the high levels of yesterday were felt during the forenoon, but by midday a number of the powerful banking interests were reported to be acting to relieve the situation, and traders were inclined to believe that the worst was over. A decline of ⅛ of 1 per cent in bankers' acceptance rates, coming after months of steady increases, was a cogent bullish development.

Ford of Canada made a startling advance of 98 points, taking it to 990. Its peak price is 1150. A fair-sized assortment of specialties, including Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass, shot up 10 points and more. Auburn Auto rallied 9 points. Aviation Corporation, Goldman Sachs, Checker Cab and Firestone Tire all started upward, selling 1 or 2 points higher by early afternoon.

Oils generally improved, with the meeting of the American Petroleum Institute in New York today expected to result in important progress in conservation plans. Vacuum jumped 10 points, but this advance proved to have been too sharp and was not maintained. Humble and Indiana achieved moderate gains. Cities Service, however, lost nearly a point.

The utilities were irregular during the morning, but became firm in the early afternoon, Electric Bond and Share recording a small gain. Further selling cropped out in the mines, Newmont losing 3 points.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

STEADY TONE NOTED IN LOCAL SECURITIES

Prices were steady to firm in the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, the list apparently having been pretty well stabilized by the recessions of the two previous sessions.

The wide breaks in scattered stocks noted on Monday and Tuesday were conspicuously absent today and the stocks in which most of the selling had been concentrated displayed a noticeable resistance. Cautious buying was in evidence in a few issues, but the purchasers did not appear inclined to jump for stocks. The attitude seemed to be that the present level of prices will hold for a while and in the meantime the traders will have the opportunity of standing on the side lines awaiting a possible resumption of the heavy liquidation which broke all markets at the opening of the week. However, there was a feeling that the worst is over despite the belief that an early resumption of heavy buying is improbable.

Announcement of the Arkansas Gas "rights" to buy the new class "A" common stock at $4 a share in the ratio of one-for-four, had no marked effect on the quotations for that issue. The stock held around $5 during the forenoon, comparing with last night's close at 5½. The preferred was also unchanged. Arkansas has a fairly large following in the local trading circles, although it is generally felt that it will take some time for results of present expansion plans to show themselves in the earnings.

Lone Star Gas made practically no response to its excellent earnings report for 1928 and the preliminary figures for the current quarter showing an enormous gain in profits. At the outset the issue was handled in moderate volume between 70 and 71. Western Public Service was steady around 24, off about 4 points from the recently established high record. The miscellaneous manufacturing issues and the heavy industrials were rather quiet and there were no conspicuous fluctuations from yesterday's final prices.

CURTAILMENT PARLEY HELD BY OIL MEN

In an effort to stem the rising tide of oil production, which has so exceeded demand that a repetition of the disastrous slump of 1927 faces the industry, international leaders in the oil business are meeting in New York today.

The American Petroleum Institute committee on world production and consumption of petroleum has recommended that oil well operators voluntarily cut their production on April 1 to the level prevailing on the same date a year ago. This would mean a cut in the output of 8 per cent.

In spite of drastic attempts already made to prorate the output of wells in the leading fields, the daily average of crude oil production in the United States increased 30,450 barrels in the week ended March 23.

Sir Henry Deterding, managing director of the Royal Dutch-Shell Group, who is attending the conference by special invitation of the directors of the American Petroleum Institute, said: "It is necessary for all producing companies to agree to some logical method of conservation fair to all so that the industry might progress on a more profitable basis. Petroleum is the only industry in which the cost of production and the price to the consumer have not kept pace with post war conditions. Proper conservation will bring about material economies and again place the industry on a profitable footing."

BUGS BAER Says

TREATIES WITHOUT PEACE

"Bugs" Baer

WE learn with badly concealed statistics that Mr. Kellogg has just plastered his indorsement on his eightieth treaty.

This breaks Mr. Bryan's record by one last good-will and testament.

A grand total of 159 treaties which have been signed by two statesmen.

We haven't negotiated quite so many happy documents as England, but England has more diplomats than we have.

You can have your peace treaties in the spring. We will take a mustard plaster.

All these peace pacts are essential. Principally because of International ambassadors.

The main trouble with ambassadors is that they think they have been appointed embarrasors.

When Norway sends an embarrassor to Spain, then Portugal gets even by sending an embarrassor to Turkey to embarrass them pleniopenitentiary.

The boys immediately pull out a deck of peace treaties consisting of 52 cards with the joker running wild.

At the finish of the game, the embarrassor cables home, "have just started six more wars."

His chief cables back, "come home before you run out of peace treaties."

This maintains the balance of power and keeps the entente cordiale from turning sour on the vine.

The trouble with America right now is peace treaties. We are suffering from writer's cramp of the Navy.

We also have codicils of the Army and amendments of the natural resources.

To that you can add mandates of the disputed territory and secret speeches between radio announcers.

It is true that America intends to build 15 new cruisers.

But that takes time. We will be ready for any emergency provided that we get 10 years' notice.

We might get a real world peace by changing the routine a trifle.

Heretofore, an embarrassor started a war knowing that he would be the first man called home from the danger zone.

In the future, when an embarrassor starts trouble with another nation, make him stay there.

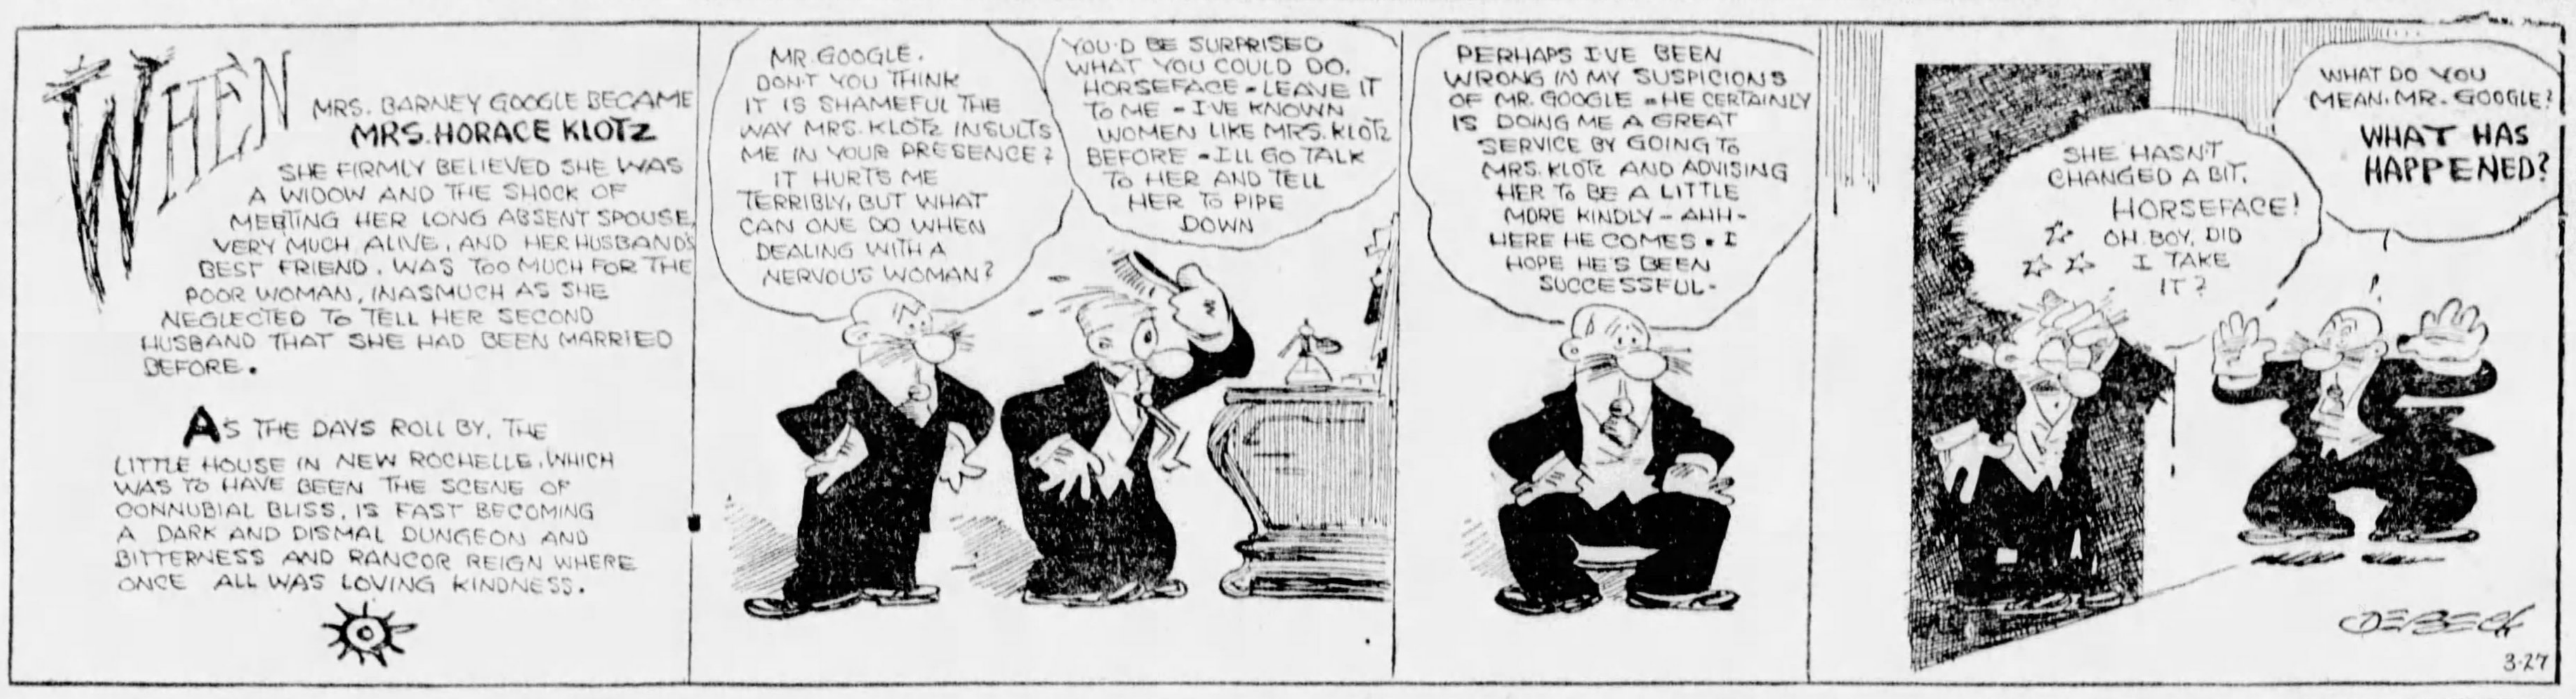
BARNEY GOOGLE AND SPARK PLUG

A Familiar Experience for Barney



WHEN MRS. BARNEY GOOGLE BECAME MRS. HORACE KLOTZ SHE FIRMLY BELIEVED SHE WAS A WIDOW AND THE SHOCK OF MEETING HER LONG ABSENT SPOUSE, VERY MUCH ALIVE, AND HER HUSBAND'S BEST FRIEND, WAS TOO MUCH FOR THE POOR WOMAN, INASMUCH AS SHE NEGLECTED TO TELL HER SECOND HUSBAND THAT SHE HAD BEEN MARRIED BEFORE.
AS THE DAYS ROLL BY, THE LITTLE HOUSE IN NEW ROCHELLE, WHICH WAS TO HAVE BEEN THE SCENE OF CONNUBIAL BLISS, IS FAST BECOMING A DARK AND DISMAL DUNGEON AND BITTERNESS AND RANCOR REIGN WHERE ONCE ALL WAS LOVING KINDNESS.
MR. GOOGLE, DON'T YOU THINK IT IS SHAMEFUL THE WAY MRS. KLOTZ INSULTS ME IN YOUR PRESENCE? IT HURTS ME TERRIBLY, BUT WHAT CAN ONE DO WHEN DEALING WITH A NERVOUS WOMAN?
YOU'D BE SURPRISED WHAT YOU COULD DO, HORSEFACE - LEAVE IT TO ME - I'VE KNOWN WOMEN LIKE MRS. KLOTZ BEFORE - I'LL GO TALK TO HER AND TELL HER TO PIPE DOWN
PERHAPS I'VE BEEN WRONG IN MY SUSPICIONS OF MR. GOOGLE - HE CERTAINLY IS DOING ME A GREAT SERVICE BY GOING TO MRS. KLOTZ AND ADVISING HER TO BE A LITTLE MORE KINDLY - AHH - HERE HE COMES - I HOPE HE'S BEEN SUCCESSFUL -
WHAT DO YOU MEAN, MR. GOOGLE? WHAT HAS HAPPENED?
SHE HASN'T CHANGED A BIT, HORSEFACE! OH BOY, DID I TAKE IT?

Bill for State Dope Cure Should Be Made Law

Members of the Legislature will indicate a commendable humanitarian attitude as well as a high conception of their duties by rallying to the support of the bill, introduced in the House by Representative Samuel J. Grenet, to provide for a state farm institution for the treatment of narcotic addiction. The measure calls for the appropriation of $200,000 for the purchase of such a farm, of not less than 150 acres.

A narcotic division would be created, this to be part of the Department of Welfare and in charge of a physician trained in the treatment and care of narcotic addicts. Courts would be empowered to send to the institutions drug victims who come before them and to transfer to it prisoners now held in penal institutions as a result of dope addiction.

The bill also defines a drug addict as one whose use of habit-forming narcotics endangers public morals, health, safety and welfare, or whose surrender to the drug habit has been so complete as to destroy power of self-control insofar as dope is concerned.

Representative Stephen G. Porter, sponsor of the national act which provides for the establishment of two federal narcotic farm institutions for the treatment of persons coming under the control of the federal government, is so pleased that a state representative from his home county should back a measure giving Pennsylvania the privilege of being the first state to match national progressiveness, that he has volunteered to appear before a legislative committee in Harrisburg to aid passage of the bill.

Our legislators will be wise to be guided by Representative Porter's advice. As a law maker who has devoted years to the problem of drug addiction and as a delegate of his country to an international narcotic conference, he has gained a knowledge of this terrible evil, which is spreading rapidly, that is unlikely to have come within the experience of our state legislators. He should be invited to Harrisburg.

We need this narcotic farm institution in Pennsylvania. We need it to save the poor victims of a disease more horrible than any other save leprosy, since it means living death. We need it to protect our young people, perhaps even old ones, from the danger of infection.

Big Things All Settled So We Turn to Jokes

Some of our legislators appear to have been completely influenced by the song "There Ought to Be a Law About That!"

So we are going to have a law that will prohibit making fun of the Eighteenth Amendment to our national Constitution, if Representative Hartsook, of Blair County, has his way. He has introduced a bill to provide a fine of $100 for the showing of any play or motion picture that ridicules the amendment or the dry laws.

Why pick on the stage and screen? Can't we sock fines, too, onto individuals who crack jokes about the law? We might grade the fine according to the offense. For the chap who says "Prohibition is much better than no likker at all" we could go the limit and take 100 of his dollars. For those who smile at the sally half the amount should suffice.

Perhaps we ought to be glad to see such legislation appear. In a way it tells a big story. It lets us know that all of the important problems of the state have been so well taken care of by our legislators that there is nothing worth while for them to attend to.

A Meaty Matter

Food Supply Interference Attempt Important.

Any attempt to interfere with the food supply of the world is a matter of high importance. Two pieces of legislation in widely separated cities indicate a dangerous trend of law.

Nevada has branded as a felony the sale or offering for sale of meat that does not clearly bear the state inspector's seal. This is construed to include hamburger steak. Obviously meat cannot be stamped, sealed or scarred in such fashion that the mark will remain visible after the meat has been ground. If the Nevada idea spreads through the country, the celebrated and succulent hamburger may be doomed.

Worse still, a German court has ruled that no chopped and cased meat shall be sold as a frankfurter unless the aforesaid meat is chopped and cased in the city of Frankfort. If this means anything, it means that hot dogs are to be licensed on their native heath.

Next, we may hear that China will attempt to regulate chop suey, that Hungary will act to protect goulash or Philadelphia exercise the rights of discovery on squab. The time seems ripe for international action in defense of the dinner pail!

We Wash the World

Eighteen Thousand American Bathtubs Exported in 1928.

Tucked away among the sere statistics of the Department of Commerce reports, a paragraph of prime importance to civilization was discovered the other day. The figure fiends of the department learned that last year 18,000 American bathtubs were exported to 60 foreign countries.

Argentina led with 4,500 of the precious vessels, Cuba was close behind with 4,274 and Mexico got 1,772. What a splendid record for a notable Yankee invention. The Department of Commerce stated that the bathtub is becoming as popular abroad as the Yankee automobile.

Getting Anywhere?

Tales That Are Told

A Trifle Withered

IN HIS native tongue no one could have been more graceful than the little Frenchman at the dinner party.

But when he essayed compliments in English he was not quite so successful.

"Have I changed in the five years since we met in your beloved Paris?" asked an elderly woman, who desired above all to be thought younger, much younger than she was.

"Madam," replied the little Frenchman, his hand on his heart, "you look like a rose of 20 years."

Only a Guess

AT a country fair five dollars was offered to the person who could guess the weight of a certain cow. Many people tried their skill and various weights were suggested. Finally old Garge, a not too bright farm hand, came forward. To their amazement, he named the exact weight of the cow offhand.

"How did you do it?" asked the judge, after awarding the prize.

"'Twarn't nothin',' replied the man. "I'd 'a' done better'n that if I'd been tryin'."

Far From Perfect

"WHY don't you call me a donkey and have done with it? You've hinted at it long enough," said the henpecked husband.

"It wouldn't be quite true," replied Mrs. Meek.

"I suppose not. I haven't ears long enough for that animal."

"Oh, yes, you have. You don't need longer ears."

"What do I need, then?"

"Two more legs and a better voice."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THIS one happened in China or India or maybe it was Java. Anyhow it was a long ways off, where such things ought to happen, a ' where people are a lot different from the people in America.

There was a guy working at digging ditches. The foreman came along and says to him, "Look at Horgan over there on the other ditch. He started even with you this morning, and he's 20 yards ahead of you already. He'll do twice or three times as much work in a day as you."

"Yes," says the ditch-digger, "that's what I was telling him But he's dumb. Talk to him yourself if you want to; he won't listen to me."

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

MR. ALBERT WEEKS considers himself a free man. He'd get mad as hops if you told him he wasn't.

But it's the truth.

No black Congo slave was ever more deeply in bondage than Mr. Albert Weeks.

And the queer part of it is, he has forged his chains himself.

Forged them from little habits of self-indulgence.

Mr. Weeks has a favorite chair.

And the evening is entirely spoiled if someone sits in his favorite chair.

Also he has certain ideas about newspapers. He likes to open the paper first. Sunday morning is utterly ruined if the children get at the newspaper first.

He has favorite dishes. Mr. Weeks was an only child and his mama allowed him to have favorite dishes. He did not like carrots. Nor spinach. Nor rice pudding. Nor beef stew. Nor dozens of other things. He expressed his dislike by the simple expedient of spitting out such foods as did not appeal to his fancy. Or straightening out in a purple fit and kicking the table. Whereupon his doting mama concluded that Precious Little Albert had a weak stomach and could only eat certain rare and especially prepared articles.

So Mr. Albert Weeks arrived at manhood with favorite dishes. And life is just one long effort to get the dishes Mr. Albert Weeks favors.

Clothes too—he has particularly strong ideas about clothes. A striped suit is anathema to Mr. Weeks. He almost doubts the honesty of a man who would wear a striped suit. Or a red tie. Red ties are another thing that darken existence for Mr. Albert Weeks.

But when it comes to shaving, there's where he really does his stuff. Shaving is almost a religious rite for Mr. Weeks. He has theories about everything connected with shaving. He MUST have a certain make of razor, a certain shaving soap—and woe betide you if you offer him paste instead of soap. His mirror must hang in a certain light and the water must be of a certain temperature. And unless these matters are arranged to Mr. Weeks' convenience you may be sure the whole house knows about it.

And, of course, when it comes to his office Mr. Weeks has as many fussy notions as a pup has fleas. Only he doesn't call them fussy notions. He calls it System. He prides himself on being a Systematic Man.

Mr. Weeks isn't a Systematic Man. He's a slave—bound for life in petty shackles of his own making.

Don't have Favorite Chairs, Favorite Foods, Favorite Corners, Favorite Methods of doing things.

Be able to eat any food, sit in any chair, shave in any light—or at a pinch go happily unshaved—

Keep life open and uncluttered. Keep yourself supple, adaptable. Only by doing so will you grasp the full mystery and wonder and power and joy of existence and be really free to command your situations.

KEEPING WARM

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I was born in Porto Rico, and I have often made the statement, to the amusement of my friends, that a man from the tropics (a new arrival), dressed for Winter in the same way as the average New Yorker, will be able to stand the cold easier or better than a man who was born in this city. Notwithstanding my friends' amusement, am I wrong? I read some three or four years ago that an Eskimo from Alaska brought to Detroit for an exposition had to go back to his native land because he could not stand the cold! Of course, there was some joke in this; but from my own experience I believe there was some truth also.—J. Alvarez, New York City."

WE search the remotest heavens with telescopes and theories, and yet leave many paradoxes of human nature to puzzle us here below. I believe your statement as to your own experience, and agree with you that the Eskimo from Alaska probably felt too cold in Detroit. We must remember the old adage: "Circumstances alter cases." The man from the tropics has been brought up to wear very light clothing. When he is transferred to the cold and variable winter climate of New York, custom and prudence make him don warm, thick garments. His skin is not accustomed to the irritation of woolen and similar fabrics, and their friction keeps the surface of his body warmer than that of the northern native. The rapid changes of temperature which he experiences in his new environment are also unnatural to him, and his relatively languid circulation is spurred to unwonted activity, thus causing more bodily heat, especially as measured by his sensations, than that experienced by the New Yorker at his side.

There may be more recondite causes also concerned in the paradox. The influence of individual peculiarities must be taken in account. There is a difference likewise in what may be called the education of the skin. The tanned integument of the man of the tropics has to defend the body from too great external heat; the Eskimo must have a skin that can shield him against too great external cold; the inhabitants of the Janus-faced temperate zone, which harbors in succession blizzards and hot waves, possesses a skin trained to both these functions, exchanged sometimes very rapidly. His etiolated skin is therefore more sensitive to change than that of either of the others.

Eskimos brought to the United States have usually suffered from the heat, as would naturally be expected. Yet it is readily conceivable that in certain circumstances a man from the Arctic would actually suffer from cold in so changeable a climate as we have. Dressed in his habitual warm garments in one of our mild but variable winters, he would perspire amidst what we should call cold weather, and the evaporation thus caused might produce a serious chill.

The paradox of feeling relatively warm and comfortable in weather many degrees below zero is well known. If the air is dry and still a temperature may be borne that would kill like a lance of ice if the atmosphere were moister and windy. The mechanism of the human skin is as admirable in its way as that of any of the more specialized senses.

Bible Passages

Lord Loveth Righteousness

(Psalm 11)

IN the Lord I put my trust: how say ye to my soul, Flee as a bird to your mountain?

For, lo, the wicked bend their bow, they make ready their arrow upon the string, that they may privily shoot at the upright in heart.

If the foundations be destroyed, what can the righteous do?

The Lord is in his holy temple, the Lord's throne is in heaven: his eyes behold, his eyelids try, the children of men.

The Lord trieth the righteous: but the wicked and him that loveth violence his soul hateth.

Upon the wicked he shall rain snares, fire and brimstone, and an horrible tempest: this shall be the portion of their cup.

For the righteous Lord loveth righteousness; his countenance doth behold the upright.

Love's Record

THE Suppliant:
Grant me another chance, O Time! Erase
Wrong deeds and wicked words
That circle now through memory's dreariest place
Like foul, ill-omened birds.
Grant I may meet my cares in nobler mood
And braver stronger prove;
Let me wipe out the rank ingratitude
With which I cheated love.

Love:
Too late, for Time, relentless, goes his way;
But I have heard your prayer,
And, being Love, I cannot choose but say
No fault is written there.
In those bright tablets where true love records
Each treasured glance and kiss
There is no hint of lack in deeds or words
To mar the tale of bliss.

"They Also Serve"

By Herbert Kaufman

JOHN ALEXANDER is an Assyrian from the Basra region. A remnant of Nimrod's folk survive there, from the waves of conquest and massacre that have continuously diminished them since the fall of Nineveh. They are now shepherds and farmers. Also the doughtiest fighting men in Mesopotamia.

Many of 'em secretly cherish the bull, which their forefathers held sacred. They do not butcher or eat beef, despite their Nestorian Christianity which, incidentally, antedates the Church of Rome.

His father, an alumnus of Rush Medical College, attached to the British Forces at Bagdad, died of typhus fever, after sending his son by way of Russia and the Baltic to seek his fortunes in America.

The fat cigar drummer, whose breakfast John has just served, advises him to get out and "see something of the world."

The dapper young man, directing the furniture auction 'round the corner, wore a tarboosh and a burnoose in childhood. He was born in Cairo, learned Greek at Alexandria (where a purer and more aristocratic stock flourishes than in Athens) studied languages at the Sorbonne, and graduated from the Paris College of Law.

An interior decorator recently informed him, "You can't hope for success in the art game until experience broadens your background."

The chauffeur, waiting at the entrance, is a Hollander from Gouda. At the age of twelve, he made a voyage to Spitzbergen, gutting and salting fish on a herring schooner at a pittance of two dollars a week.

Before twenty, he had voyaged six times to the East Indies, cruised Australasia, gone whale hunting in the Antarctic, and tended bar in a dive at Lourenco Marquez, Portuguese Africa.

Customers often inquire if he isn't afraid to drive a taxi at all hours of the day and night about Chicago.

The unobstrusive woman, checking out for The Century is returning from her annual buying trip.

She's just in from China, where she purchased a pair of jades that once glorified the Summer Palace. Their last owners were a syndicate of thirty-four merchants, with whom she has negotiated since 1924 for these unique specimens.

In November, she was winnowing the Vale of Cashmere for Persian antiques, and such treasure-trove as up-country Rajahs could be induced to sell.

An emperor's ransom in pre-Mogul ivory and jewelled carvings is in her suitcase, one of which holds a gazing-crystal, so flawless that somebody will pay $25,000 for a bit of natural glass the size of a baseball.

Casual acquaintances wonder how she can stand the dull routine of a department store, and frequently ask if she doesn't miss the joys of home life.

The house electrician is also a collector. He acquired that cheek scar on a Cree reservation, upholding His Majesty's law as a corporal in the Northwest Mounted. He got his limp in a charge of Strathcona's Horse along the Tugela River. And Vimy Ridge contributed the memento which a silver skull-patch celebrates.

Well-meaning guests can't understand why he refuses their proffered tips.

Writers needing themes can find sufficient material, for a month of articles or a book-length serial, in any metropolitan hotel.

The "Seven Characters in Search of an Author" are always moving through the lobby—or in the pantry.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 27.—There are reasons enough for those chuckles and wild ki-yips on the pampas over New York's underworld "bad men." Out yonder they are accustomed to outlaws who "shave blue and spit red," and the Manhattan product must seem very Lord Fauntleroy.

A recent man hunt was for a character known as "Tough Willie," and after playing hide and seek with the police for awhile he turned up on his own volition. Willie—there's a sweet name for a desperado!—proved a Broadway fashion fop out of Vanity Fair by Weber and Heilbroner.

He was tailored in the manner of a movie sheik, had a rakish side dip to his hat, the proper loop to his cravat and—O, the pity of it!—canary yellow gloves. If there were notches on his jaunty bamboo cane, the police were unable to find them. Yet his name is said to have held gangland in white-faced terror.

New York hears much of its strong-armed stiffs, gorilla and two-gun so-and-sos, but they never materialize. They turn out to be chinless, chicken-breasted youths with suspicious coughs who are primed with cocaine, turned loose with a gun which they fire and hand quickly to a woman confederate.

New York bad men rarely meet and shoot it out in the open as the boys used to do around Dodge City. Today the victim is stalked for days, and when the auspicious moment comes is riddled in the back with machine guns from a speeding taxi. Or is lured to a hotel room and "ganged."

The underworld chief does no killing himself. He can hire drug-crazed weaklings and furnish the perfect alibi by his conspicuous presence in the cafe or theater when shots are fired. Yet through mysterious channels his vengeance becomes known and he is a hero among his kind.

Nearly all sensational murders in New York in the last decade—from Rosenthal to Rothstein—led to the trail of hired killers. And were due to the sinister consequence of thieves falling out among themselves. The bad man in the East has gone the way of the buffalo in the West.

The agonizing anxiety of theatrical producers over "first night" is not just a nervous whim. A show may draw sour notices from every quarter and survive. But rarely will it survive a jerky, badly-managed premiere. A revue two years ago was a sure "buy"—a hit—yet it closed in a week. A curtain stuck for 10 minutes, revealing all the back-stage flurry and confusion. It could not overcome that handicap. A drama recently suffered the same fate because lights went out for five minutes during a tense scene. Animals are dangerous in any production. A $200,000 musical show was practically laughed off the boards because of the antics of a donkey in the opening scene.

It is history, too, that the producer who scores a "smash" with his first production rarely lasts long. His second effort almost invariably flops because he is too sure of himself. The producer who has failures learns of production weaknesses. He is acquiring showmanship through experience.

About 10 years ago Fifth avenue was brightened every late afternoon by The Man in White. In all seasons he appeared hatless, wearing a costume of white trousers, white shoes and a white silk sport shirt open at the throat. He was a jobless foreign opera singer who adopted this publicity measure in hope of a job. He sang for a few weeks at a Broadway movie house and was seen no more. Now there is a Man in Blue—his costume being blue even to his cane, shoe uppers and eyeglass ribbon. And, of course, they wonder what's the idea. Probably very what-ho!

The erudite Franklin P. Adams has taken one of his learned flings at the constructional lapses in English in the Philo Vance detective stories. Some one should take him aside and explain that S. S. Van Dine, the nom de plume of Willard H. Wright, author of the Philo Vance tales, not only knows more about English, literature, painting and music than all the newspaper columnists in New York combined, but has enough knowledge left over to equip a couple of professors for Cornell.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

OFTEN there is a shock—perhaps several of them—when son or daughter returns from college.

A great change is evident.

And a change that causes surprise and sorrow to the father and mother.

The boy or girl seems to have adopted new ideas of life and conduct.

There is not so much deference shown to parents and older persons.

The young people appear to have been doing some thinking for themselves.

They feel that they have a right to that privilege.

And since they are no longer children, have they not a right to figure out life for themselves?

Education ought to have developed some decided opinions.

But if these opinions are at variance with good behavior it is very regrettable.

Parents make little headway in quarreling with them about it.

To reason with them as adults, not treating them as children, might get somewhere. But it takes wisdom and breadth of mind on both sides to come together in understanding.
